RESPITE TO BE GRANTED TO CHENG KWOK-YAU

TERRORIST BOMBS DANCE HALL

THE CHITTAGONG OUTRAGE

EUROPEAN WOMAN KILLED

Calcutta, Sept. 25.

The victim of the Bengali terrorist outbreak at Chittagong last night was a woman, a Mrs. Sullivan.

The outrage occurred at midnight when the European Institute at Baratali was thronged with Europeans on the occasion of the monthly dance.

The dance was at its height and the floor was crowded when a gang of ten armed men appeared at the open windows. A bomb was thrown into the building, killing Mrs. Sullivan and wounding eight other Europeans, the bomb, fortunately, not being a remarkably powerful one.

POLICE WOUNDED.

The injured men included two police officers. There was a sharp exchange of shots between a handful of Europeans and the terrorists, as the result of which a Bengali girl was killed.

The remainder of the raiders escaped. There have been no further disturbances.

As far as is known at the moment, none of the other victims of the bomb is in a serious condition. The Bengali girl killed has been identified as a graduate of Dacca University. She had been "wanted" by the police following investigations into the last anti-European outbreak at Chittagong some months ago.—Reuter.

GREEKS GO TO THE POLLS

THREE PARTIES ALL CONFIDENT

(Special to "Telegraph.")

Athens, Sept. 25. Elections for the whole of the Greek Lower House and for one-third of the Senate were held to-day.

Immense interest has been aroused in the political field and the polling booths were crowded from a very early hour.

The elections are being carried out on the system of proportional representation and the final result will not be known for a few days. Each of the three principal parties is confident of victory.—Reuter.

BABY KILLED BY MOTOR-CAR

TRAGIC MISHAP IN QUEEN'S ROAD

A tragic motor-car mishap occurred yesterday afternoon in Queen's Road West, resulting in the death of a nine months' old baby.

If appears that the mother of the child was crossing the street, carrying the baby, when she failed to avoid a motor-car. She was knocked down, and although escaping serious injury herself, the little child was instantly killed.

Arrested in possession of 2,487 20/- lottery tickets, a Chinese woman who appeared before Mr. Wynne-Jones at the Central Police Court this morning was fined $500, or three months' hard labour, in default of payment.

POSTPONEMENT OF EXECUTION

DEFENCE SEEKING APPEAL TO PRIVY COUNCIL

THREE MONTHS' DELAY

A respite of three months in the execution of the death sentence passed upon Cheng Kwok-yau, convicted of the murder of George Fung in March last, is to be granted by H. E. the Governor, it is learned to-day.

The postponement of the day of execution, which normally would take place next week, is being granted in order that an application may be made in London for special leave to appeal to the Privy Council.

Neither the local courts nor H.E. the Governor has the authority

JIMMY FOXX SCORES HIS 58th HOME RUN

Two Short of Record in Last Game of Season

New York, Sept. 25.

The baseball league season ended to-day with only a few games left unplayed and two of these were called to-day as the result of darkness.

Jimmy Foxx, champion home run hitter of the season, smacked out his 58th of the season at Washington, falling only two short of Babe Ruth's 1927 record. Foxx's homer did not affect the result. It was the Athletics' only run of the game.

The Yankees did not take their last game with Boston very seriously and went down 8-3.

Home runs were hit by Stripp (Brooklyn), Moore (Braves), Mallon and Lee (Phillies), Dugas 2 (Pittsburgh), Frisch (St. Louis Cardinals), Doljack and Walker (Detroit). Results:—

to grant leave to appeal to the Privy Council, whose Judicial Committee alone can decide whether or not it will hear an appeal from the Crown Colonies in a criminal case.

FURTHER RESPITE POSSIBLE.

Cheng Kwok-yau, who is about 21 years of age, was found guilty of arranging for the murder of Fung, by gunmen. He has exceedingly wealthy connections and was defended at his trial by Mr. Eldon Potter, K.C., Mr. F.C. Jenkin, K.C., and Mr. R.C.H. Lim.

The length of time which will elapse before Cheng's fate is finally known is due to the legal requirements. The Judge's Notes, and the record of the trial have to be prepared for submission to the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council. This will probably take a month. In the event of the Privy Council deciding to hear the appeal, a further respite in the sentence may be necessary.

GROUPS OF APPEAL.

The grounds of appeal have not yet been finally formulated, we understand, though we are informed that the appeal can be lodged on any grounds, on law or on fact. The right of appeal is not confined, as is believed in some quarters, to the reserved points which were argued in the Full Court.

RECENT TENSION IN FOCHOW

PLANE DROPS "RED" LEAFLETS

Fochow, Sept. 20.

On Sunday, an aeroplane was noticed circling over Fochow and I am told that it dropped Communist or at least anti-Government leaflets. Other leaflets of the same type were distributed in various parts of the city. Their general tenor was that the Kuomintang had done nothing for the country, and the sooner it was overthrown, the better for everybody.

No doubt partly as a result of these efforts at propaganda, and a precaution against any unforeseen occurrences, a large number of soldiers were stationed in different parts of the city and suburbs that afternoon, and remained on duty all night. They were more particularly anxious to guard against disturbance in the foreign residential quarter where a number of Japanese live. As far as I know, no trouble of any kind took place, and the night passed off in perfect quiet.

To-day traffic has been suspended across the Long Bridge, owing to the arrival of General Chiang, Commander of the 19th Army. It seems that Chen Kuo-hui and others of the "old gang" who have been enjoying a sort of authorised banditry in Fukien during the last few years, are beginning to fear that their days are numbered, and that they are liable to break out any time between them and the newly arrived 19th Army.—Our Own Correspondent.

Letters of administration with the will of U. Chan Young, alias Chan Young, late of Shui Young village, and one time clerk in San Francisco, annexed, have been granted to his widow. The estate is valued at $5,200.

The offices of Messrs. Caldwell, Macgregor and Co., Ltd., will be closed this afternoon as a mark of respect to the late Mrs. Laurel Pereira, wife of Mr. G. J. M. Pereira, chief clerk of the court, who died on September 24.

KASHMIR RIOTS

TROOPS CALLED TO RESTORE ORDER

2 DEAD; 66 INJURED IN OUTBREAK

(Special to "Telegraph.")

Bombay, Sept. 26.

Grave communal rioting occurred during the week-end at Srinagar, Kashmir. Troops were hurriedly despatched to the scene of the outbreak and have now got the situation more or less under control.

The outbreak occurred following a dispute regarding a procession. Starting with an argument between rival religiousists, serious rioting and looting developed.

In fierce street fighting, two were killed and sixty-six seriously injured.

The fighting began in the centre of the city and spread rapidly into the suburbs, where attacks were carried out by Moslems upon Hindus, and Hindus upon Moslems, many persons being picked up and injured as the result of their being attacked by gangs.

SHOPS WRECKED.

Shop-fronts were smashed and many were entered and wrecked. The troops were called out soon after the trouble commenced but some hours elapsed before the situation was got under control.—Reuter.

UNREGISTERED MUI-TSAI

TECHNICAL OFFENCE COMMITTED

A nominal fine of $10 was imposed by Mr. Wynne-Jones, at the Central Police Court this morning, on a married woman who appeared on a charge of bringing an unregistered mui-tsai into the Colony on September 8.

Inspector H. W. Fraser informed his Worship that the lady in question was visiting the third floor of 308, Des Voeux Road, where she saw the girl on the second floor. On enquiry she found that the girl was not registered. The girl was presented to the defendant about six years ago in the country for a sum of $40. Since her marriage the defendant has resided in the country but it had been her custom each year to visit her relatives in Hongkong.

The girl was well treated, well fed and clothed, and had apparently formed an attachment for the woman, who had been very frank about the whole matter. The prosecution was not pressing the case and only asked his Worship to treat it as a technical offence.

Wong Sze, the mistress of a passenger boat, was charged before the Hon. Commr. Ho, at the Marine Court this morning, with having used her boat for the purpose of carrying passengers without a licence.

GERMAN FLIER'S BRIEF STAY

HOP TO MANILA TO-MORROW

NOT TAKING MAIL

Captain Wolfgang von Gronau, the noted German flier who arrived here yesterday from Shanghai, intends to take off for Manila to-morrow, in continuation of his world flight.

No mail is being carried by the plane from Hongkong.

Interviewed by the Telegraph this morning, the airman said:—"Weather permitting, I shall leave between eight and nine o'clock to-morrow morning for Manila. I shall probably arrive there to-morrow afternoon. I shall stay in Manila all day on Wednesday and leave again on Thursday. As soon as I arrive I shall take a supply of petrol aboard from the Shell Co's dump. After leaving Manila, I shall go to Borneo and Java and then on to Germany where I shall resume my duties at the Flying School. On my way back I shall travel over India, and Bagdad."

The aviator, in answer to a question said:—"I am tired of these big receptions. I have had too much of them."

DANGEROUS ENTHUSIASM.

He lamented the fact that whenever he arrived at a port of call those coming to greet him in vessels usually pulled their craft too close. "They should bear in mind that a flying boat is not a ship, and is easily damaged. I wish they would keep further away until I am ready," he added.

Asked his impressions of the Colony, Capt. von Gronau said:—"It is a very nice town. The harbour is a good shelter for flying boats. There is a nice beginning for an aerodrome here and a great future for aviation."

FOREIGN VICTIM OF CHOLERA

HEAVY LOSS FOR FOCHOW

Fochow, Sept. 20.

The cholera epidemic in Fochow is said to be on the wane, but recently it claimed a well-known foreign resident as a victim, in the person of Mr. E. H. Bucknell. Mr. Bucknell had lived in Fochow for nearly forty years, at first in the Customs service, and afterwards in various forms of business, spending all his spare time as an independent missionary among the Chinese. Those who were privileged to know him will never forget his cheery personality, and the even good humour with which he bore all the difficulties and privations that came his way from time to time. He was always ready to lend his help to any good cause, and those past summer will remember him going round from house to house to help in collecting money for the Christian Herald Orphanage.

The funeral took place at the British Cemetery, the Rev. A. W. R. Norton, who had been one of his closest friends, officiating. A group of his friends, representing all sections, was present to the funeral.

PREMIER AND POONA PACT

NO DECISION YET REACHED

GANDHI MAY MERELY SUSPEND FAST

London, Sept. 25.

Determination to resort to another fast if it is necessary for the object of rooting out Untouchability from Hinduism, was expressed by the Mahatma Gandhi to-day in a special statement to Reuter's representative.

Gandhi said that if Mr. Ramsay MacDonald accepted the agreement between the Caste Hindus and the Depressed Classes in toto, he (Gandhi) would be obliged to break his fast.

But, he added, the break might merely prove to be a suspension. "I shall certainly retake the vow to fast unto death if the part to be played by the Caste Hindus is not well played during the coming months."

TREMENDOUS AWAKENING.

"The tremendous awakening in the country during the past five days, however, fills me with hope and orthodoxy will surprise itself and rid Hinduism of the canker of Untouchability."

Gandhi appeared to be much brighter and better than he was yesterday, but his doctor says that he will be unable to fast much longer with sufficient strength for recovery.

It is learned from London that the Poona agreement is being very actively considered by all concerned with the Government's policy, but that no decision has yet been reached.—Reuter.

SIAMESE WHO IS "WANTED"

WILLING TO RETURN

A Siamese, who gave his name as Nil Buox, was arrested in the Colony last week on a warrant, charging him with the embezzlement of Tels 762 in Bangkok on two different dates last year. He appeared before Mr. Schofield at the Central Magistracy to-day.

Chief Detective Inspector Reynolds said he understood the fugitive was willing to waive extradition proceedings and proceed to Siam of his own accord. A remand of 48 hours was required in order to enable arrangements to be made with the Consul for Siam of the man's repatriation.

The Magistrate, (to Buox)—The question this Court has to consider is whether you should be sent back to Siam for trial or not. If you are willing to be sent back, then there is no issue tried in this Court.

The prisoner signified his readiness to dispense with the formality of extradition proceedings, and, was accordingly remanded for the period desired by the police authorities.

GORDON BENNETT BALLOON RACE

SIXTEEN IN START FROM BASLE

Basle, Sept. 25.

Sixteen balloons entered by eight nations, including three entrants each from the United States, Germany, France and Switzerland, started this afternoon on the annual Gordon Bennett Race, for a cup presented by Mr. Henry Ford.

A light breeze prevailed at the time of the ascent and the competitors were carried gradually in the direction of Belgium, which was fortunate since the Soviet had issued a warning that balloons would not be permitted to drift over Soviet territory.

All the entrants, despite the warning, declared that they were prepared to take the risk, if necessary.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

By W. E. McKenney

Don't be satisfied with just your bid or just game. Try for the extra tricks, and when on the defensive, even though you cannot stop game, play your hand carefully to prevent those extra tricks. These points are well illustrated in to-day's hand.

♠A-6-3	♠10-9-8-3	♠K-J-7-6	♠10-8
♠K-Q	♠10-8	♠4-2	♠6-5
♠10-4	♠6-5-2	♠7-5	♠A-K-J-4
♠A-K-J-4	♠A-9-3	♠A-K-J-4	♠803

The Bidding.

The hand was played in a contract bridge tournament. At most of the tables North and South finally got the contract at four hearts.

The Play.

West had the opening lead and led the king of spades which was won in dummy with the ace. The ten of hearts was returned from dummy, East played the deuce and South the four. The nine of hearts was next led, East played the seven and South, the declarer, played the jack. Declarer then led the ace of hearts, picking up East's queen. West discarding the deuce of spades.

A small diamond was led to dummy's king and the jack of diamonds returned from dummy. East, who held only the eight and queen of diamonds, would gain nothing by covering, so plays the five. South played the nine and West the ten. The ten of clubs was led from dummy. Now we find East with the queen and nine of clubs, and the ten spot should now be covered by East with the queen. If East should fail to cover, the declarer would play the four and then lead another club from dummy and finesse the jack. The two spades will be discarded on the ace and king of clubs and the losing spade in declarer's hand will be trumped in dummy with the eight of hearts. In this manner the declarer would make a grand slam.

But when East covers with the queen, the declarer to win the trick must play the king. Declarer can now cash his ace and jack of clubs but forced to ruff the four of clubs in dummy with the eight of hearts. His next play is a diamond from dummy which is won in declarer's hand with the ace. The good king of hearts can be cashed but the opponents must win the last spade trick.

East, by covering the club with his queen, has held the declarer to six odd, but as only four were bid, the declarer scores 120 for the tricks bid and made and 50 each for the two extra tricks. As both sides were vulnerable, he receives 500 points for game.

COTTON DISPUTE

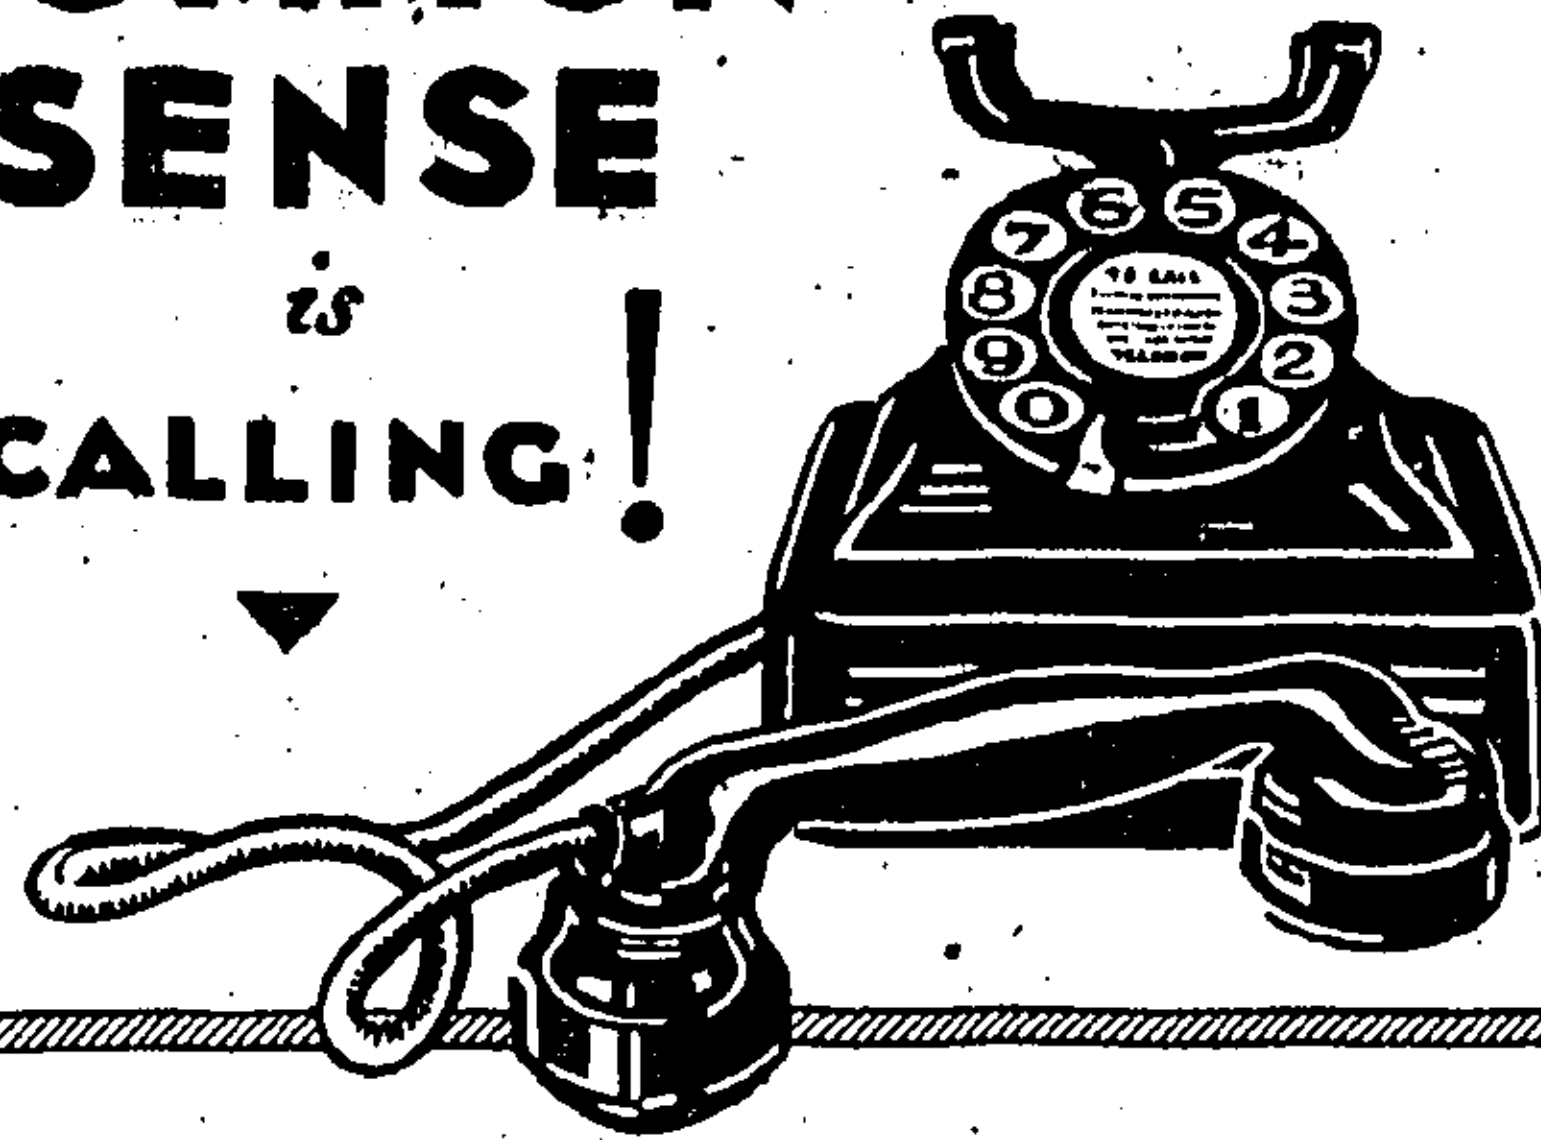

SETTLEMENT AWAITS RATIFICATION

Manchester, Sept. 25.
All difficulties in the cotton dispute have now been removed. The settlement will be submitted to the full bodies of the employers and operatives, probably on the 27th inst.

It is expected that if the agreement is ratified by both, as is practically certain, work could restart on the following day.—

CHINA REALTY COMPANY 8% DEBENTURES
8% INTEREST VS. 6% INTEREST
MEANS ONE THIRD MORE INCOME

COMMON SENSE
is
CALLING!

HERE IS YOUR OPPORTUNITY TO GAIN A THIRD MORE FROM THAT SECOND INCOME YOU HAVE PLANNED

Why be satisfied with only 6% interest when your capital of Tls. 100 or more can earn 8% for you with safety?

It is a significant fact that to-day many people are reinvesting their savings in China Realty Co. 8% debentures and participating in the increased returns offered. It is not only labour that is earning more to-day; money is also busier and more efficient and therefore earns more in the shape of large dividends. If your funds are invested in good securities which are earning you less than 8% a year, then you have a lot of lazy or inefficient dollars working for you and you should give them a new task master.

Because we believe that the investing public should get a larger share than usual in the profits which accrue to modern business we pay interest of 8% on our debentures which are issued in denominations of Tls. 100.00 each. No sounder investment than these debentures can be found because they are backed not only by sound and conservative real estate mortgages but by the entire assets of this prosperous company as well. Your income from an 8% investment is one-third greater than from a 6% investment.

We welcome the small investor as one who, no matter how small his investment, becomes a friend of the company and thus adds to the value of our good will. If you have Tls. 100 or more of idle money, or money which is earning less than 8% invest it in China Realty 8% debentures.

During the past 20 years, we have negotiated mortgages amounting to more than Tls. 100,000,000.00 and so accurate has our judgment been that not one cent of interest or principal has ever been lost.

THE LATE ARNOLD BENNETT'S LAST LONG STORY "DREAM OF DESTINY"

(Copyright Strictly Reserved).

CHAPTER I

Roland Lane Smith was swung up out of the Tube railway—full of glittering cool carriages, with homing theatrogoers, intoxicated males arguing lovingly arm-in-arm, amorous couples, inscrutable and silent men, inscrutable and silent women, newspaper-scanners, book-readers, smokers, indifferent and courteous snarls apparently insensible to fatigue and monotony and ennui, all unwelcome—into the hot July night at South Kensington. In a back-titled opera-hat and full evening-dress, with white flower, but no overcoat, he stuck his hands into his pockets and strolled leisurely along through Sussex Place towards The Boltons. Quiet gradually succeeded to racket. There were few pedestrians, and in the roads nothing but swift cars and labouring taxis.

He reached the large oval which calls itself The Boltons, with the dark heavy mass of the Church of St. Mary in the midst, and had to count numbers to find the house, for this was his first visit to his cousin's new home. He found it by the brown matting laid across the pavement and by the brilliant lighting of the house and by the open front-door and the door of the front garden and the commissionaire thereat. His widowed cousin was warming her new home; cars were ranked all round the inner railing of the oval; old inhabitants of adjoining houses were being annoyed and kept awake by the unwelcome stir due to the vast hospitality of the new inhabitant.

Spaciousness: that was the leading quality of The Boltons, space between the seemingly three-story houses, space in the large gardens glimpsed behind them. Half Moon Street, where Roland lived in 'chambers' (two rooms and a bathroom, and a landlady noted for the gracious superiority of her deportment towards her 'gentlemen'), was certainly not characterized by spaciousness. And Roland was always preoccupied by his sense of the difference between spaciousness and the nutshell. He happened to be the secretary (and effective ruler) of the Leicester Trust Homes Limited, which homes were low-rented flats, hundreds of them storey above storey in five immense blocks near King's Road, Chelsea. Simeon Leicester, the deceased money-lender, had in his will left the greater part of a considerable fortune for the erection of industrial flats, and in the same document had appointed Roland Lane Smith to be the controlling manager of the enterprise. A felicitous windfall for Roland, who had been a mere acquaintance of Simeon's, but who without knowing it had deeply impressed the old Jew. Roland had accepted the responsibility. From being a university-educated idle amateur of life, he had flowered almost suddenly into a serious and weighty person. True, he had a Board to humour, but within six months he was carrying the Board in his pocket. He had studied the subject of 'dwellings', had superintended in every detail the planning and the building of the serried flats. The flats were the last and the finest work of industrial flats in London. The flats were very ingeniously devised; they had all the space-economies of a yacht; they had open playgrounds and covered playgrounds, electricity (at a special rate), gas (with free stoves and rings), refuse-shoots on each floor, hot-water on each floor, hot water even in the wash-house on each floor, many balconies, and level roofs with safety rails, and above all Roland had refused to imprint the name of Leicester on the walls, and refused to baptize the blocks 'Block A', 'Block B', 'Block C', etc. Instead he had bestowed on each block the name of a philanthropist, such as 'Howard', and had entitled the whole (with the approval of the Post Office) Thames Court. Thus a charwoman could begin a letter with the words "Howard, Thames Court, Chelsea, S.W.3."

Roland knew personally many of the tenants and a few of their innumerable shrieking children: which fact did not mitigate his steely harshness in the grave matter of arrears of rent. (The harshness, by the way, helped him to maintain the esteem of his some what old-fashioned Board; it was the one thing in his strange philosophy which they could thoroughly understand and endorse in their hearts). He had become a wonder-man in the eyes of the fashionable or intellectual friends of his youth, a legend to hostesses, an exemplar to the smart young of both sexes. His yearly salary was £1,250, and this, with his private means, gave him ease and some luxury at eventide in his busy and anxious life. He was under forty, a bachelor, elegant, well known, his own master—in truth if not in theory. He had not a care in the world. Except Thames Court. And Thames Court was perfect, a boon to an industrial mass, the cynosure of practical philanthropists. Only Roland was forever worried by the sense of the crowdedness of his multitudinous tenants. The children had asphalt to disport themselves on; their parents had the roofs, in fine weather. But the housewives were

UNFINISHED

MASTERPIECE

Arnold Bennett's last story, the first instalment of which appears in this page, is unfinished, but this does not spoil its worth or readable quality, but rather adds a mystery value which will be found very intriguing.

all living and working on the top of one another. They lacked room to turn round. They lacked spaciousness in their everlasting toil.

He passed through the garden gate of his cousin's widow's house in The Boltons, and the commissionaire saluted him. He passed into the house through the open door, and a superb functionary in evening-dress bowed to him, and another superb functionary received him but across the table bearing a saucer of pils and an empty saucer, and gave him a pink ticket in exchange, and a third superb bowing functionary waved him respectfully forward through the halls of the house towards the open garden door. Everywhere was reckless and wanton space.

"Everyone is in the garden, sir," said the third functionary. Roland divined, knowing Nancy's habits, that all the functionaries were hired for the night, and that probably each of them lived and kept a family in a home that the front-hall alone would have contained with room to spare. He was in the garden. In the distance of the illuminated garden he could hear the thin sound of a band. The garden seemed boundless in the night. Although he was seeing it for the first time, the garden appeared somehow vaguely familiar to him.

At the far end of the hot garden, on a wooden floor temporarily laid

over part of the lawn and surrounded by gilt chairs (also hired for the night), a number of people were dancing beneath coloured electric globes hung on wires from trees. A few other people were strolling about in the glowing tips of cigarettes could be discerned here and there. A woman detached herself from the distant crowd and came hastening in the direction of the house. It was Mrs. Lynton Smythe, hostess of the night. Roland moved towards her.

"My dear Roland! How nice of you! I was afraid..." Shaking hands, she glanced up suddenly at the windowed wall of the house. "Now, chicks. You are really very, very naughty. You ought to be asleep. You know this isn't your party. You'll have yours on Saturday afternoon. Now do get into bed again. You've been put to bed twice already."

"It's the band," shrieked a child's voice from an upper story. "We can't sleep because of the band."

"The band will stop, darlings."

And at that moment the band did stop, and guests began to arrange chairs in a semi-circle on the dance-flooring in order to watch the promised miracles of a magician (also hired for the night). Nancy held Roland's hand with a certain pressure and gazed at him as though she had been living for the delicious encounter and was enjoying it to the full. Elegantly dressed in fashionable black, she had the sweet yearning air of a kindly hostess, a relation with a proper sense of the family, a mother of a young brood and the slave of a conscience who dressed well for the reason that to dress well was a duty. She looked worried, but amiably and happily worried, for she was doing the right thing that night. Roland thought, as he folded her in his gentle, loving suavity: "Why house-warming? Her daughters won't be ripe for marriage for fifteen or twenty years yet." He knew, from hints and glances, that some well-meaning friends had seen in himself an ideal second husband for her. But the altar and another man's brood did not in the least attract him. Still, he liked her, and he liked the children and they liked him and called him 'uncle'—boisterously or timidly according to their natures and their mood.

Then Nancy's hostess-eye, heedfully roving, saw a girl seated lonely on a garden-bench in an obscure corner.

"Do come and be introduced to Miss Friar," said she, drawing Roland towards the bench. "She's a wonderful girl and a very great friend of mine, and she's only just arrived from New York."

"I should adore to meet her," Roland said, using a cliché of his social idiom. He had been introduced to hundreds of wonderful girls in his evening career, and he managed so far as possible to preserve the wonder of all of them in his esteem. The girl did not rise, she sprang up and seized Nancy's hand and kissed it.

"Dearest!" she exclaimed in a rich, throbbing contralto voice, "what an organizer you are! This fête of yours is marvellous." Some slight trace of an American accent in her tones.

"I want you to know my poor husband's cousin, Roland Lane Smith," (Nancy pronounced Smith 'Smythe'). "I'm sure you know all about him. Miss Friar, Roland. Come and see the conjurer as soon as you feel inclined." And then off she abruptly ran, for three new guests were emerging from the house.

Miss Friar and Roland sat down side by side, Miss Friar blowing a kiss to Nancy's flying back.

"She's got an extraordinary gift for hospitality," said Miss Friar. "She seems to live for her friends."

"And her children." "I can't help thinking I've met you somewhere before, Miss Friar," said Roland, who was occasionally impulsive. He was aware of a disconcerting sensation, not merely that he had met the girl before, but had met her in this garden. Disconcerting, but not seriously so. Nearly everyone experiences it some time or other the sensation of having lived before through the moment in which he is living; and men of science have explained the phenomenon by attributing it to a fault in the dual functioning of the brain: Roland recalled.

"I've not met you before," said Miss Friar positively. "But I saw you to-night at the St. James's first-night. Perhaps that was it." "It must have been," Roland agreed. "And yet—I'm ashamed to say I didn't notice you." Another of his social clichés. "Why should he be ashamed?" "Subconscious you know—But I was in a box."

"Oh yes." They chatted about the play. "Did you like it?" she asked. "Yes, I did. Especially the last act. It frightened me, the last act did."

"Oh! I'm so glad. First-night audiences are so stupid, aren't they? They haven't changed a bit in five years. I'll tell you one thing. The author of that play didn't know—how—good—he was—nor—how—bad—he was." Miss Friar separated the words, emphasizing each, and at the end of the sentence bringing down her right hand on her knee with a grandiose finishing gesture.

"I remember now," said Roland unthinkingly, and then checked himself.

"What?"

"Oh, nothing. Do go on about the play. What you say is frightfully interesting."

But he had indeed remembered. He remembered that two nights earlier he had dreamed of being in just such an illuminated garden as this garden in The Boltons and of being introduced to just such a girl as this Miss Friar and of sitting with her on just such a bench as this bench. It was her broad, violent gesture in finishing the sentence which had reminded him of the dream. The dream, like almost all his dreams and like almost all other people's dreams, had been faint and vague. Within five minutes of awaking from it he had forgotten the details of it, and within an hour he had forgotten the whole dream. But now it was returning to him, or perhaps rising up from the eternal safe-deposit of his subconscious. Bit by bit it reconstructed itself in his conscious memory. Well, if you had any social decency—and Roland had a lot—you could not tell a perfect stranger, and a girl, that you had been dreaming about her in advance. It wasn't done. For this reason he had checked himself. He looked at her and listened.

All she said was original and interesting. But what interested him was less the things she said than the way she said them. She said them as though they mattered—at any rate to herself. Each phrase, each inflection, throbbled with her vitality. She was an intensely vital individual. She lived intensely through every syllable. Every syllable had importance for her. As she spoke she could not have lived more intensely had she been proclaiming her faith amid the fires of the stake. He thought: she must be some sort of an artist. She was rather richly dressed, but not with care; her dark frock was awry. He would neither deny nor affirm that she was beautiful. Her eyes had the glinting frame of beauty. Assuredly her heavy untidy hair—brown, just escaping auburn—was beautiful. Her gestures were violent and ungainly. The essence of life emanated from her. He remembered that in the dream he had married her. He knew that in the dream he had married her, if only because of a very strange incident before the wedding. The aged clergyman had dropped down dead. A fearful shock. The ceremony had had to be postponed for a day. Highly perturbing for everyone concerned. He recalled his own feelings. However, it had been all right in the end. Disconcerting, and seriously so! The most disconcerting coincidence in his whole life. By far the most disconcerting. The dream, which he had forgotten, and the real event. He had dreamed of meeting her in an illuminated garden, and he had met her in an illuminated garden. Naught but his strong social sense prevented him from running away, fleeing from her electrical individuality, her beauty—if beauty she had, the loud yet quiet thrill of her voice, fleeing away and taking every precaution never to set eyes on her again. She was awfully dangerous to him.

"You're evidently very keen on the theatre," he remarked with false composure, in a pause. "Keen! I live for it. It's horrible, but I live for it."

"Do you act?" "My name is Phoebe Friar. I've been acting five years in America, where they've been very kind to me."

"Oh! Forgive me. How stupid of me!" said he. "It never occurred to me."

"Why should it?" she laughed. "What trifle of a name I have! I made in New York." She had no pose, no self-consciousness. She was an actress; she was like an actress; her voltage was terrific; but she was not like an actress. He thought, he was convinced, that she must be a great actress.

Eleonora Duse, Mrs. Patrick Campbell. He learned, by questioning, that she had gone out to New York, having played nothing in England but tiny parts in companies, and then instantly aroused the enthusiasm of Alan Dale, the arch-destroyer, in New York. And she was 'made.' She had been 'put,' and she had contrived to stay 'put.' And then, hungry for London, driven by an overpowering nostalgia, she had returned to the dead city. And in a month's time, though the newspapers had not yet gathered the news, she was to 'open' as a star, with her name burning in pink on the facade of a theatre in Shaftesbury Avenue. And there she sat by his side, as simply as a nobody! Twenty-seven, twenty-eight, conceivably twenty-nine, not thirty. She was staying with dearest Nancy until her parents came back to London from somewhere on the continent. She mentioned her parents with adoring affectionate respect.

"It was they who forced me on to the stage," she said, with a light, resounding laugh.

"Oh! Did they? How?" "By putting some alliteration into my name, and disguising with a ph, Phoebe Friar. That name just had to be on the foreheads of theatres," Mr. Smythe. She laughed again.

"Yes," he smiled. "But may I tell you my name's Smith?" "But your cousin's name was Smythe. How was that?" "Well," he said, with another smile, "I don't know. It's very mysterious. Somebody must have changed it."

"Or yours?" "No. Not mine. I'm awfully sorry I've got to go," he murmured, in a voice broken, queer. He rose. Still a further episode from his dream had risen from the subconscious. She was lying very ill in a bedroom, doctor on the right of the bed, Roland on the left. The doctor bent down to her, straightened himself, glanced at Roland. She was dead. The doctor vanished from the room. A nurse, all white and blue, entered, weeping. For a few seconds the nurse could not speak. "The baby too?" Roland muttered. The nurse nodded, and sobbed into her (Continued on Page 11.)

HE PAID PYORRHEA'S PRICE NEEDLESSLY

CARELESS, thoughtless neglect! That is to blame. Once he was healthy, energetic and a vigorous. He had many friends who admired him, particularly his pleasant, ready smile.

Now he is ashamed to smile, but even that hardly matters, for he sits at home alone, broken down, sick and forlorn.

He saw the danger signals years ago. But did nothing! At first his gums bled when he brushed his teeth. Finally, one by one his teeth dropped out, or had to be pulled out.

You may have pyorrhea now. Protect yourself from its dread effects. Every morning and evening use Forhan's for the Gums. Brush your teeth with this scientific dentifrice. It not only cleans and whitens your teeth, but, most important of all, it prevents pyorrhea.

Forhan's for the Gums is the formula of R. J. Forhan, D.D.S., specialist in mouth diseases. It contains Forhan's Pyorrhea Astringent developed by Dr. Forhan and used by dentists throughout the world in the treatment of pyorrhea.

Just some ideas...
Not long ago a mother told me that she used a straw arrangement to hold her baby under the cover at night.

"He strains and fights until his shoulder have big marks on them. And, oh, how he yells!"
Carefully I replied: "The way a baby first develops temper is by holding him so he can't move. Aren't you a bit afraid of tying him too tight?"

"That's all silly," she retorted. "A baby doesn't know. She was wrong."

On a hot, hot day a baby can well go without a stitch of clothing. A young mother, hearing that, stripped her baby on a hot afternoon and went out, leaving him to be looked after by an inexperienced maid on the back lawn.

She came home at five to find a cold wind blowing and a few rain-drops beginning to fall.
"That night the baby had croup. Do you wonder?"

Not long ago it was like hunting for diamonds to get shoes for babies that would go on at the heel and generally fit the foot.

Now there is no end to the good shoes to be had, from the first soft booties to the next soft little kids, and on to the sturdier kind with wide toes and firm but elastic soles that support him in his first steps.

Bare feet are fine when the weather is good. The muscles have play and get stronger. Watch a baby pull himself up and stand on the tips of his big toes. That is excellent.

One day a baby said "Da-dy."

"He was not quite a year old."

The family screamed with delight. His father yelled, "Atta boy!" Everyone grinned, so the baby grinned.

The baby obligingly said "Da-dy" again. This time, however, as soon as the word was out, he dropped over and hid his face in a cushion.

Self conscious. Queer as it sounds, an inferiority complex was setting in.

"Stop it, all of you," I said. The next time he says it, if he over does again, don't pay any attention. At least don't go into hysterics.

After a while he straightened up and began to play. "Da-dy," he said softly. He looked up quickly.

No one seemed to have heard. Their attention appeared to be anywhere but on him.

He did not drop his head, but went on playing. He repeated the word and other little syllables presently.

No more any head-dropping. No sense of being ridiculed.

A baby cannot tell when you are laughing at him or with him. Fear of ridicule is the seed of inferiority, and it starts at the cradle.

FASHION NOTES.

The New Coats:

The jackets of tailor-made and sports suits are on the whole longer, and, instead of reaching just below the waistline, as we have been used to see them, reach to the hip-bone and a little below it.

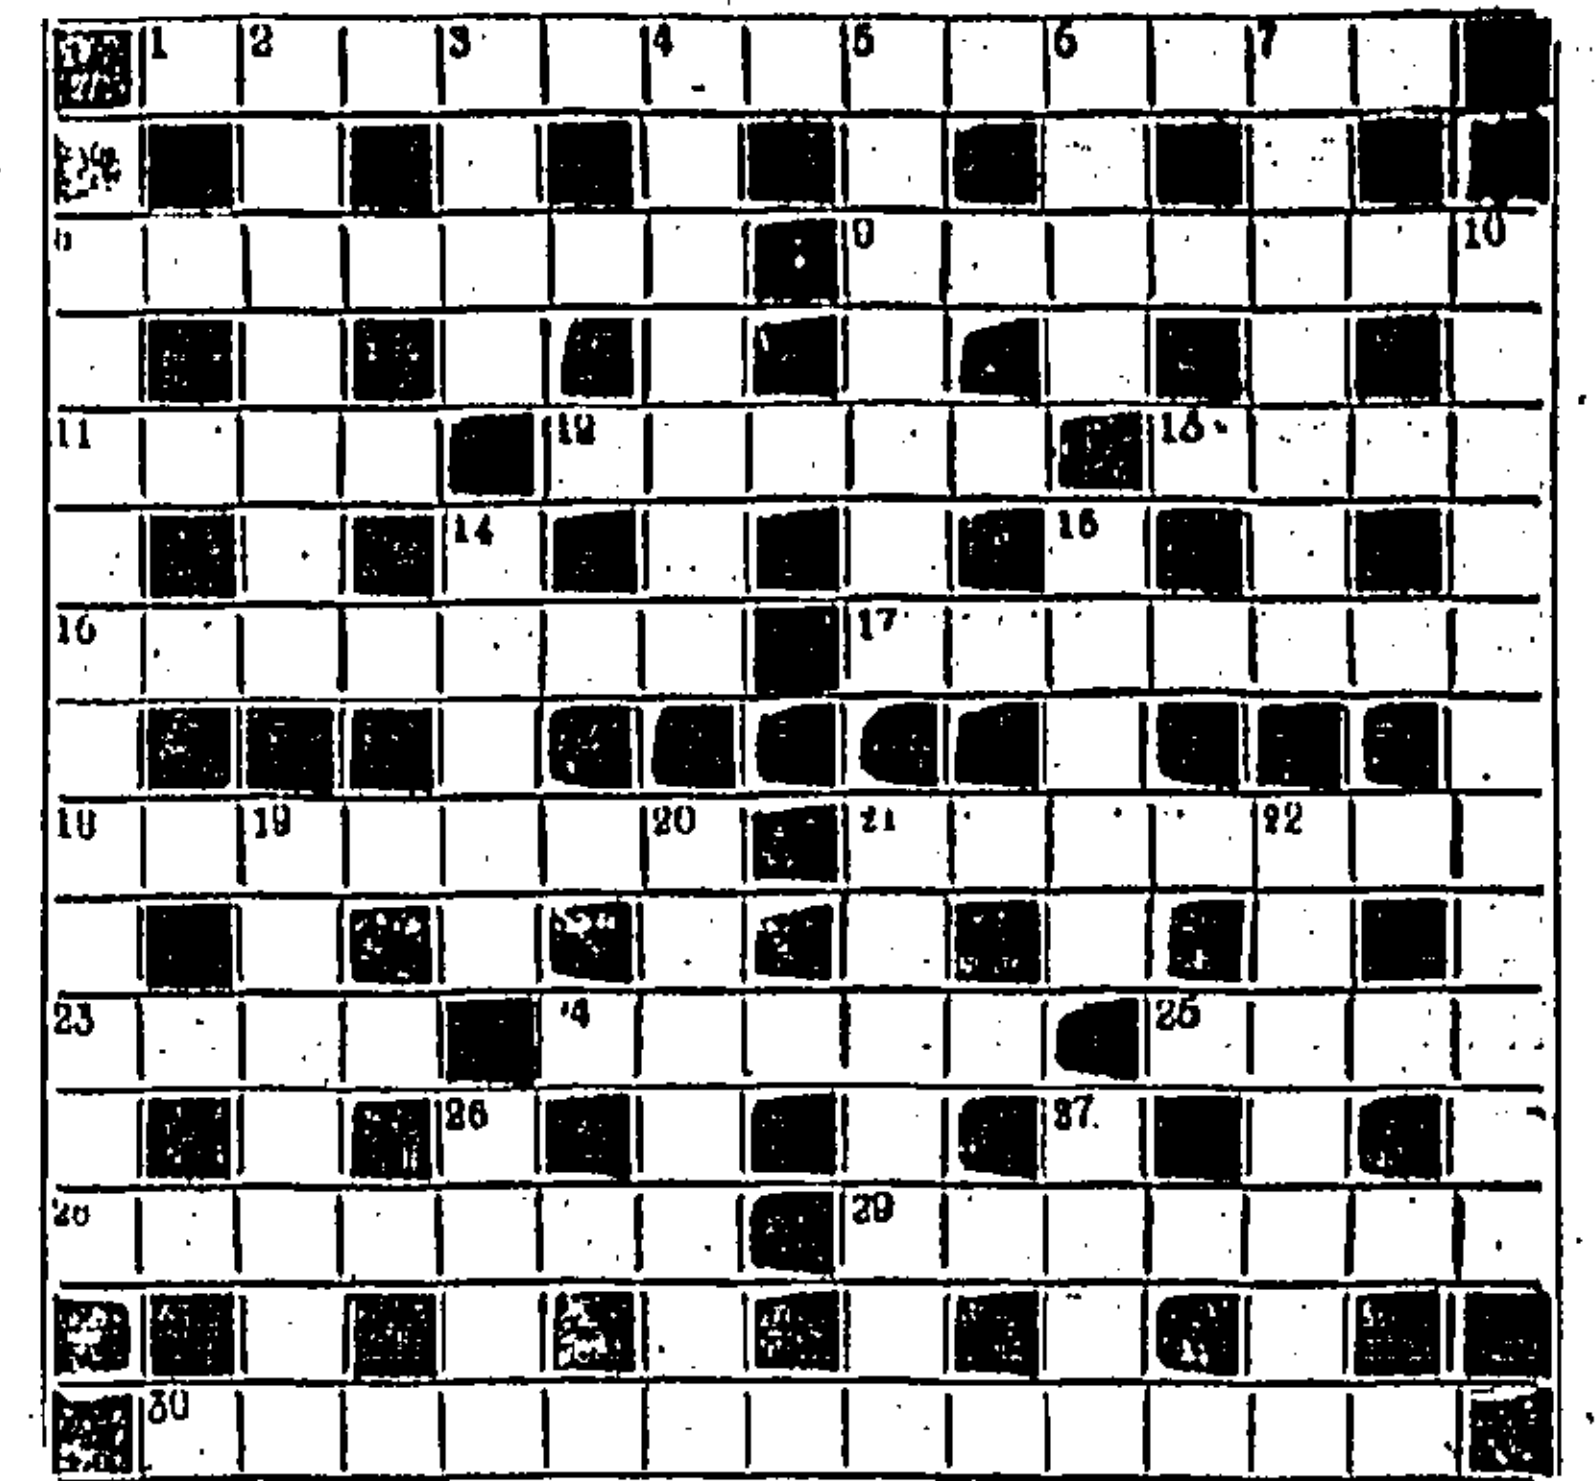

Many of the long coats are two or three inches shorter than the dresses worn beneath them. Dark coats are still worn over light dresses, and light coats over dark dresses.

Both jackets and long coats are often sleeveless, with small shoulder capes, or the jackets may have short sleeves over short or long sleeved frocks.

The long coats are usually straight in effect, with the fullness achieved by means of laces or pleats near the hem. Fullness on some of the more dressy effects is achieved by a wide variety of means. The rayon design is used very effectively, usually with a narrow sash to tie behind; godets, set very low, are seen, and all manner of pleats.

Hats are novel. A large beehive shape has appeared several times with beach frocks; another new hat is boat-shaped, and a third rather resembles the headgear worn by William Tell.

The Hongkong Telegraph

MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 26, 1932.

THE WHITE SCOURGE

Ceylon, like Hongkong, finds tuberculosis one of its biggest health problems, but, although the death-rate from the disease is still very high, some mitigation of the evil has been taking place in recent years. The causes for the better state of affairs are several, but amongst others the establishment of an Anti-Tuberculosis Institute, with consequent better diagnosis and earlier recognition, is to be noted. The general and progressive improvement of the sanitary condition of Colombo is also a factor. A further aid has been the appointment of a whole-time inspector to deal with insanitary buildings in the city, and the action taken by him to render fit for habitation a large number of dwellings (over four thousand from 1925 to 1930) is reported to have contributed very materially to the reduction in the incidence of the disease.

In an official report on the disease, the Medical Officer of Ceylon says tuberculosis is a problem not only to the sanitarian and the social worker but, owing to its intimate and inseparable association with economic and social factors, such as industrialism, wages, unemployment, poverty, housing, etc., it has become a national problem of the greatest importance and complexity to the State. In spite of the great strides taken in the West in matters of sanitation and public health, the disease has not been completely wiped out yet, but still continues to levy a terrible toll of lives, being more deadly and expensive in its effect than war. Sanitary progress alone has not been sufficient to attack it.

also to be taken into account in dealing with this problem if we are to make more rapid progress in fighting it. The disease is of world-wide prevalence; between the years 1918 to 1927 it has been estimated that 40 millions have died of tuberculosis in the various countries of the world. In India over six millions are said to be affected by the disease, and that over a million die annually. An astounding price to pay for the infringement of Nature's simple laws. For wherever man has departed from the natural and simple ways of life and has created for himself an artificial environment, tuberculosis has arisen as the avenger to exact full payment. In every city and town of the civilized world where there is industrialism, crowding together of human beings, sweated labour, low wages, unemployment, alcoholism, poverty, bad housing, etc., tuberculosis thrives and spreads and from the cities the surrounding villages become gradually infected.

If in countries where great progress and reforms have been made in the sanitary, social, economic and educational spheres the disease is still regarded as a scourge, what devastation must it cause in countries where such reforms are still in the primitive stages or not so advanced! The disease being ordinarily one of fairly long duration, its victims drop off one by one unnoticed, and its ravages do not strike the imagination as do the more rapidly operating epidemic diseases such as cholera, small-pox or plague, which though more dreaded actually cause less destruction, less suffering and less expense. Owing to this fact neither the State nor the people treat the problem of tuberculosis as a matter of urgent and prime importance, and one that should be fought with all the resources and means at their command. Ceylon is doing something in the way of definite war on the disease, and it surely behoves the authorities in Hongkong to keep a vigilant watch on the dread scourge.

Exchanging Art Treasures.

The efforts to raise the ban upon the lending overseas of paintings in the British Museum and National Gallery display the desire of British people to make it possible for foreign countries to organize for their people exhibitions of old masters drawn from various countries. Such exhibitions have been held in London to the great delight of many people. As London art galleries contain a large number of old Italian, Dutch, Flemish, and Spanish masters, any other country will be handicapped in the holding similar exhibitions unless the present law forbidding the loan of pictures from London galleries is amended. International reciprocity in this field is indeed extremely desirable. Having enjoyed its benefits and having lately collected in London from every corner of the world the treasures of the East for the exhibition of Persian art, it is difficult to see how Britain can very well refuse a favour which it has already accepted from other countries. Yet the House of Lords expressed itself unwilling to concede these powers to the trustees of the British Museum and the National Gallery. Indeed, the trustees apparently turned down the Government's offer. The reasons advanced, however, seem singularly unconvincing. If the risk entailed in the transport of a painting by an old master is really so great, then international exhibitions cannot be held at all, for no nation can be asked to risk losing the irreplaceable. The London exhibitions, however, furnish an answer; both Holland and Italy were anxious to be pioneers in such international exhibitions. If a painting could go safely by sea from Rome to London and back again, a similar painting from London to Rome

He congratulated them on their progress and presented them with one of his own compositions. He expressed the hope that he might hear them again next year, and that in the meantime, their membership would steadily increase.

The health bulletin for Eastern ports for the week ended September 17, shows the following cases of infectious diseases and deaths therefrom: Plague, Bombay 3 cases 3 deaths; Calcutta 17 cases 5 deaths; From-Penn 1 case 1 death, Saigon 1 case 2 deaths, Amoy 31 cases 10 deaths, Canton 1 case 2 deaths, Nanking 13 cases 1 death, Shanghai 47 cases 6 deaths. Small-pox: Alexandria 5 cases 1 death, Basrah 1 case 1 death, Bombay 5 cases 4 deaths, Madras 6 cases, Pondicherry 3 cases 3 deaths, Saigon 1 case 2 deaths. Typhus; Port Said 1 case.

For originality of theme, excellence of production and good acting, "Devil's Lottery," now showing at the King's Theatre, is to be commended. Ellsland has the main role, and it is sufficient to say that she gives of her best and thus contributes largely to the success of the film. The casting generally is admirable, with the comedy parts well handled by Victor MacLagen and Beryl Mercer. The story revolves round a week-end party which a newspaper Peer, winner of the Derby, gives at his castle to the lucky holders of Calcutta Sweep winning tickets. All manner of people figure among the guests, and a murder and other complications, to say nothing of romance, are amongst the developments. Well worth seeing. The supporting films are also of much interest, making up a really excellent programme.

promise proposed by the trustees of the British galleries, that only loans of works by British artists should be allowed, hardly commends itself. There is at least equally great interest in the works of non-British artists in British galleries. Hence the interdiction of loans should be lifted from all types of pictures if the desired advance is to be made toward international co-operation in so praiseworthy an activity.

DO YOU SPEAK AMERICAN?

By JOHN BLUNT

It is a rather curious fact that while much American slang gains currency in England, it is not generally realised that the use of English itself is undergoing great changes in America.

And yet this is true to such an extent that the language of even cultivated Americans has a slightly exotic flavour, while certain words are positively incomprehensible without the context.

Who, for instance, could tell that a "commuter" was a season-ticket holder—that is to say, one who commutes his daily fare for another system of payment; that "rare," as applied to meat, means undone (doubtless from raw); that "wild," also applied to meat, means rank—"before you cook a possum you must cut out the wild meat"; that an "interne" is the resident physician of a hospital; that a "tuxedo" is a dinner-jacket; that a "transient" is a person who makes a brief stay in an hotel; that "truck farming" is market gardening.

"Good-looking" Suit.

Certain adjectives have developed new shades of meaning. Thus a "homely" woman may mean simply a woman whose conduct commends itself. On the other hand, "good-looking" may be used of things as well as of persons—"what a good-looking suit you're wearing," while "ordinary," in its application to people, implies common. The derivation of this last word is simple: ordinary equals common and common equals vulgar. Furthermore, "dumb" may be stupid and "mean" may be nasty—"he gave me a mean glance."

Some American terms are at first very misleading to an Englishman. To quote the chairman of a company is its "president," while its managing director is its "chairman." Again, a "cracker" is a biscuit, but a "biscuit" is a scone.

Yes, the English language in America is undoubtedly taking on a national tinge, and it is interesting to see the new significance which some words have acquired. For example, to "despise" is frequently only to dislike. Again, as a provincialism, "lunch" may be supper, and all over the country a "workhouse" is a prison for minor offences.

But the most elastic word in America is "fix;" it may mean endless different things according to the context. You "fix" the dinner, meaning that you prepare it, and you "fix" the stove on which it is cooked, meaning that you mend it. And perhaps if the guest for whom you have done all this annoys you, you may finish by "fixing" him—which means that he has to be mended also. A most useful word.

"Most Everybody Says."

Sometimes the Americans use longer words than we do, and sometimes shorter. There is no rule. Thus, while a tap is a "faucet," gum "mucilage," and a lift an "elevator," yet railway sleepers are "ties," strawberries "berries," tout court; (raspberries, however, are usually referred to as "red raspberries," as there is a somewhat tasteless variety of black raspberry); a full stop is a "period," and almost is frequently shortened to "most"—"most everybody was present."

But if there is no custom governing the choice between long and short words, it does look as if the Americans had rather a fondness for using two or more words where we would use one. A woman does not say that she teaches school; you do not watch football, but a "football game"; a private in the army is an "enlisted man"; and in a restaurant one's fair companion is likely to discuss "crab meat" and "sea food."

It is obvious that certain American usages have been determined by special circumstances. The country having been, for the most part, opened up by railways, it is natural that a railway should be called a "railroad," for in the early days it fulfilled both functions. And as the word servant has a derogatory significance in democratic America, it is natural that a servant girl should be a "hired girl."

For many words employed by us the Americans have substitutes, which, while perfectly comprehensible, nevertheless sound strange to English ears. Here follow some specimens. A sitting-room is a "living-room"; a lodger is a "roomer"; a charwoman is a "scrub-woman"; petrol is "gasoline," shortened to "gas"; a flat is an "apartment"; a holiday is a "vacation"; goloshes are "rubbers"; insects are "bugs"; a limited company is an "incorporated" company; situated is "located"; an undertaker—a most important personage in America, where practically every corpse is cremated—is a "mortician"; and a veterinary surgeon is a "veterinarian."

Of course, many Americans still use the English forms of such words, but, nevertheless, the trend towards divergence is strongly marked. Here are some old examples: the last letter of the alphabet is pronounced "zee"; aluminium is spelt "aluminum"; a small cup of black coffee is a "demi-tasse" (a term unknown in France); and a "drug store" is not only a chemist's shop, but a "lunch counter," a "soda fountain" and a bookshop.

Your Sophisticated Hats.

Just as we probably use certain words with frequency that would sound rather singular to an American, so do Americans use certain words with frequency which are of relatively rare occurrence in England. Politicians are always "scoring" their opponents, and the head of any organisation, from the army and navy down, is the "ranking" member of it. Such terms as "moron," "debutante," and "relax" are fifty times more common in America than in England; while "sophisticated," in its special meaning of smart and modern, is beloved by advertisers. It is even applied to such inanimate objects as ladies' hats, though how a hat can be sophisticated is quite a puzzle.

Slang is a fluid and self-conscious thing in every country, but language despite alien origins, is an autochthonous growth, representing the imponderable genius of the soil. And thus it may be supposed that in centuries to come the English of the United States will diverge more and more from the English of England and become a juster mirror of that something unique in the psychology of her people. It is quite to be desired, for so do nations give expression to their personality.

THIS WAR FEVER

By General Edward Kelly, B.O.

We foresee complications resulting from the eagerness on the part of adventurous Australians, who want to go and fight in the Paraguay-Bolivian "war."

These Anzacs don't mind which side they're on, so long as they can be in a dust up.

In the thick of the fight the Paraguayan Australian colonel would sight the Bolivian Australian colonel, and yell, "Well, stone the crow! If it ain't old Blaney!"

And the war would be held up on that particular sector, and in a few days the front line would be turned into a vast two-up school.

There will be Australian reunions all over the place.

"What you fighting on the Bolivian side for, Blaney?"

"Strow! Am I? I thought I was with the other mob. How's the grub on your side?"

And a message is sent by the Bolivian Australian general to the Paraguayan Australian general—

"Dear Splinter—Would you mind retiring about four hundred yards this way, and I will

BRITISH ABOLITION OF SLAVERYINTENSIVE CENTENARY CAMPAIGN.

The centenary of the abolition of slavery in the British possessions is to be celebrated in London and throughout the country next year.

Despite the strenuous and enthusiastic endeavours of the leaders of the movement in the past hundred years, it is estimated that the total number of men, women, and children still held in bondage, as property, exceeds five millions.

While it is admitted that many are well treated, the vast majority are declared to be living, in a state of misery, degradation, and oppression, and thousands are alleged to be victims of forms of cruelty no less terrible than the flogging, mutilations, amputations, outrages, brandings, and tortures of the plantation days of the Southern States of America and the British West Indies.

The Anti-Slavery and Aborigines Protection Society is appealing, through the centenary, to all civilised nations to ratify and carry out, by means of effective machinery, the conventions framed by the League of Nations for the total abolition of slavery in all its forms.

New and interesting methods are to be adopted to make the centenary a concrete means of revitalising the spirit which animated the pioneers of the anti-slavery crusade.

Churches' Part.

The churches are setting out to play a not unimportant role in making the commemoration worthy of the cause it represents.

A lead is being given by the Archbishops of Canterbury and York in bringing to the notice of the nation, both at home and abroad, the significance and value of the celebration.

On the 29th of this month—the ninety-ninth anniversary of the death of William Wilberforce, the great abolitionist—they are publishing an appeal to all Christian people to support the objects which it is the purpose of the centenary to promote.

In the past twelve months much hard work has been done in preparation for the celebration. Many meetings have been held in all the large cities and towns of the kingdom at which the facts of the existing slavery conditions have been laid before the public.

Following the publication of the Archbishops' appeal a still more intensive campaign will be waged up to the time, next summer, when a great centenary gathering is to take place in London.

This will be attended by a galaxy of important personages representing every shade of religious and political view.

A somewhat striking feature of the commemoration will be that not a few of the descendants of the men who bore the brunt and burden of the struggle, in its initial stages, a hundred years ago, will be found still fighting for the cause which their forebears espoused.

In addition to the main demonstration, the intention to make the centenary embrace a wide area has led to the planning of several schemes.

"Anti-Slavery Sunday."

There are now being obtained in advance from ministers, clergy, and others all over the country promises to preach upon the question of slavery on the last Sunday in July next year—a day which is to be known as "anti-slavery Sunday." This is looked upon as of importance inasmuch as it will carry propaganda to those outlying districts which otherwise it would be difficult to reach.

It is hoped, between now and the date of the centenary, to enrol at least ten thousand associate members of the Anti-Slavery Society in this and other countries, and also to secure the creation of committees, here and in foreign countries, to co-operate with Great Britain in the task of obtaining the official adherence of all nations to the programme of the Society.

America has made a quick response to this proposal, and already it is authoritatively stated, has set up a strong committee to act in the manner suggested.

In order to assist to secure the reforms aimed at, the Anti-Slavery Society proposes to raise a Special Centenary Fund of £20,000. Should this amount be obtained, and the prospects are favourable—then the aid of certain of the British universities will be sought in a direction which is likely to prove of permanent usefulness.

The project is that part of this money shall be devoted to the creation of lectureships, under which some eminent authority shall deliver a lecture each year upon the possibilities and the progress of "Backward Races."

The name of Abraham Lincoln, who freed the negroes of America, may be similarly honoured, and Cambridge University is mentioned as possibly the seat of learning which will, in this way, perpetuate the memory of the great American statesman.

LATEST TYPE OF
REFRIGERATORBRITISH MACHINE OF LOW PRICE

Refrigeration by flame may sound paradoxical, but it is this principle which is applied to the latest type of Electrolux refrigerator which is now being put on the local market by Messrs. Shevan, Tomes & Co.

Ammonia, heated either by kerosene, gas or electricity, expands and is passed through to the cabinet and in turns absorbs all the heat therein. This remarkable domestic machine has other interesting features. It is the lowest priced cabinet refrigerator in the world, being sold in Hongkong for $300. It is British made, has no movable parts, is motorless, silent and is made in two models, either air cooling or water cooling.

The portable model is especially suitable for yachts, launches, flats, and hospitals.

There is no doubt that this new type of refrigerator will meet a much-felt want in Hongkong. A fresh consignment has just arrived in the Colony.

MINERS TRAPPED

ONE FOUND IN DEAD
MAN'S ARMS

One man was found dead with an unconscious comrade in his arms, following a sudden rush of gas—in which three men were trapped—at Speedwell Colliery, East Bristol, recently.

The dead man was Jack Emery, a fireman of Chester Park, Fishponds, Bristol, a married man with three children. His companion is Isaac Kendall, of Speedwell-road, Fishponds.

The third man, Frank Plummer, of Bristol-road, Bedminster, was rescued after being missing for several hours.

When the men were missed, at the afternoon change of shift, Dr. Cyril Barnard, junior, of Fishponds, Mr. Daniel Jones, manager of the pit, and Mr. H. Liddall, H. M. Inspector of Mines, went down with a rescue party of twenty men.

From the position in which the dead man was found there is little doubt that he rescued Kendall and was overcome when trying to reach Plummer.

The rescue party, who used special gas masks for the first time, had to force their way through six yards of fallen coal to reach Plummer.

DISARMAMENT

DEMAND THAT ALLIES
REDEEM PLEDGES

At a meeting of the Executive Committee of the League of Nations' Union, held in London, to discuss the Union's policy on Disarmament, amongst those present were Viscount Cecil, Professor Gilbert Murray, Lord Eustace Percy, Sir Norman Angell, and Vice-Admiral Allen.

A resolution was passed unanimously welcoming the progress already recorded by the Disarmament Conference at Geneva, but calling upon the British Government to take decisive action to redeem the pledges given by the Allies to Germany at Versailles that the disarming of the enemy countries would be followed by a general reduction of armaments throughout the world.

In particular, the committee urges the general abolition of all weapons forbidden to Germany by the Peace Treaties, and publication in full of all future proceedings of the Conference with a view to defeating the intrigues and propaganda of the private armament manufacturers.

For having committed a breach of his licence by having carried salt, Kwok Yung, a junk foh, was fined $50 by the Hon. Comdr. Hole, at the Marine Court this morning. The mistress of three cargo boats were each fined $10 or one week's imprisonment, for having anchored their craft inshore at the Wing Lok Street Wharf. Lee Sam-lung, the steerman of a junk, was fined $25 or in default three weeks' imprisonment, for having left port during prohibited hours.

which the great abolitionists were associated, namely—London University (Thomas Fowell Buxton), Hull (William Wilberforce), Birmingham (Joseph Sturge), and Edinburgh or Glasgow (David Livingstone).

The name of Abraham Lincoln, who freed the negroes of America, may be similarly honoured, and Cambridge University is mentioned as possibly the seat of learning which will, in this way, perpetuate the memory of the great American statesman.

WINS "OPEN"

The Hongkong University Swimming Club held its first aquatic meeting at North Point on Saturday afternoon in the presence of a large gathering, among whom was Sir William Hornell, the Vice-Chancellor of the University, and the Hon. Mr. R. H. Kewell.

Entries for the thirteen events on the card were full, and the keenest competition prevailed. After the swimming events had concluded, a water polo match between the past and present students of the University and the Army was staged, the game ending in a draw of two goals each.

At the conclusion of the sports, Sir William Hornell distributed the prizes, after congratulating the winners and the committee on the success of the meet.

Hockey
Y.M.C.A. BEATEN BY
ODD GOALBorderers' Nine Goals
Against Indians

At King's Park on Saturday afternoon, the Y.M.C.A. hockey first eleven suffered a defeat at the hands of the Royal Army Medical Corps by three goals to one.

A feature of the game between the "A" Company of the South Wales Borderers and the Hongkong Indian Mule Corps on the Marina ground on Saturday was the total of fifteen goals registered.

The Borderers altogether netted nine times, and the Indians six. The first was productive of seven goals, the Borderers claiming four. In the second half the Borderers added another five to their tally, while the Indians netted three more.

R.A.S.C. Beat R.A.O.C. In a hockey match yesterday at Kowloon, the Royal Army Service Corps defeated the Royal Army Ordnance Corps 4 to nil in a keenly contested game. The score at half time was 3-0.

To-day's Match. A match has been arranged for this afternoon between the Hongkong Hockey Club seconds and the Central British Association to be played on the Club ground at King's Park at 5.15 p.m.

The teams will be as follows: Hongkong Hockey Club seconds: E. Moses, L. A. R. Duncan, L. F. Nicholson (capt), G. F. Rees, E. Lowe, A. M. J. McIntyre, D. Kilbee, W. A. N. Nowers, D. B. Evans, S. Fox, and A. N. Other. Referee: A. A. Dan.

Central British Association: G. Duncan; L. G. Tippet, N. Whitley; J. King, S. MacNider, J. E. Wilson; D. Gregory, E. MacNider, C. C. Francis, Capt., W. Johnson, M. Wells. Reserve: D. Phillips.

BOWLERS IN NORTH. Hongkong Players Lose to Eastern Shanghai.

Shanghai, Sept. 24. In the Interport Lawn Bowls Tournament the Eastern Zone four beat Hong Kong by 19 to 10, after playing an extra end.

The officials of the Hong Kong Bowling Club were present at the match. The teams gave a fine exhibition of bowls to-day, and it was anybody's game till the very last end.—Reuter.

INTER-DEPARTMENTAL
Revenue and Small Units
Score Wins.

Three matches in the lawn bowls inter-departmental competition were played yesterday on the Craigie-kover Club green.

The Revenue Department defeated the Police (Scots) 19 shots to 18. The Small Units were defeated by Sanitary 22 shots to 21 and the P.W.D. "A" defeated the Senior Clerical Staff 25 shots to 15.

Results: P.W.D. "A" Snr. Clerical Staff. Rose Davidson. Strango Randle. Fraser 25 Maughan. Holland 25 Police (Scots.) 18. Tuck. F. Tallon. McLeod. W. Ward Hunter. A. Grimmitt 19 Mair 18. Sanitary "A" Small Units. Lockhart Holdman. C. Strange Sutherland. Eccleshall Hall. Gregory 22 Moss 21.

CRICKET COMMENCES.

Indian Seconds Win First
Match of the Season.

In a low scoring match at Sookun-poo on Saturday, the Indian R.C. second eleven defeated the Royal Army Service Corps by 55 runs.

Batting first, the Indians could only total 78 runs, towards which A. R. Saffed contributed 32. Whitley and Gray wore the most successful bowlers for the Army team, each capturing five wickets for 19 and 26 runs respectively.

The military side, however, were soon in difficulties when facing the Indian attack, and were all dismissed for the small total of 21 runs. M. R. Abbas, the Indian captain, struck a good patch and returned the fine analysis of six wickets for only five runs.

THE MEAD SHIELD.

Two Players Tie for Top
Place at Kowloon.

Two players tied for the first place in the annual golf festival held at the Kowloon Golf Club by members of the Kowloon Cricket Club. W. A. Stewart and S. Jex each returned net scores of 72 and their names will be inscribed on the trophy, but they had to play off for the first prize.

The best leading scores were as follows: W. A. Stewart 81—9=72. S. Jex 87—15=72. B. T. Fischer 82—18=74. H. W. Page 91—14=77. H. O. O. 100—18=78.

At King's Park on Saturday, the Argyle team defeated the Kowloon Rugby Club by three points to nil in a seven-a-side match. The game was very scrappy, and the heavier weight of the military team triumphed. The Kowloon side was not at full strength, their forwards especially being very weak in attack.

Berlin, Sept. 24. In the World's Professional Lawn Tennis Championship matches the Frenchman Martin Plaa beat "Big Bill" Tilden, 6-0, 7-5, 8-0.—Reuter's Special Service.

Colonel C. R. U. Saville, general staff officer to His Excellency Major General J. W. Sandilands, left for Home on Saturday on the P. & O. s.s. Ranchi. His successor will be Lieutenant-Colonel T. P. Norworthy who has been posted to India.

The Wah Nam Athletic Association's new branch was formally opened at the St. Paul Girls' School at 5 p.m. on Saturday afternoon. Mr. Chan, the P.A. chairman, presided.

SOUTH CHINA IMPRESS AGAINST ARGYLLS
KOWLOON FIND NAVY IRRESISTIBLE

BORDERERS DISPLAY GOOD FORM

(By "Veritas").

South China 1
(Lee Wai-tong (2) Fung King-cheung and Cheung Shu-hong).

Argyll & Sutherland Highlanders 1
(McTavish).

If any of the big crowd which gathered at Caroline Hill on Saturday to witness the South China first eleven contest the Argyll and Sutherland Highlanders in a friendly match, expected the Chinese to display signs of staleness after a year of almost continuous football, they were doomed to disappointment.

In their first local appearance after return from the southern tour, South China exhibited high class football and were clearly superior to the Argylls, who, finding themselves well beaten in the finer points of the game, turned to kick and rush tactics which proved equally fruitless against the polished team work of the Chinese.

That South China are going to provide very formidable opposition to all of the teams participating in the Hongkong league this year was on Saturday made perfectly obvious. Their well defined and cleverly executed methods of attack kept the Argylls in a constant state of alarm. There was not a discernible weakness, either fore or aft.

LEE WAI-TONG.

Lee Wai-tong, outstanding as the brainiest inside forward in local football, gave a very impressive demonstration of opening-up work. He clearly flummoxed the Argyll defence with his deft footwork and passes of well concealed direction. With Ip Pak-wa on the wing, the left section of the Chinese attack worked like a machine and it was this section which formed the mainspring of the Chinese attack. Fung King-cheung led the forwards with vigour, though he could have opened up the game to some advantage.

The intermediate line, methodical and relentless, neither allowed the Argylls any rope, nor forgot their own forwards. Wong Mei-shun played brilliantly in the pivotal position and had the full measure of Wylie, who last year scored so profitably for the Highlanders.

Li Tin-sang was by far the outstanding back on the field, his clearances with both feet as well as his head, leaving Tung Sik-hung, the successor of Pau Kung-pak, who scarcely put a wrong foot and held Hughes and McTavish in the hollow of his hands.

For two-thirds of the game the Argylls played good football, pitting skill and brains against the intelligent play of the opposition, but one or two adverse decisions on the part of the referee influenced them in losing their heads and in the closing stages they not only indulged in definitely inferior football, but practised tactics which hardly reflected credit on them.

BLUNDER IN TACTICS.

Why Lamont and Campbell, who were obviously the source of greatest danger to the Chinese defence were so neglected after the first 15 minutes was a source of wonder to me. These two worked with an understanding which did not compare at all badly with that exhibited by their vis-a-vis, but they were robbed of the opportunity of turning that understanding to useful account.

Wylie worked hard but did not receive adequate support from the half-backs whose constructive work did not compare too favourably with that displayed by the South China intermediates.

Hay and Docherty in the rear line were vigorous in defence and performed extraordinarily well in keeping the opposition out during the first half. Their kicking, however, left a lot to be desired, direction and placements invariably being aimless.

Hastie kept a clever goal, and made two spectacular clearances from point blank shots.

GIFT GOAL.

There was plenty of speed in the exchanges; a few curious decisions by the referee which the crowd apparently failed to notice; one or two equally good decisions to which thinking Lee Wai-tong was off-side, calmly kicked the ball back to him for that opportunist to place deftly in the net for a legitimate goal. Lee also netted with a perfectly taken penalty shot, whilst Fung King-cheung and Cheung Shu-hong were responsible for the other two. Wylie replied on behalf of the Argylls in the second half.

RESERVES DRAW.

Prior to this match, the second strings of the Argylls and South China enjoyed a friendly the result being a draw, both sides scoring twice.

Pau Ka-ping, erstwhile first eleven custodian, now playing centre forward for the South China reserves, netted one and Yeung Sin-yick the other, whilst Maxwell and King responded for the visitors.

KOWLOON'S TRIAL WITH NAVY

TWELVE GOALS: NINE TO NAVY

Kowloon's trial match against the Royal Navy on Saturday demonstrated that the mainlanders will have to develop teamwork pretty quickly if they are to be a side to be reckoned with. Individually, the players, particularly the newcomers showed much promise.

The Navy ran out winners by nine goals to three, after leading 6-2 at half-time. The ball was in the Kowloon net ten seconds from the kick-off, the goalkeeper, not having had time to reach his goal from a cross-over, but when Kowloon came back with a clever run and Watkins obtained a smart equaliser, a good game seemed likely.

Kowloon grew more and more ragged, however, and suffering the loss of London, the left back, who injured a knee, the smart Navy forwards swept through again and again. Melens scored a brilliant goal for Kowloon to bring the position to 3-2 in favour of the Navy, but afterwards it became evident that the superior combination of the Navy, who played capital football from a start to finish, would tell its tale.

The second half was more keenly contested than a substitute for London was permitted but the Navy were still much the better side, though the Navy goal had narrow escapes. The Navy fielded a capital workmanlike side, well capable of holding its own with the best of the Colony's sides. The left wing was left fairly open and Rawson and his colleague made full use of the opportunities thus offered.

Kowloon were weak at back and the half-backs, a hard-working trio, were inclined to hold on to the ball too long. Watkins, who filled the centre-half berth, and will probably be right-half, in the league side, made a good impression.

The most encouraging part of the side was forward where Melens, the centre-forward, is likely to prove one of the captures of the season. Good ball control, a scoring shot in either foot, and ability to keep his line moving, marked him out from the beginning. Hill, at inside right, fitted in nicely, though he would do well occasionally, in his passing, to do other than the obvious thing. His goal was a capital header. An attentive partner would make a world of difference to Blake, the left-winger, who showed considerable ability in the second half.

Second Teams.

The Navy's Second Eleven had earlier played Kowloon 2nd in a friendly trial game and had won 4-0. Very smart goal-keeping prevented a heavier score. The Kowloon backs were sound enough, but the half-backs and forwards were too much at sixes and sevens.

RUGBY PRACTICE

HONGKONG PLAYERS TO START TO-DAY

THE attention of members of the Hongkong Football Club is drawn to the fact that rugby practice starts to-day on the Club ground, when it is hoped there will be a full turn out. Practices will continue every Monday and Wednesday throughout the season.

C.S.C.C. in Search of A Coach

FOR THEIR YOUNG CRICKETERS

BETTER FIELDING NEEDED

AWARE of the necessity of training their young cricketers if their game is to be of real value later on, the Civil Service Cricket Club is asking for a volunteer as coach.

The appeal is made in the committee's report which has just been circulated, and among this, and other comments on the club's cricket, is reference to the poor fielding displayed last year, resultant upon the players not being on their toes.

The following extracts are taken from the report: During the season 42 members resigned (which includes 13 members having left the Colony), and 17 members failed to comply with Rule 37 and consequently lost their membership. Of these eight left the Colony without giving the required notice, whilst 24 gentlemen joined the club including five rejoining members. The membership of the Club on the 31st July, 1932, was 187; this includes six life members and subscribing members.

CRICKET. The past season was very disappointing, the Club dropping from 3rd to last place in the league. This was chiefly due to failure in the batting, as with the exception of Mr. J. E. Richardson, no one had an aggregate exceeding 200.

Of the seven league matches played, 1 was won, 1 tied, and 5 lost; while of the 9 friendlies, 2 were won, 1 drawn, and 6 lost. We offer our congratulations to Messrs. J. E. Richardson and R. A. J. Simpson on heading the batting and bowling averages respectively.

The 2nd Eleven had a very poor season if our position in the League table is to be the standard by which we are to be judged; for the first time in the history of the Club we occupied the bottom position in the league, however, all our games were very enjoyable and the majority of them were very close finishes, and as we play mostly for the exercise to be obtained from the game our consideration is of secondary consideration.

League Matches: Played 10, Won 0, Lost 6, Drawn 4, Friendlies: Played 8, Won 3, Lost 2, Drawn 3. Mr. E. A. Wood and Mr. S. Randle head the batting and bowling average respectively and we accord them our congratulations.

POOR FIELDING.

The batting during the season was only fair, although several players' aggregate exceeded the 200 runs. The fielding was poor as the majority of the players failed to be on their toes from the moment the bowler commenced to deliver the ball. Mr. J. F. McGowan joined the select few that have scored a century for the club by a well played innings of 103 against the Police Recreation Club. Mr. A. E. Wood was a tower of strength to the team both in batting and fielding. Some of his innings during the season remind one of the days when he was at the top of his form. His league average, for the season under review was 37.12 runs for 10 innings, highest score being 64 not out, which placed him second in the league table of averages. We congratulate him on his successful season, and hope that the younger members of the club from now onwards will maintain Mr. Wood's standard of play.

VOLUNTEER-WANTED.

There are several young members of the Club that require to be taken in hand if their cricket is to be of real value later on.

"POMPEY" FALL AT HOME

LONDON TEAMS GOING STRONG

LITTLEWOOD NETS SIX GOALS

THERE were approximately 160,000 spectators at the five matches which were played in London.

T. Law of Chelsea raised a dramatic penalty against Newcastle United at Stamford Bridge. The Cup holders were lucky to secure the verdict by the only goal scored. The Arsenal beat Everton, the present holders of the championship, by a doubtful goal at Highbury, whilst Aston Villa scored a brilliant victory over Portsmouth at Fratton Park, winning one of the most thrilling games of the season.

On the Recreation Ground at Hanley, Port Vale scored a run-away victory over Chesterfield. S. C. Littlewood obtained six of the nine goals scored by the winners, five of them being in succession.

Holding performed the "hat trick" for Brentford, who were invincible against Newport at Somerton Park. —Our Own Correspondent.

recommended and it is hoped that during the ensuing season that such practice will not be so badly neglected as in the past.

The Tennis season under review, from a league point of view, was not a very successful one. The absence on leave of the Club's Single Champion, Mr. J. Barrow, was severely felt in league and friendly games. The "B" team scored 12 points out of a possible 22 and finished seventh. The "C" team fared much worse, winning only one and making two ties out of fourteen matches and finishing last in the league. In spite of this poor showing, plenty of enthusiasm was evident amongst the players which augurs well for the future.

BOWLS.

The activities of the Bowls Section have been restricted by the necessity of relaying the Green and resting it for a year. This has some effect on our bowlers as shown by their subdued enthusiasm for practice. Yet the Club is to be congratulated on the results generally obtained and the Green Ranger on the very passable rinks he supplied on the cricket practice ground. At one time both teams were serious competitors for the premier positions in the League, but fell away in the latter part of the season. Two of our members reached the quarter final and one the semi-final of the tournament.

CINEMA SCREENINGS.

NOTES SUPPLIED BY THE THEATRES

Rolling nautical extravaganza, "Splinters in the Navy" will bring waves of laughter to the Queen's Theatre shortly. Written round the famous Splinters Concert Party, the comedy story provides Sydney Howard, Britain's screen monarch of mirth, with a part worthy of his richly humorous talent.

Set aboard a battleship, the fun commences immediately friend Sydney is shown peacefully asleep in a hammock with the P.O. endeavouring to wake him, and continues to the final fade-out, showing a blissful, though somewhat battered Sydney accepting the Admiral's Challenge gun after winning a fight against the champion heavyweight of the Navy! It will blow your cares away.

"Devil's Lottery."

Her ardent literary ambition proved the stepping stone to fame for Elliana Landi, sensational screen artist whose latest Fox picture, "Devil's Lottery," is now playing at the King's Theatre. Deciding early in her career to become a playwright she joined a small repertoire company in England to obtain first-hand knowledge of the stage. As an actress who was an instant success and producers made her all kinds of flattering offers. Finally she was induced to play the leading role in "Storm." After the initial performance critics declared her a star and again offers began to pour in. But Miss Landi only turned a deaf ear and returned to stock for three years, during which period she wrote "The Helmers" and "Nellson." Deciding that she had absorbed all she could from the small stock company Miss Landi accepted the leading role in "Lavender Ladies" and "The Constant Nymph." Next she played the feminine lead in two silent films, "Clyde" and "Opposite Adolph Menjou in a French movie."

Her first American appearance was in the Broadway stage success "A Farewell To Arms," and her performance entered the Hollywood moguls into some spirited bidding for her services. It was with Fox Films that she finally signed and her first talking picture was "Body and Soul." "Always Goodbye," "Wicked," and "The Yellow Ticket" followed in rapid succession, and after a short visit to England she made her present vehicle, "Devil's Lottery." Miss Landi's historic success has not dimmed her literary ambition. Her latest book, "House For Sale," was recently published by an American publisher. In "Devil's Lottery" Miss Landi plays a woman of the world whose glamour brings shame to one man, death to another, understanding to a third and love to a fourth. She is supported by a sterling cast that includes Victor McLaglen, Alexander Kirkland, Paul Cavanagh, Barbara Weeks and Beryl Mercer. The production, directed by Sam Taylor, was adopted from Nialbo Bartley's successful novel.

"Sinners in the Sun."

Assigned her most important role since she left a social career to enter pictures as a Paramount contract player, Adrienne Ames recently abruptly terminated a New York vacation to hurry back to Hollywood to support Chester Morris in "Sinners in the Sun." Miss Ames, who has appeared in "24 Hours," "The Road to Reno," "Girls about Town" and "Husband's Holiday" was selected for one of the featured parts in the filmization of Mildred Cram's magazine story.

"Sinners in the Sun," a story of modern life among those in moderate circumstances revolves around the efforts of two young sweethearts to marry and enjoy life above their stations before accepting each other. It comes to the King's Theatre Thursday next. Adapted to the screen by Vincent Lawrence and Waldemar Young, "Sinners in the Sun" will mark Morris' second role under his new Paramount contract. He is currently appearing in the all-star cast of "The Miracle Man." Miss Lombard was featured most recently in "No One Man."

"All Quiet on the Western Front." Explosives enough to demolish a city were used in the greatest battle scenes ever filmed in "All Quiet on the Western Front." Universal's picture of Erich Maria Remarque's masterpiece of the war, which is showing at the Oriental Theatre to-day. More than 20,000 pounds of black powder, and six tons of dynamite were used to give the effect of shell fire and mine explosions. Six thousand bombs were planted and exploded on the battlefield covering twenty acres of land on the Irvine ranch, near Los Angeles. Five hundred shells of various sizes were sent screaming and whistling through the air, actually fired from guns, to give the proper sound effect of shells in flight. These shells, of course, were fired far over the heads of the soldiers participating in the scenes. The effect of landing and bursting shells was gained by planted bombs exploded by electricity at the proper moment.

BORDERERS SURPRISE SOUTH CHINA

Caroline Hill yesterday, the first eleven winning by the odd goal in five.

South China, without the services of Lee Wai-tong suffered in team work and the forward line was easily held by the virulent Borderers' rear line.

Pallister was by far the most dangerous of the visiting forwards and continually worried the Chinese defence. His two goals were the reward of pertinacity.

On the whole both teams gave a sound display, the Borderers giving sufficient indication of their strength to warrant close attention in the league this year. Mullance and Morrison proved a fine pair of backs and Johnson, apart from his errors in carrying the ball, proved safe between the sticks.

RESERVES ALSO WIN.

The Borderers' reserves proved stronger in every department to the South China team and should have won by a more pronounced margin than 1-11.

The first half was blank, though both goals had narrow escapes, and in the closing stages only the grim work of the Chinese defenders kept the score down to a single goal, registered by Bebbington after 15 minutes play. Weak finishing by the Chinese forwards robbed them of equalising opportunities and before the close the soldiers had again assumed the ascendancy and were attacking strongly but without result when the final whistle blew.

The following players have been selected to represent the Radio Sports Club in a friendly match arranged against the Chinese Athletic 2nd eleven "B" at Happy Valley, 5.30 p.m. on Wednesday:—
A. B. Kitchell, R. Ayock, J. Bowen, H. Bux, H. Hassan, L. B. Kitchell, J. H. Tavares, Chan Chun Ip, F. Elms, A. Elms J. Tavares. Res. J. Bowen and W. Kew.

NEW CLUBHOUSE OPENED

RED LETTER DAY AT THE K. C. C.

HAPPY FUNCTION

Saturday, the day on which the new Club House of the Kowloon Cricket Club was opened by Mrs. Southern, wife of H.E. the Officer Administering the Government. Hon. Mr. W. T. Southern, C.M.G., was a red-letter day in the annals of the Club.

Mr. Lindsell, in welcoming Mrs. Southern, said: "Ladies and Gentlemen—I will only detain you for a moment. It is my great privilege and pleasure to welcome you Mrs. Southern, and to assure you of our deep appreciation of the honour you have done us by consenting to open our new Clubhouse. I will ask you now to accept the presentation key at the hands of our architect, Mr. A. R. F. Raven, and armed therewith to declare the building open and to lead us into our new home."

Declaring the Club-house open, Mrs. Southern said: "There is probably no one less qualified than myself to open this Clubhouse, for I am, alas! no use at games. But while acutely conscious of my deficiencies I am cheered by two facts—one that your genial Chairman, who has presided over your destinies so successfully for eight years, is a very good friend of mine—and secondly, I yield to none in my admiration of those who play games, and those who encourage the team spirit in any form."

"The history of the K.C.C. has been set forth in an admirable booklet which he who runs—or even she who sits still—may read. The record is a fine one, and it is my pride and delight to be invited to-day to open this splendid new building, on which I hope good fortune will smile and in which, I hope, good fellowship will prevail." (Applause).

Mrs. Southern then opened the door with the presentation key and those congregated outside entered and sat down to tea on the hall, on the extensive verandah or on the lawn.

Chairman's Address.

Addressing the gathering after tea Mr. Lindsell said:

"In the Club calendar this is a red letter day, the reddest letter day in all the Club's history. It must be a birthday anniversary of St. Boniface, who, being patron saint of inns and innkeepers, must I take it, stand in same relation to Clubs. Anyway, I claim his patronage for this Club. Now I am not going to weary you with a history of this Club since its foundation in 1904. You will find all that set out in brochure, but I should like to say something of the vicissitudes and difficulties from which we have just emerged with the completion of this splendid Club-house."

Since the old pavilion came into existence in 1908, Kowloon has grown beyond belief and with growth our membership naturally increased. Twelve years ago it was already borne in on us that our accommodation was getting exceedingly cramped, and in 1921 a scheme was set on foot to build a new pavilion to cost about $25,000. This scheme was abandoned, and with the conversion of King's Park into recreation grounds we were allocated an area now occupied by the N. O. Sports Club and two other small areas below, and were notified that we could not hope to remain much longer on this site, which would be needed for other purposes. This was something of a blow, and for awhile there was a sharp division of opinion among members as to whether we should move forthwith or hang on to these grounds as long as possible. Finally the stayers won and we stayed. Then in 1930 when our prospects of permanent occupation improved the new Club-house project revived, and though it had to be suspended for awhile it was not this time abandoned. Despite long delay and trouble with the contractor, this fine building, designed by Messrs. Raven and Basto has now at last become new home. No-one can, I think, gainsay we have the finest sports Club-house east of Suez. We have taken a risk and carried through a most ambitious project and I confidently believe not too ambitious. Kowloon is growing so rapidly that we believe that a big building like this together with the large grounds we occupy will attract more and more members through the social and sporting facilities we have to offer. We want more and more Kowloonites and even Hongkongites to feel there is something lacking in their lives if they have not joined the K.C.C. (Hear hear.)

Acknowledgment.

Now for a few words of thanks—first to H. E. the O. A. G. for kindly interest in our welfare. But for the postponement cruelly forced upon us by the typhoon he would have been present as our guest and skip of the very strong four from Government House. As it is, he has sent the Club a special message regretting that another engagement makes it impossible for him to be present here—regret which we most heartily reciprocate.

To our old friends of the cricket field Dick Hancock and Eric Mitchell we are deeply indebted for the fine clock which will before long grace the turret above our score box.

To contributors towards the cost of second billiard table again our grateful thanks: Our billiard room should be one of the great attractions.

To our architects also we are very grateful for this happy result of their labours, particularly Mr. Raven, who, in addition, is kindly presenting a clock for the billiard room.

Finally I cannot leave out the Building Sub-committee (though as Chairman thereof I feel here on rather delicate ground) and must pay tribute to the indefatigable efforts of my fellow workers in particular Mr. Hirst, who as our so-called "land lord" might be the reincarnation of St. Boniface himself, Mr. Jimmy Hyde, who though called "Grandpa" by the irreverent, I believe regards this building almost as one of his own children, and finally Mr. A. MacKenzie, who as special secretary in the past 18 months had done his job most cheerfully and efficiently.

One last word. I have the honour and privilege, on behalf of Club, to welcome all visitors here to-day particularly Mrs. Southern for having spared us the time and so charmingly performed our opening ceremony, and for kind things you then said about the Club. What better send off could we have had on our new career?

Ladies and Gentlemen, I ask you all to honour us by drinking (whether in tea or otherwise) the health of the K.C.C.

Visitors Respond.

Responding to the toast, Mr. H. R. B. Hancock said that on looking around the large gathering he was rather at a loss to know why the honour of replying had fallen on him when there were so many more people who he felt sure, could have done more justice to it than himself. He felt, at the same time, that it was because he had a longer cricket acquaintance with the members of the Club than any other visitor, and he valued very highly the friendship with the members of the Club which was formed so many years ago on the cricket field. They could take it from him that there was no better place to form and keep friendships than on the cricket field (Hear, hear).

Mr. Hancock said it was a great pleasure to him to see amongst the gathering a very old friend, Mr. J. P. Robinson (applause). Hon. Secretary of the Club. He had done a great deal for the Club and he hoped sincerely Mr. Robinson would be spared for a good move forthwith or hang on to these grounds as long as possible. "Apart from the many activities of the Club," continued Mr. Hancock, "such as tennis, cricket, bowls, etc., the one it can lay the greatest claim to fame lies in its unbounded hospitality. I am sure you will agree with me that in this respect Kowloon Cricket Club was not surpassed by any other club in the Colony. (Hear, hear.) It is regarded as one of the first Clubs in the Colony to offer a

LEAGUE POSTPONES ITS CONSIDERATION

Genoa, Sept. 24. After overruling the Chinese objection that the Council was not competent to discuss the matter, the Council of the League, under the Chairmanship of Mr. De Valera agreed to the Japanese request to postpone until November 14 the consideration of the Lytton report, the publication of which was fixed for October 1.

Mr. De Valera expressed the Council's regret that the Japanese Government had prejudiced the settlement of the dispute by recognising and signing a treaty with Manchukuo, without awaiting the publication of the Lytton report. The Japanese delegate said he would not comment at the present time on Mr. De Valera's remarks. —Reuter.

hand of friendship to visitors, and members of visiting teams always go away expressing their admiration of the courtesy and friendliness displayed by the K.C.C. Then again there is the annual children's sports, organised by the Club every January, which have been held since 1906, and they are a source of great joy to the many children who appear on the invitation list of the Club.

About Cricket.

And now I want to say a few words about cricket. This Club is called the Kowloon Cricket Club and I don't want you to forget that middle word. And you young members, do not be led away by other older members to other forms of sport. Stick to your cricket as long as you can, and when you have had a long experience of the game you will not regret it."

A Drawn Game.

During the afternoon a cricket match which resulted in a draw was played between the Kowloon Cricket Club and Mr. H. R. B. Hancock's XI. The visitors batted first and compiled a total of 132 for the loss of seven wickets. The principal scorers were Lieut. A. C. Hamilton, 39, Lt. Comdr. Southern, 29, J. E. Richardson, 25, and E. Zimmerman, 21, while Burnett had the best bowling average for the Club, capturing four wickets for 21 runs.

The Club went in to bat soon after tea and replied with 69 for seven when stumps were drawn. Of this total, A. T. Lay contributed 28 and E. F. Fincher 21. Bowling for the visitors Richardson took four wickets for 15 runs and Pereira three for eight.

Lawn Bowls Match.

The results of the lawn bowls played in connexion with the opening were as follows: 1st Rink—Hyde, Overy, Lindsell and Jack (K.C.C.) lost to Shield, Gow, Tacchi, and Maughan, 12-31.

2nd Rink—Farrell, Russell, Smith and Cullen (K.C.C.) beat Mosses, Hamilton, Webster and Russell, 20-14.

3rd Rink—Gibson, Chadwick, Ferguson and Burford (K.C.C.) lost to Grimmett, Arculli, Alderman and de Roma, 18-22.

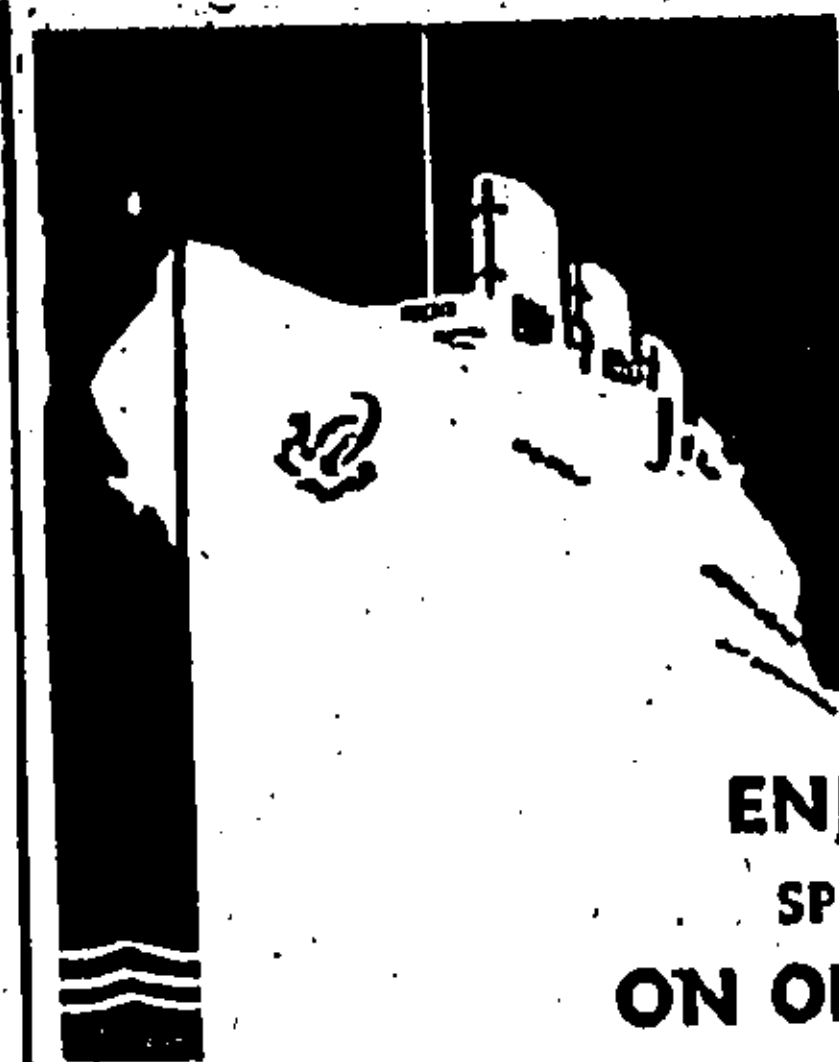

4th Rink—Hirst, Kern, Harrison and Kristoferson (K.C.C.) beat Ropley, Hunter, Henderson and Gutierrez, 21-22.

5th Rink—McTavish, Jack and Gittins (K.C.C.) beat Macfarlane, Hogbin and Bentley, 29-14.

6th Rink—Fraser, Labrum, Simpson and Brown (K.C.C.) lost to Macfarlane, Gill, Duncan and Ramsey, 10-20.

7th Rink—Nish, Lawrence, Chapman and Dinnen (K.C.C.) beat Cavanagh, Longbottom, Stewart and de Souza, 22-14.

In the evening a dance was held in the spacious hall, music being supplied by Mickey's Melody Makers. The exterior of the Club-house, which illuminated with coloured fairy lights, presented an impressive sight.

ADMIRALTY ANNOUNCES IMPORTANT CHANGES

London, Sept. 24. Important changes affecting the methods by which lower deck men in the Navy may make representations regarding their grievances and hardships are announced by the Admiralty.

Under the new arrangement the Admiralty propose from time to time to hold a review of lower deck matters, which will replace the present system of welfare conferences. All the men will be entitled to make representations to the divisional officer. The representations will then be considered by the Captain, assisted by the other officers, and will be forwarded to the Commander-in-Chief, who will appoint a Fleet committee to consider the collated representations.

It is contemplated that the first review will be ordered at about the end of 1935.—Reuter.

FIRE IN COAL DUMP.

BRIGADE SUCCEEDS AFTER HARD FIGHT

Firemen had a strenuous time extinguishing a fire which broke out in the Hongkong and China Gas Company's coal yard early yesterday morning.

The fire occurred in a 2,000 ton heap and was well alight when the alarm was given. Three hydrants were employed in fighting the flames and it was not until half an hour after the alarm was given that the fire was completely out.

The coal had to be turned over and deluged with water before the officer in charge decided it was safe for the brigade to leave.

SLAVERY PROBLEM.

PREVALENCE IN ARABIA AND ABYSSINIA

Geneva, Sept. 24. Slavery on a serious scale still prevails in parts of Arabia and Abyssinia, and possibly in remote parts of Central China; but organized large-scale slave raiding, such as was common only thirty years ago in Africa, has completely disappeared as a result of the combined efforts of the Europeans Colonial Powers.

These facts emerge from the Slavery Report presented to the League Council. The Report says, however, that most Governments have only abolished the legal status of slavery, but have not immediately proceeded to compulsory manumission.

On the question of mul-lai, the Report finds the evidence conflicting. It suggests the establishment of a permanent advisory commission to discuss methods aimed at the total abolition or transformation of the existing forms of slavery.—Reuter.

OBITUARY

MR. OMAR ISMAIL PASSES AWAY IN HOSPITAL

The Indian sporting community of Hongkong have suffered a heavy loss by the death which occurred on Saturday night at the French Hospital of Mr. Omar Ismail, a popular member of the Indian Recreation Club.

Taken ill about a week ago, his case was at first thought to be malaria, but on Friday last his condition took a turn for the worse and he was removed to the French Hospital, where he was found to be suffering from black water fever, a particularly virulent type of malaria.

A sad feature of his death is that Mr. Ismail leaves behind a wife and three small children. His father, Mr. S. Ismail is senior writer of the naval Store Department at the Dockyard.

The late Mr. Ismail was twenty-eight years of age at the time of his death, and has long been connected with the National City Bank of New York, where he was very popular with all his colleagues. His death will be greatly felt by them as he was one of the most ardent organizers of all social functions at the Bank.

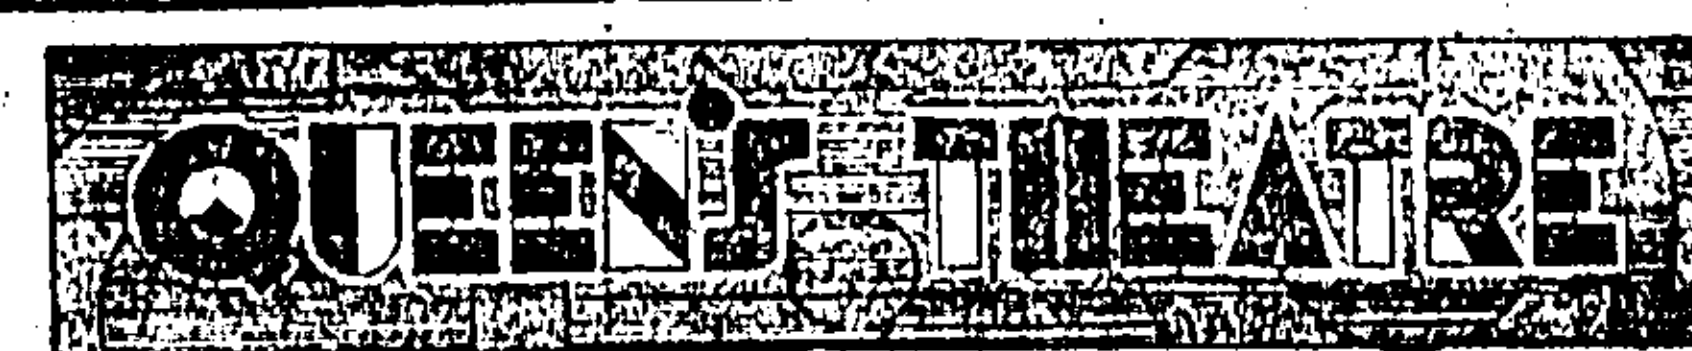

In sporting circles Mr. Ismail's loss will be keenly felt, especially by the Indian Recreation Club where he was a playing member of the cricket first eleven.

The greatest sympathy will be extended his wife and parents in the sad loss they have sustained.

The Funeral.

The funeral took place yesterday in the Mohammedan section of the Happy Valley cemetery, being attended by a large gathering of relatives and friends.

Among those present were his father, Mr. A. Cassumbhoy (father-in-law), Messrs. J. and S. Cassumbhoy (brother-in-law), Messrs. J. S. Akker, I. M. A. Razack, D. M. A. Razack, A. A. Razack, O. B. HAKONE CAR SMASH

THREE HUNDRED FEET CLIFF FALL

GENERAL'S SON KILLED

COMPANION DEAD: FOUR SERIOUSLY HURT

("Telegraph" Special).

Tokyo, Sept. 26.

A son of General Hirose, officer commanding the Tenth Division in Manchuria, was killed to-day in an appalling motor-car accident near Hakone.

Young Hirose, a student at Keio University, was motoring with five companions, all fellow-students at the university, when in order to avoid a collision with another car coming in the opposite direction, he swerved violently and plunged the car over a cliff.

The drop was at least three hundred feet and the car crashed to the foot, crashing and bumping with sickening thuds until it came to rest.

KILLED INSTANTLY.

Hirose was killed instantly. One of his companions died later of his injuries and the other four are lying in hospital, all seriously injured.

The car was smashed almost to pieces and the occupants were thrown out with extreme violence one by one. The other car stopped and rendered all assistance possible, though it was some time before assistance was forthcoming owing to the precipice-like nature of the country.—Reuter.

GREEKS GO TO THE POLLS

THREE PARTIES ALL CONFIDENT

(Special to "Telegraph").

Athens, Sept. 25.

Elections for the whole of the Greek Lower House and for one-third of the Senate were held to-day.

Immense interest has been aroused in the political field and the polling booths were crowded from a very early hour.

The elections are being carried out on the system of proportional representation and the final result will not be known for a few days.

Each of the three principal parties is confident of victory.—Reuter.

BABY KILLED BY MOTOR-CAR

TRAGIC MISHAP IN QUEEN'S ROAD

A tragic motor-car mishap occurred yesterday afternoon in Queen's Road West, resulting in the death of a nine months' old baby.

It appears that the mother of the child was crossing the street, carrying the baby, when she failed to avoid a motor-car. She was knocked down, and although escaping serious injury herself, the little child was instantly killed.

The Royal Observatory reports that pressure is highest over North China and Manchuria, and relatively low over the Pacific to the east.

LOCAL RACING SENSATION

CHAMPAGNE BAY DISQUALIFIED

STEWARDS UPHOLD OBJECTION

The Stewards of the Jockey Club sat this morning to investigate an objection lodged against Champagne Bay which, ridden by Mr. L. Reidy, won the last race at Saturday's extra meeting.

The decision was officially announced this afternoon. The objection was upheld and Champagne Bay was declared disqualified; the race being awarded to Wonderful Stag, (Mr. S. W. Pan) which was second past the post.

Ajax (Mr. L. G. Frost) becomes second and Indiana (Mr. Pung) which ran fourth, is placed third.

The revised result is in accord with public support, Champagne Bay's win being a great surprise.

He paid his backers $57.30. He was fifth favourite for wins, Wonderful Stag and Indiana being very heavily backed, while Ajax was third favourite.

ALL BETS PAID.

All bets have, of course, been paid out. The Stewards of the Jockey Club declined this afternoon, through the Secretary, to give any indication of the grounds of the objection.

The disqualification of Champagne Bay does not make any difference in the South China Sweepstakes. The first prize of $109,000 will go to the holder of the Champagne Bay ticket.

The lucky winners of the big prizes in this particular sweep are not yet known.

FOREIGN VICTIM OF CHOLERA

HEAVY LOSS FOR FOOCHOW

Fochow, Sept. 20.

The cholera epidemic in Fochow is said to be on the wane, but recently it claimed a well-known foreign resident as a victim, in the person of Mr. E. H. Bucknell. Mr. Bucknell had lived in Fochow for nearly forty years, at first in the Customs service, and afterwards in various forms of business, spending all his spare time as an independent missionary among the Chinese. Those who were privileged to know him will never forget his cheery personality, and the even good humour with which he bore all the difficulties and privations that came his way from time to time. He was always ready to lend his help to any good cause, and those who visited Kullang during the past summer will remember him going round from house to house to help in collecting money for the Christian Herald Orphanage.

The funeral took place at the British Cemetery, the Rev. A. W. R. Norton, who had been one of his closest friends, officiating. A group of his friends, representing all sections, was present to pay their last tribute to the memory of a true Christian gentleman.—Our Own Correspondent.

Wong Sze, the mistress of a passenger boat, was charged before the Hon. Commr. Ho, at the Marine Court this morning, with having used her boat for the purpose of carrying prostitutes near the Naval Yard. She was fined $50, or six weeks' imprisonment.

Mr. H. R. Butters occupied the Bench at the Kowloon Magistracy this morning. It is understood that Mr. A. A. Fraser, who has been Police

(Special to "Telegraph").

Shanghai, Sept. 26.

Negotiations are believed to be in progress with the kidnappers of Mrs. Pawley and Mr. Charles Corkran in the hope that their early release may be obtained.

The parley is being conducted under the veil of strictest secrecy.

A message from Dairen says that the publication of such news as has leaked out regarding the negotiations has been prohibited and all press messages relating to the affair are also being suppressed by the authorities.—Reuter.

TERRORIST BOMBS DANCE HALL

THE CHITTAGONG OUTRAGE

EUROPEAN WOMAN KILLED

Calcutta, Sept. 25.

The victim of the Bengali terrorist outbreak at Chittagong last night was a woman, a Mrs. Sullivan.

The outrage occurred at midnight when the European Institute at Baratali was thronged with Europeans on the occasion of the monthly dance.

The dance was at its height and the floor was crowded when a gang of ten armed men appeared at the open windows. A bomb was thrown into the building, killing Mrs. Sullivan and wounding eight other Europeans, the bomb, fortunately, not being a remarkably powerful one.

POLICE WOUNDED.

The injured men included two police officers. There was a sharp exchange of shots between a handful of Europeans and the terrorists, as the result of which a Bengali girl was killed.

The remainder of the raiders escaped. There have been no further disturbances.

As far as is known at the moment, none of the other victims of the bomb is in a serious condition. The Bengali girl killed has been identified as a graduate of Dacca University. She had been "wanted" by the police following investigations into last anti-European outbreak at Chittagong some months ago.—Reuter.

GORDON BENNETT BALLOON RACE

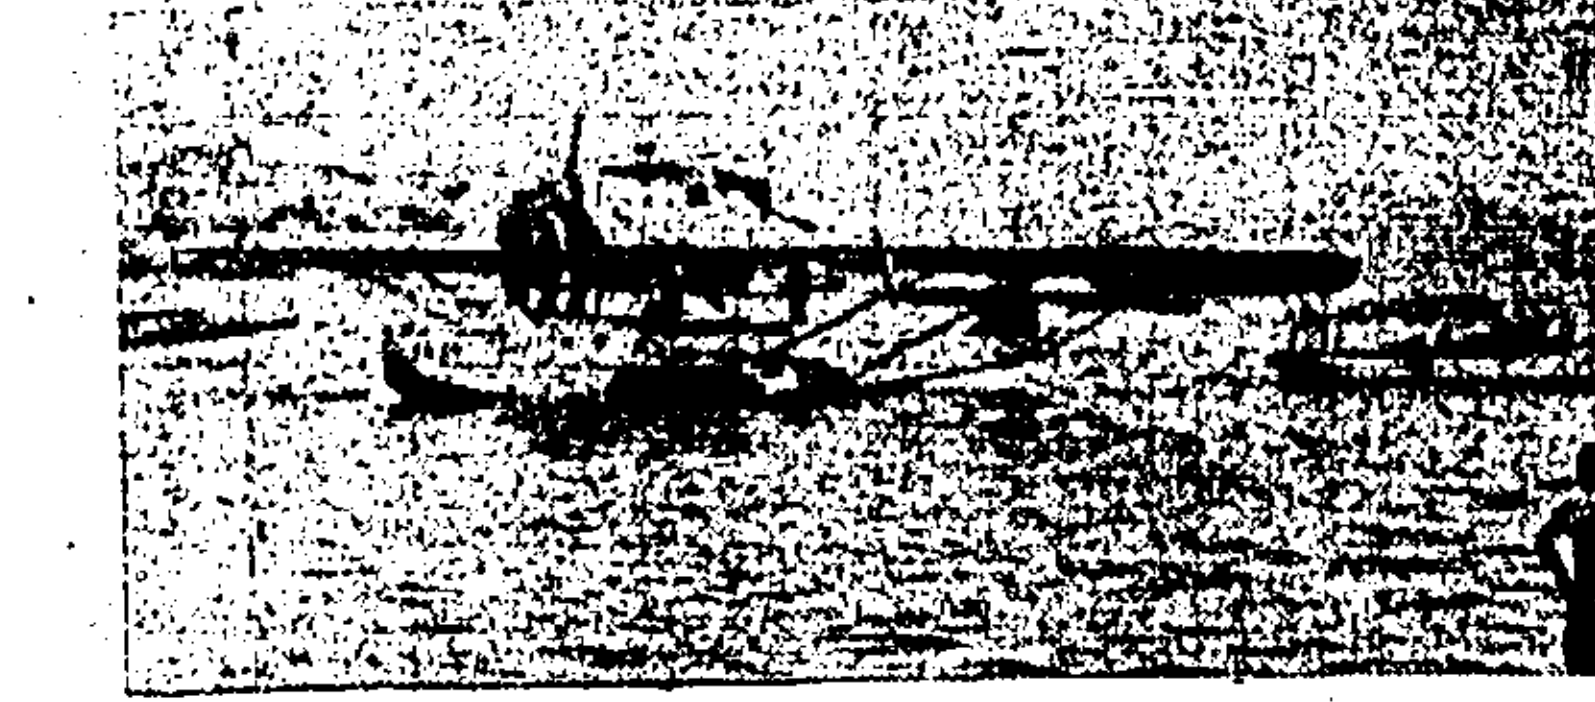

SIXTEEN IN START FROM BASLE

Basle, Sept. 26.

Sixteen balloons entered by eight nations, including three entrants each from the United States, Germany, France and Switzerland, started this afternoon on the annual Gordon Bennett Race, for a cup presented by Mr. Henry Ford.

A light breeze prevailed at the time of the ascent and the competitors were carried gradually in the direction of Belgium, which was fortunate since the Soviet had issued a warning that balloons would not be permitted to drift over Soviet territory.

All the entrants, despite the warning, declared that they were prepared to take the risk, it being

POSTPONEMENT OF EXECUTION

DEFENCE SEEKING APPEAL TO PRIVY COUNCIL

THREE MONTHS' DELAY

A respite of three months in the execution of the death sentence passed upon Cheng Kwok-yau, convicted of the murder of George Fung in March last, is to be granted by H. E. the Governor, it is learned to-day.

The postponement of the day of execution, which normally would take place next week, is being granted in order that an application may be made in London for special leave to appeal to the Privy Council.

Neither the local courts nor H. E. the Governor has the authority to grant leave to appeal to the Privy Council, whose Judicial Committee alone can decide whether or not it will hear an appeal from the Crown Colonies in a criminal case.

FURTHER RESPITE POSSIBLE.

Cheng Kwok-yau, who is about 21 years of age, was found guilty of arranging for the murder of Fung, by gunmen. He has exceedingly wealthy connexions and was defended at his trial by Mr. Eldon Potter, K.C., Mr. F. C. Jenkins, K.C., and Mr. J. C. H. Lim.

The length of time which will elapse before Cheng's fate is finally known is due to the legal requirements. The Judge's Notes, and the record of the trial have to be prepared for submission to the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council. This will probably

TSITSIHAR RAID SENSATION

EXCITEMENT FOR EUROPEANS

SIBERIA TRAIN FIRED ON

Harbin, Sept. 26.

Fifteen hundred anti-Manchukuo troops, equipped with artillery and machine-guns, on Saturday attacked the Manchukuo garrison and captured the Chinese Eastern Railway settlement at Tsitsihar.

After taking the settlement, they fired a fusillade at a standing train from Manchukuo, which had a number of passengers from Europe aboard.

Two Japanese armoured trains quickly arrived together with a large force of troops and after a five hours bombardment of the anti-Manchukuo positions the raiders retreated. Many were killed during the engagement.

GERMAN FLIER'S BRIEF STAY

HOP TO MANILA TO-MORROW

NOT TAKING MAIL

Captain Wolfgang von Gronau, the noted German flier who arrived here yesterday from Shanghai, intends to take off for Manila to-morrow, in continuation of his world flight.

No mail is being carried by the plane from Hongkong.

Interviewed by the Telegraph this morning, the airman said: "Weather permitting, I shall leave tomorrow morning for Manila. I shall probably arrive there tomorrow afternoon. I shall stay in Manila all day on Wednesday and leave again on Thursday. As soon as I arrive I shall take a supply of petrol aboard from the Shell Co's dump. After leaving Manila, I shall go to Borneo and Java and then on to Germany where I shall resume my duties at the Flying School. On my way back I shall travel over India, and Bagdad."

The aviator, in answer to a question said: "I am tired of these big receptions. I have had too much of them."

DANGEROUS ENTHUSIASM.

He lamented the fact that whenever he arrived at a port of call those coming to greet him in vessels usually pulled their craft too close. "They should bear in mind that a flying boat is not a ship, and is easily damaged. I wish they would keep further away until I am ready," he added.

Asked his impressions of the Colony, Capt. von Gronau said: "It is a very nice town. The harbour is a good shelter for flying boats. There is a nice beginning for an aerodrome here and a great future for aviation."

Arrested in possession of 2,457 70 p.m. lottery tickets, a Chinese woman who appeared before Mr. Wynne-Jones at the Central Police Court this morning was fined $500, or three months' hard labour in default. The tickets were concealed in the woman's pockets and also in her clothing under a baby which she was carrying.

PREMIER AND POONA PACT NO DECISION YET REACHED

Poona, Sept. 25.

Determination to resort to another fast if it is necessary for the object of rooting out Untouchability from Hinduism, was expressed by the Mahatma Gandhi to-day in a special statement to Reuter's representative. Gandhi said that if Mr. Ramsay MacDonald accepted the agreement between the Caste Hindus and the Depressed Classes in toto, he (Gandhi) would be obliged to break his fast.

But, he added, the break might merely prove to be a suspension. "I shall certainly retake the vow to fast unto death if the part to be played by the Caste Hindus is not well-played during the coming months."

TREMENDOUS AWAKENING.

"The tremendous awakening in the country during the past five days, however, fills me with hope and orthodoxy will surprise itself and rid Hinduism of the cancer of Untouchability."

Gandhi appeared to be much brighter and better than he was yesterday, but his doctor says that he will be unable to fast much longer with sufficient strength for recovery.

It is learned from London that the Poona agreement is being very actively considered by all concerned with the Government's policy, but that no decision has yet been reached.—Reuter.

ACTIVITY IN WHITEHALL

Sir Samuel Hoare and Premier Busy

London, Sept. 26.

With Gandhi still fasting, Sunday was a day of intense activity at Whitehall.

Mr. Ramsay MacDonald and Sir Samuel Hoare, the Secretary of State for India, were busy all through the day examining the Poona Agreement from every angle.

A statement issued late last night said that Mr. MacDonald and Sir Samuel Hoare had been in close communication regarding the answer to be given to the communities concerned in the agreement. Every effort is being made to avoid delay.—Reuter.

KASHMIR RIOTS

TROOPS CALLED TO RESTORE ORDER

(Special to "Telegraph").

Bombay, Sept. 26.

Grave communal rioting occurred during the week-end at Srinagar, Kashmir. Troops were hurriedly despatched to the scene of the outbreak and have now got the situation more or less under control.

The outbreak occurred following a dispute regarding a procession. Starting with an argument between rival religious sects, serious rioting and looting developed. In fierce street fighting, two were killed and sixty-six seriously injured.

The fighting began in the centre of the city and spread rapidly into the suburbs, where attacks were carried out by Moslems upon Hindus, and Hindus upon Moslems, many persons being picked up badly injured as the result of their being attacked by gangs.

Shop-fronts were smashed and many were entered and wrecked. The troops were called out to restore order.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

By W. E. McKenney

Don't be satisfied with just your bid or just game. Try for the extra tricks, and when on the defensive, even though you cannot stop game, play your hand carefully to prevent those extra tricks. These points are well illustrated in to-day's hand.

The Bidding.

The hand was played in a contract bridge tournament. At most of the tables North and South finally got the contract at four hearts.

The Play.

West had the opening lead and led the king of spades which was won in dummy with the ace. The ten of hearts was returned from dummy, East played the deuce and South the four. The nine of hearts was next led, East played the seven and South, the declarer, played the jack. Declarer then led the ace of hearts, picking up East's queen, West discarding the deuce of spades.

A small diamond was led to dummy's king and the jack of diamonds returned from dummy. East, who held only the eight and queen of diamonds, would gain nothing by covering, so plays the five. South played the nine and West the ten. The ten of clubs was led from dummy. Now we find East with the queen and nine of clubs, and the ten spot should now be covered by East with the queen. If East should fail to cover, the declarer would play the four and then lead another club from dummy and finesse the jack. The two spades will be discarded on the ace and king of clubs and the losing spade in declarer's hand will be trumped in dummy with the eight of hearts. In this manner the declarer would make a grand slam.

But when East covers with the queen, the declarer to win the trick must play the king. Declarer can now cash his ace and jack of clubs but forced to ruff the four of clubs in dummy with the eight of hearts. His next play is a diamond from dummy which is won in declarer's hand with the ace. The good king of hearts can be cashed but the opponents must win the last spade trick.

East, by covering the club with his queen, has held the declarer to six odd, but as only four were bid, the declarer scores 120 for the tricks bid and made and 50 each for the two extra tricks. As both sides were vulnerable, he receives 600 points for game.

COTTON DISPUTE

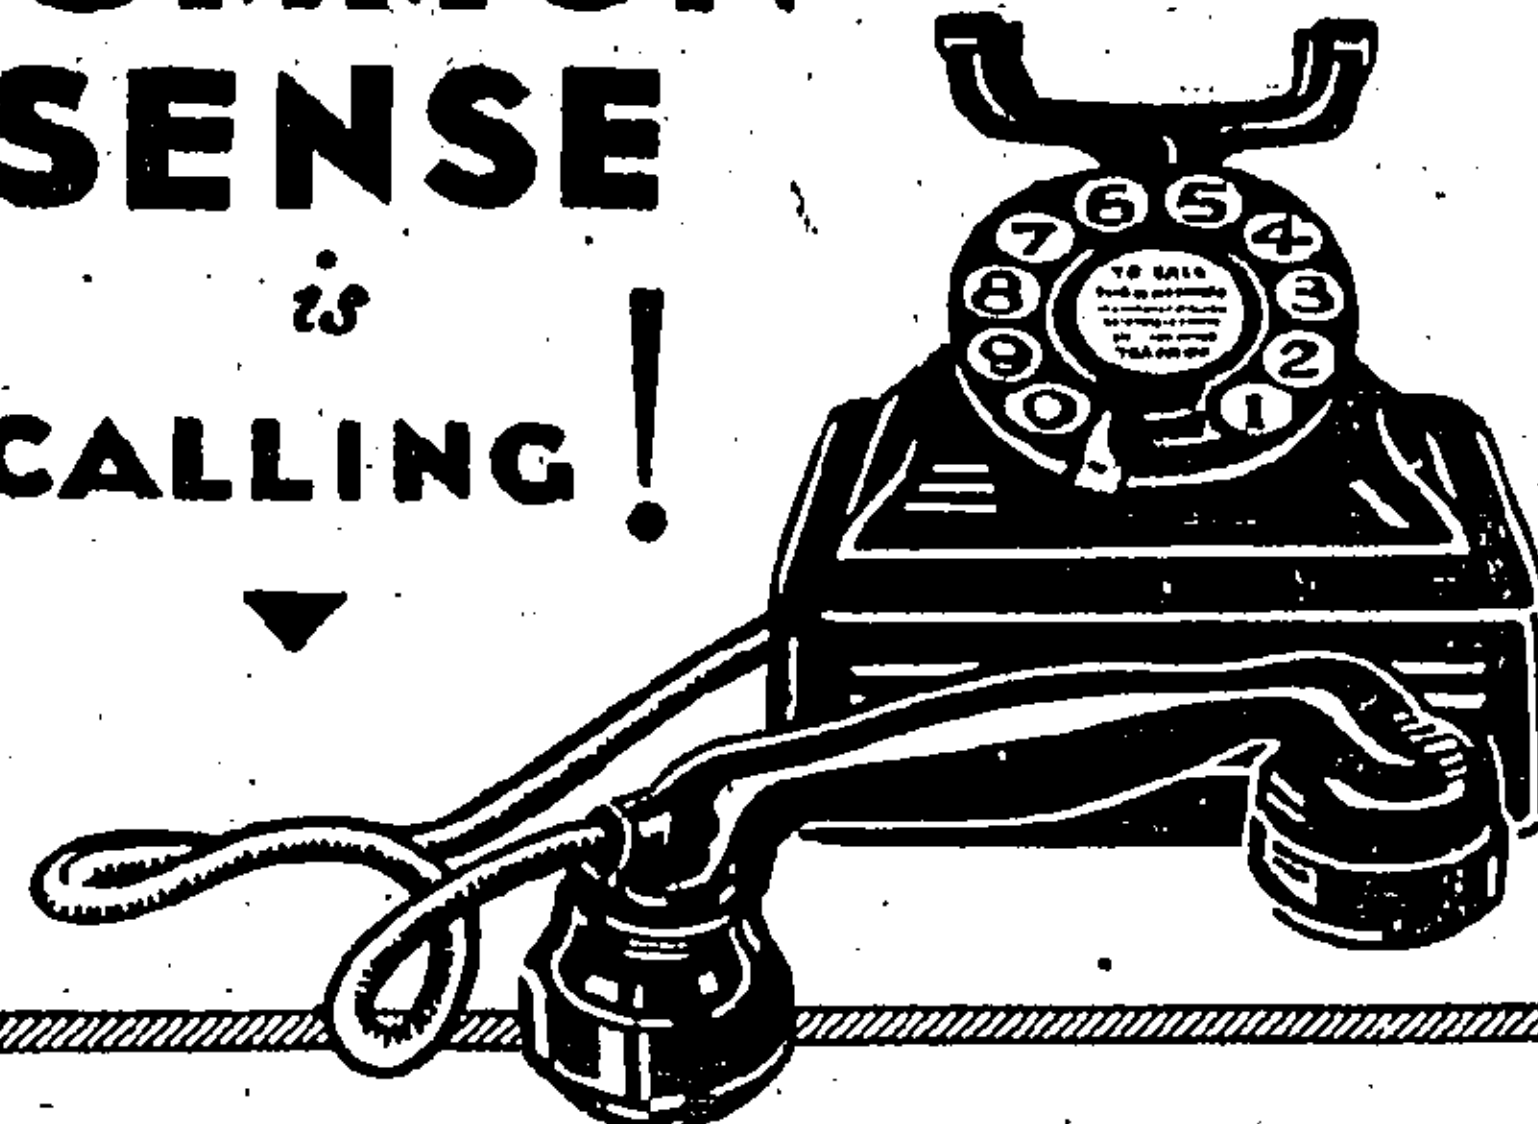

SETTLEMENT AWAITS
RATIFICATION

Manchester, Sept. 25.
All difficulties in the cotton dispute have now been removed. The settlement will be submitted to the full bodies of the employers and operatives, probably on the 27th inst.

It is expected that if the agreement is ratified by both, as is practically certain, work could restart on the following day.—

CHINA REALTY COMPANY 8% DEBENTURES
8% INTEREST VS 6% INTEREST
MEANS ONE THIRD MORE INCOME

COMMON
is CALLING!

HERE IS YOUR OPPORTUNITY TO GAIN A THIRD
MORE FROM THAT SECOND INCOME YOU HAVE PLANNED

Why be satisfied with only 6% interest when your capital of Tls. 100 or more can earn 8% for you with safety?

It is a significant fact that to-day many people are reinvesting their savings in China Realty Co. 8% debentures and participating in the increased returns offered. It is not only labour that is earning more to-day; money is also busier and more efficient and therefore earns more in the shape of large dividends. If your funds are invested in good securities which are earning you less than 8% a year, then you have a lot of lazy or inefficient dollars working for you and you should give them a new task master.

Because we believe that the investing public should get a larger share than usual in the profits which accrue to modern business we pay interest of 8% on our debentures which are issued in denominations of

Tls. 100.00 each. No sounder investment than these debentures can be found because they are backed not only by sound and conservative real estate mortgages but by the entire assets of this prosperous company as well. Your income from an 8% investment is one-third greater than from a 6% investment.

We welcome the small investor as one who, no matter how small his investment, becomes a friend of the company and thus adds to the value of our good will. If you have Tls. 100 or more of idle money, or money which is earning less than 8% invest it in China Realty 8% debentures.

During the past 20 years, we have negotiated mortgages amounting to more than Tls. 100,000,000.00 and so accurate has our judgment been that not one cent of interest or principal has ever been lost.

THE LATE ARNOLD BENNETT'S LAST LONG STORY

"DREAM OF DESTINY"

(Copyright Strictly Reserved).

CHAPTER I

Roland Lane Smith was swung up out of the Tube railway—full of glittering cool carriages, with homing theatregoers, intoxicated males arguing lovingly arm-in-arm, amorous couples, inscrutable and silent men, inscrutable and silent women, newspaper-scanners, book-readers, smokers, indifferent and courteous guards apparently insensible to fatigue and monotony and ennui, all unweary—into the hot July night at South Kensington. In a back-tilted opera-hat and full evening-dress, with white flower, but no overcoat, he stuck his hands into his pockets and strolled leisurely along through Sussex Place towards The Boltons. Quiet gradually succeeded to racket. There were few pedestrians, and in the roads nothing but swift cars and labouring taxis.

He reached the large oval which calls itself The Boltons, with the dark heavy mass of the Church of St. Mary in the midst, and had to count numbers to find the house, for this was his first visit to his cousin's new home. He found it by the brown matting laid across the pavement and by the brilliant lighting of the house and by the open front-door and the open door of the front garden and the commissionaire thereat. His widowed cousin was warming her new home; cars were ranked all round the inner railing of the oval; old inhabitants of adjoining houses were being annoyed and kept awake by the unwelcome stir due to the vast hospitality of the new inhabitant.

Spaciousness: that was the leading quality of The Boltons; space between the seamy, three-storied houses, space in the large gardens glimpsed behind them. Half Moon Street, where Roland lived in 'chambers' (two rooms and a bathroom, and a landlady noted for the gracious superiority of her deportment towards her 'gentlemen'), was certainly not characterized by spaciousness. And Roland was always preoccupied by his sense of the difference between spaciousness and the nutshell. He happened to be the secretary (and effective ruler) of the Leicester Trust Homes Limited, which homes were low-rented flats, hundreds of them storey above storey in five immense blocks near King's Road, Chelsea. Simeon Leicester, the deceased money-lender, had in his will left the greater part of a considerable fortune for the erection of industrial flats, and in the same document had appointed Roland Lane Smith to be the controlling manager of the enterprise. A felicitous windfall for Roland, who had been a mere acquaintance of Simeon's, but who without knowing it had deeply impressed the old Jew. Roland had accepted the responsibility. From being a university-educated idle amateur of life, he had flowered almost suddenly into a serious and weighty person. True, he had a Board to humour, but within six months he was carrying the Board in his pocket. He had studied the subject of 'dwellings', had superintended in every detail the planning and the building of the serried flats. The flats were the last and the finest word of industrial flats in London. The flats were very ingeniously devised; they had all the space-economies of a yacht: they had open playgrounds and covered playgrounds, electricity (at a special rate), gas (with free stoves and rings), refuse-shoots on each floor, hot-water on each floor, hot water even in the wash-house on each floor, many balconies, and level roofs with safety rails, and above all Roland had refused to imprint the name of Leicester on the walls, and refused to baptize the blocks "Block A", "Block B", "Block C", etc. Instead he had bestowed on each block the name of a philanthropist, such as 'Howard', and had entitled the whole (with the approval of the Post Office) 'Thames Court. Thus a charwoman could begin a letter with the words "Howard, Thames Court, Chelsea, S.W.3."

Roland knew personally many of the tenants and a few of their innumerable shrieking children: which fact did not mitigate his steely harshness in the grave matter of arrears of rent. (The harshness, by the way, helped him to maintain the esteem of his somewhat old-fashioned Board; it was the one thing in his strange philosophy which they could thoroughly understand and endorse in their hearts.) He had become a wonder-man in the eyes of the fashionable or intellectual friends of his youth, a legend to hostesses, an exemplar to the smart young of both sexes. His yearly salary was £1,250, and this, with his private means, gave him ease and some luxury at eventide in his busy and anxious life. He was under forty, a bachelor, elegant, well known, his own master—in truth if not in theory. He had not a care in the world. Except Thames Court. And Thames Court was perfect, a boon to an industrial mass; the cynosure of practical philanthropists. Only Roland was forever worried by the sense of the crowdedness of his multitudinous tenants. The children had asphalt to disport themselves on; their parents had the roofs, in fine weather. But the housewives were

MASTERPIECE

Arnold Bennett's last story, the first instalment of which appears in this page, is unfinished, but this does not spoil its worth or readable quality, but rather adds a mystery value which will be found very intriguing.

all living and working on the top of one another. They lacked room to turn round. They lacked spaciousness in their everlasting toil.

He passed through the garden gate of his cousin's widow's house in The Boltons, and the commissionaire saluted him. He passed into the house through the open door, and a superb functionary received his hat across the table bearing a saucer of pins and an empty saucer, and gave him a pink ticket in exchange, and a third superb bowing functionary waved him respectfully forward through the halls of the house towards the open garden door. Everywhere was reckless and wanton space.

"Everyone is in the garden, sir," said the third functionary. Roland divined, knowing Nancy's habits, that all the functionaries were hired for the night, and that probably each of them lived and kept a family in a home that the front-hall alone would have contained with room to spare. He was in the garden. In the distance of the illuminated garden he could hear the thin sound of a band. The garden seemed boundless in the night. Although he was seeing it for the first time, the garden appeared somehow vaguely familiar to him.

over part of the lawn and surrounded by gilt chairs (also hired for the night), a number of people were dancing beneath coloured electric globes hung on wires from trees. A few other people were strolling about in pairs, light figures and dark. The glowing tips of cigarettes could be discerned here and there. A woman detached herself from the distant crowd and came hastening in the direction of the house. It was Mrs. Lynton Smythe, hostess of the night. Roland moved towards her.

"My dear Roland! How nice of you! I was afraid..." Shaking hands, she glanced up suddenly at the windowed wall of the house. "Now, chicks. You are really very, very naughty. You ought to be asleep. You know this isn't your party. You'll have yours on Saturday afternoon. Now do get into bed again. You've been put to bed twice already."

"It's the band," shrieked a child's voice from an upper storey. "We can't sleep because of the band."

"The band will stop, darlings." And at that moment the band did stop, and guests began to arrange chairs in a semi-circle on the dance-flooring in order to watch the promised miracles of a magician (also hired for the night). Nancy held Roland's hand with a certain pressure and gazed up at him as though she had been living for the delicious encounter and was enjoying it to the full. Elegantly dressed in fashionable black, she had the sweet yearning air of a kindly hostess, a relation with a proper sense of the family, a mother of a young brood and the slave of a conscience who dressed well for the reason that to dress well was a duty. She looked worried, but amiably and happily worried, for she was doing the right thing that night. Roland thought, as he folded her in his gentle, loving suavity: "Why house-warming? Her daughters won't be ripe for marriage for fifteen or twenty years yet." He knew, from hints and glances, that some well-meaning friends had seen in himself an ideal second husband for her. But the altar and another man's brood did not in the least attract him. Still, he liked her, and he liked the children and they liked him and called him 'uncle'—boisterously or timidly according to their natures and their mood.

Then Nancy's hostess-eye, heedfully roving, saw a girl seated lonely on a garden-bench in an obscure corner.

"Do come and be introduced to Miss Friar," said she, drawing Roland towards the bench. "She's a wonderful girl and a very great friend of mine; and she's only just arrived from New York."

"I should adore to meet her," Roland said, using a cliché of his social idiom. He had been introduced to hundreds of wonderful girls in his evening career, and he managed so far as possible to preserve the wonder of all of them in his esteem. The girl did not rise, she sprang up and seized Nancy's hand and kissed it.

"Dearest!" she exclaimed in a rich, throbbing contralto voice, "what an organizer you are! This fete of yours is marvellous." Some slight trace of an American accent in her tones.

"I want you to know my poor husband's cousin, Roland Lane Smith." (Nancy pronounced Smith "Smythe.") "I'm sure you know all about him. Miss Friar, Roland. Come and see the conjurer as soon as you feel inclined." And then off she abruptly ran, for three new guests were emerging from the house.

Miss Friar and Roland sat down side by side, Miss Friar blowing a kiss to Nancy's flying back.

"She's got an extraordinary gift for hospitality," said Miss Friar. "She seems to live for her friends."

"And her children." "I can't help thinking I've met you somewhere before, Miss Friar," said Roland, who was occasionally impulsive. He was aware of a disconcerting sensation, not merely that he had met the girl before, but had met her in this garden. Disconcerting, but not seriously so. Nearly every experience comes at some time or other the sensation of having lived before through the moment in which he is living; and men of science have explained the phenomenon by attributing it to a fault in the dual functioning of the brain: Roland recalled.

"I've not met you before," said Miss Friar positively. "But I saw you to-night at the St. James's first-night. Perhaps that was it." "It must have been," Roland agreed. "And yet—I'm ashamed to say I didn't notice you." Another of his social clichés. Why should he be ashamed? "Subconscious you know—But I was in a box."

"Oh yes." They chatted about the play. "Did you like it?" she asked. "Yes, I did. Especially the last act. It frightened me, the last act did."

"Oh! I'm so glad. First-night audiences are so stupid, aren't they? They haven't changed a bit in five years. I'll tell you one thing. The author of that play didn't know—how—good—he was—nor—how—bad—he was."

Miss Friar separated the words, emphasizing each, and at the end of the sentence bringing down her right hand on her knee with a grandiose finishing gesture. "I remember now," said Roland unthinkingly, and then checked himself.

"What?"

"Oh, nothing. Do go on about the play. What you say is frightfully interesting."

But he had indeed remembered. He remembered that two nights earlier he had dreamed of being in just such an 'illuminated garden as this garden in The Boltons and of being introduced to just such a girl as this Miss Friar and of sitting with her on just such a bench as this bench. It was her broad, violent gesture in finishing the sentence which had reminded him of the dream. The dream, like almost all his dreams and like almost all other people's dreams, had been faint and vague. Within five minutes of awaking from it he had forgotten the details of it, and within an hour he had forgotten the whole dream. But now it was returning to him, or perhaps rising up from the eternal safe-deposit of his subconscious. Bit by bit it reconstituted itself in his conscious memory. Well, if you had any social decency—and Roland had a lot—you could not tell a perfect stranger, and a girl, that you had been dreaming about her in advance. It wasn't done. For this reason he had checked himself. He looked at her and listened. All she said was original and interesting. But what interested him was less the things she said than the way she said them. She said them as though they mattered—at any rate to herself. Each phrase, each inflection, throbbled with her vitality. She was an intensely vital individual. She lived intensely through every syllable. Every syllable had importance for her. As she spoke she could not have lived more intensely had she been proclaiming her faith amid the fires of the stake. He thought: she must be some sort of an artist. She was rather richly dressed, but not with care; her dark frock was awry. He would neither deny nor affirm that she was beautiful. Her eyes had the glinting frame of beauty. Assuredly her heavy untidy hair—brown, just escaping ash-brown—was beautiful. Her gestures were violent and ungainly. The essence of life emanated from her. He remembered that in the dream he had married her. He knew that in the dream he had married her, if only because of a very strange incident before the wedding. The aged clergyman had dropped down dead. A fearful shock. The ceremony had had to be postponed for a day. Highly perturbing for everyone concerned. He recalled his own feelings. However, it had been all right in the end. Disconcerting, and seriously so! The most disconcerting coincidence in his whole life. By far the most disconcerting. The dream, which he had forgotten, and the real event. He had dreamed of meeting her in an illuminated garden, and he had met her in an illuminated garden. Naught but his strong social sense prevented him from running away, fleeing from her electrical individuality, her beauty—if beauty she had, the loud yet quiet thrill of her voice, fleeing away and taking every precaution never to set eyes on her again. She was affrightingly dangerous to him.

"You're evidently very keen on the theatre," he remarked with false composure, in a pause. "Keen! I live for it. It's horrible, but I live for it."

"Do you act?"

"My name is Phoebe Friar. I've been acting five years in America, where they've been very kind to me."

"Oh! Forgive me. How stupid of me!" said he. "It never occurred to me."

"Why should it?" she laughed. "What trifle of a name I have! I made in New York." She had no pose, no self-consciousness. She was an actress; she was like an actress; her voltage was terrific; but she was not like an actress. He thought, he was convinced, that she must be a great actress. Eleonora Duse, Mrs. Patrick Campbell. He learned, by questioning, that she had gone out to New York, having played nothing in England but tiny parts—and those in touring companies, and then instantly aroused the enthusiasm of Alan Dale, the arch-destroyer, in New York. And she was 'made.' She had been 'put,' and she had contrived to stay 'put.' And then, hungry for London, driven by an overpowering nostalgia, she had returned to the dead city. And in a month's time, though the newspapers had not yet gathered the news, she was to 'open' as a star, with her name burning in pink on the facade of a theatre in Shaftesbury Avenue. And there she sat by his side, as simply as a nobody! Twenty-seven, twenty-eight, conceivably twenty-nine, not thirty. She was staying with dearest Nancy until her parents came back to London from somewhere on the continent. She mentioned her parents with adoring affectionate respect.

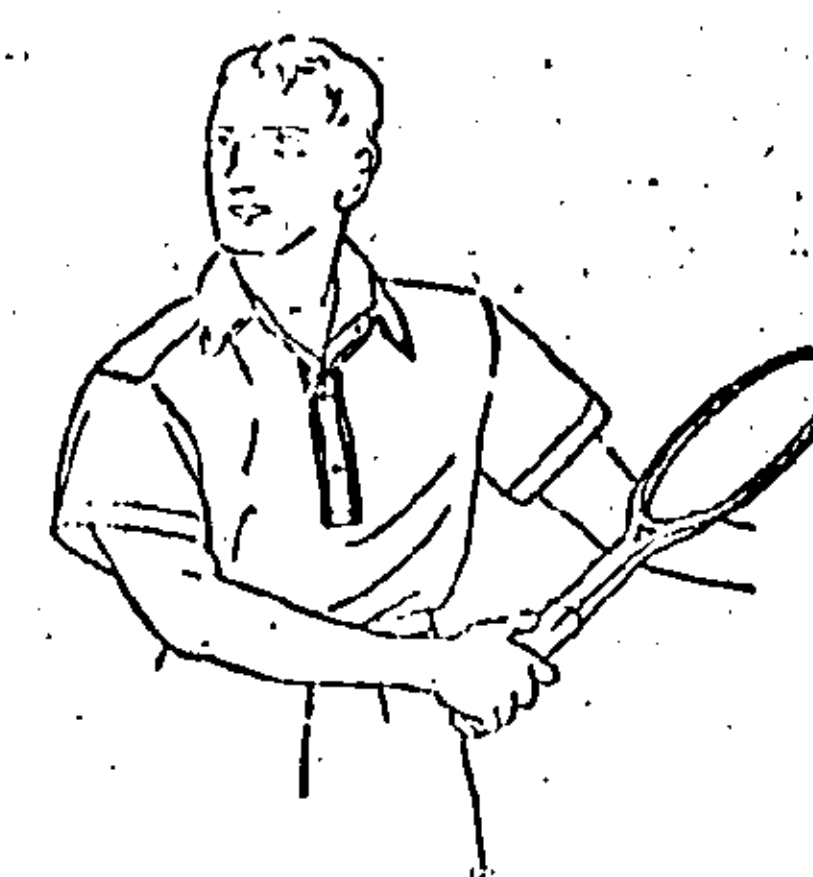

"It was they who forced me on to the stage," she said, with a light, resounding laugh. "Oh! Did they? How?"

"By putting some alliteration into my name, and disguising with a ph, Phoebe Friar. That name just had to be on the foreheads of theatres, Mr. Smythe." She laughed again.

"Yes," he smiled. "But may I tell you my name's Smith?" "But your cousin's name was Smythe. How was that?" "Well," he said, with another smile, "I don't know. It's very mysterious. Somebody must have changed it."

"Or yours?" "No. Not mine. I'm awfully sorry I've got to go," he murmured, in a voice broken, queer. He rose. Still a further episode from his dream had risen from the sub-conscious. She was lying very ill in a bedroom, doctor on the right of the bed, Roland on the left. The doctor bent down to her, straightened himself, glanced at Roland. She was dead. The doctor vanished from the room. A nurse, all white and blue, entered, weeping. For a few seconds the nurse could not speak. "The baby too!" Roland muttered. The nurse nodded, and sobbed into her

CARELESS, thoughtless neglect! That is to blame. Once he was healthy, energetic and ambitious. He had many friends who admired him, particularly his pleasant, ready smile.

Now he is ashamed to smile, but even that hardly matters, for he sits at home alone, broken down, sick and forlorn.

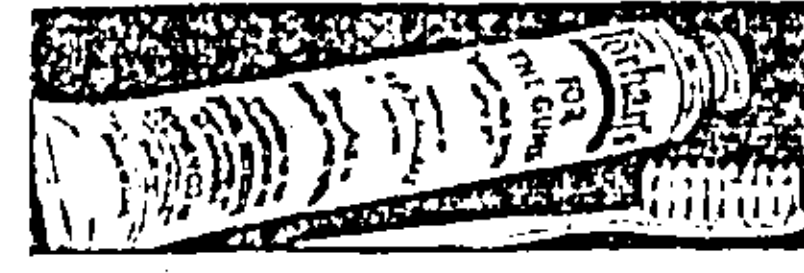

He saw the danger signals years ago. But did nothing! At first his gums bled when he brushed his teeth. Finally, one day one of his teeth dropped out or had to be pulled out.

You may have pyorrhea now. Protect yourself from its dread effects. Every morning and evening use Forhan's for the Gums. Brush your teeth with this scientific dentifrice. It not only cleans and whitens your teeth, but, most important of all, it prevents pyorrhea.

Forhan's for the Gums is the formula of R. J. Forhan, D.D.S., specialist in mouth diseases. It contains Forhan's Pyorrhea Antiseptic developed by Dr. Forhan and used by dentists throughout the world in the treatment of pyorrhea.

THE WORLD OF WOMEN

Here are three of the social registerites seen at the opening of the Saratoga racing season. Left to right are Mrs. Earl T. Smith, the former Consuelo Vanderbilt; Mrs. Dodge Sloan; Mrs. Harold E. Talbot. Pictured below are the horses at one of the jumps.

YOUR CHILDREN.

By Olive Roberts Barton.

Just some ideas...
Not long ago a mother told me that she used a strain arrangement to hold her baby under the cover at night.
"He strains and fights until his shoulder have big marks on them. And, oh, how he yells!"
Carefully I replied: "The way a baby develops temper is by holding him so he can't move. Aren't you a bit afraid of tying him so tight?"
"That's all silly," she retorted. "A baby doesn't know. She was wrong."

On a hot, hot day a baby can well go without a stitch of clothing. A young mother, hearing that, stripped her baby on a hot afternoon and went out, leaving him to be looked after by an inexperienced maid on the back lawn.
She came home at five to find a cold wind blowing and a few rain-drops beginning to fall.
That night the baby had croup. Do you wonder?

Not so long ago it was like hunting for diamonds to get shoes for babies that would go on at the heel and generally fit the foot.
Now there is no end to the good shoes to be had, from the first soft booties to the next soft little kids, and on to the sturdier kind with wide toes and firm but elastic soles that support him in his first steps.

Bare feet are fine when the weather is good. The muscles have play and get stronger. Watch a baby pull himself up and stand on the tips of his big toes. That is excellent.

One day a baby said "Daddy." To his mother, a new word.

The family screamed with delight. His father yelled, "Atta boy!" Everyone grinned, so the baby grinned.

The baby obligingly said "Daddy" again. This time, however, as soon as the word was out, he dropped over and hid his face in a cushion.

Self conscious. Queer as it sounds, an inferiority complex was on him.

"Stop it, all of you," I said. The next time he says it, if he ever does again, don't pay any attention. At least don't go into hysterics.

After a while he straightened up and began to play. "Daddy," he said softly. He looked up quickly. No one seemed to have heard. Their attention appeared to be anywhere but on him.

He did not drop his head, but went on playing. He repeated the word and other little syllables presently.

No more shy head-dropping. No sense of being ridiculed.

A baby cannot tell when you are laughing at him or with him. Fear of ridicule is the seed of inferiority, and it starts at the cradle.

FASHION NOTES.

The New Coats.

The jackets of tailor-made and sports suits are on the whole longer, and instead of reaching just below the waistline, as we have been used to see them, reach to the hip-bone and a little below it.

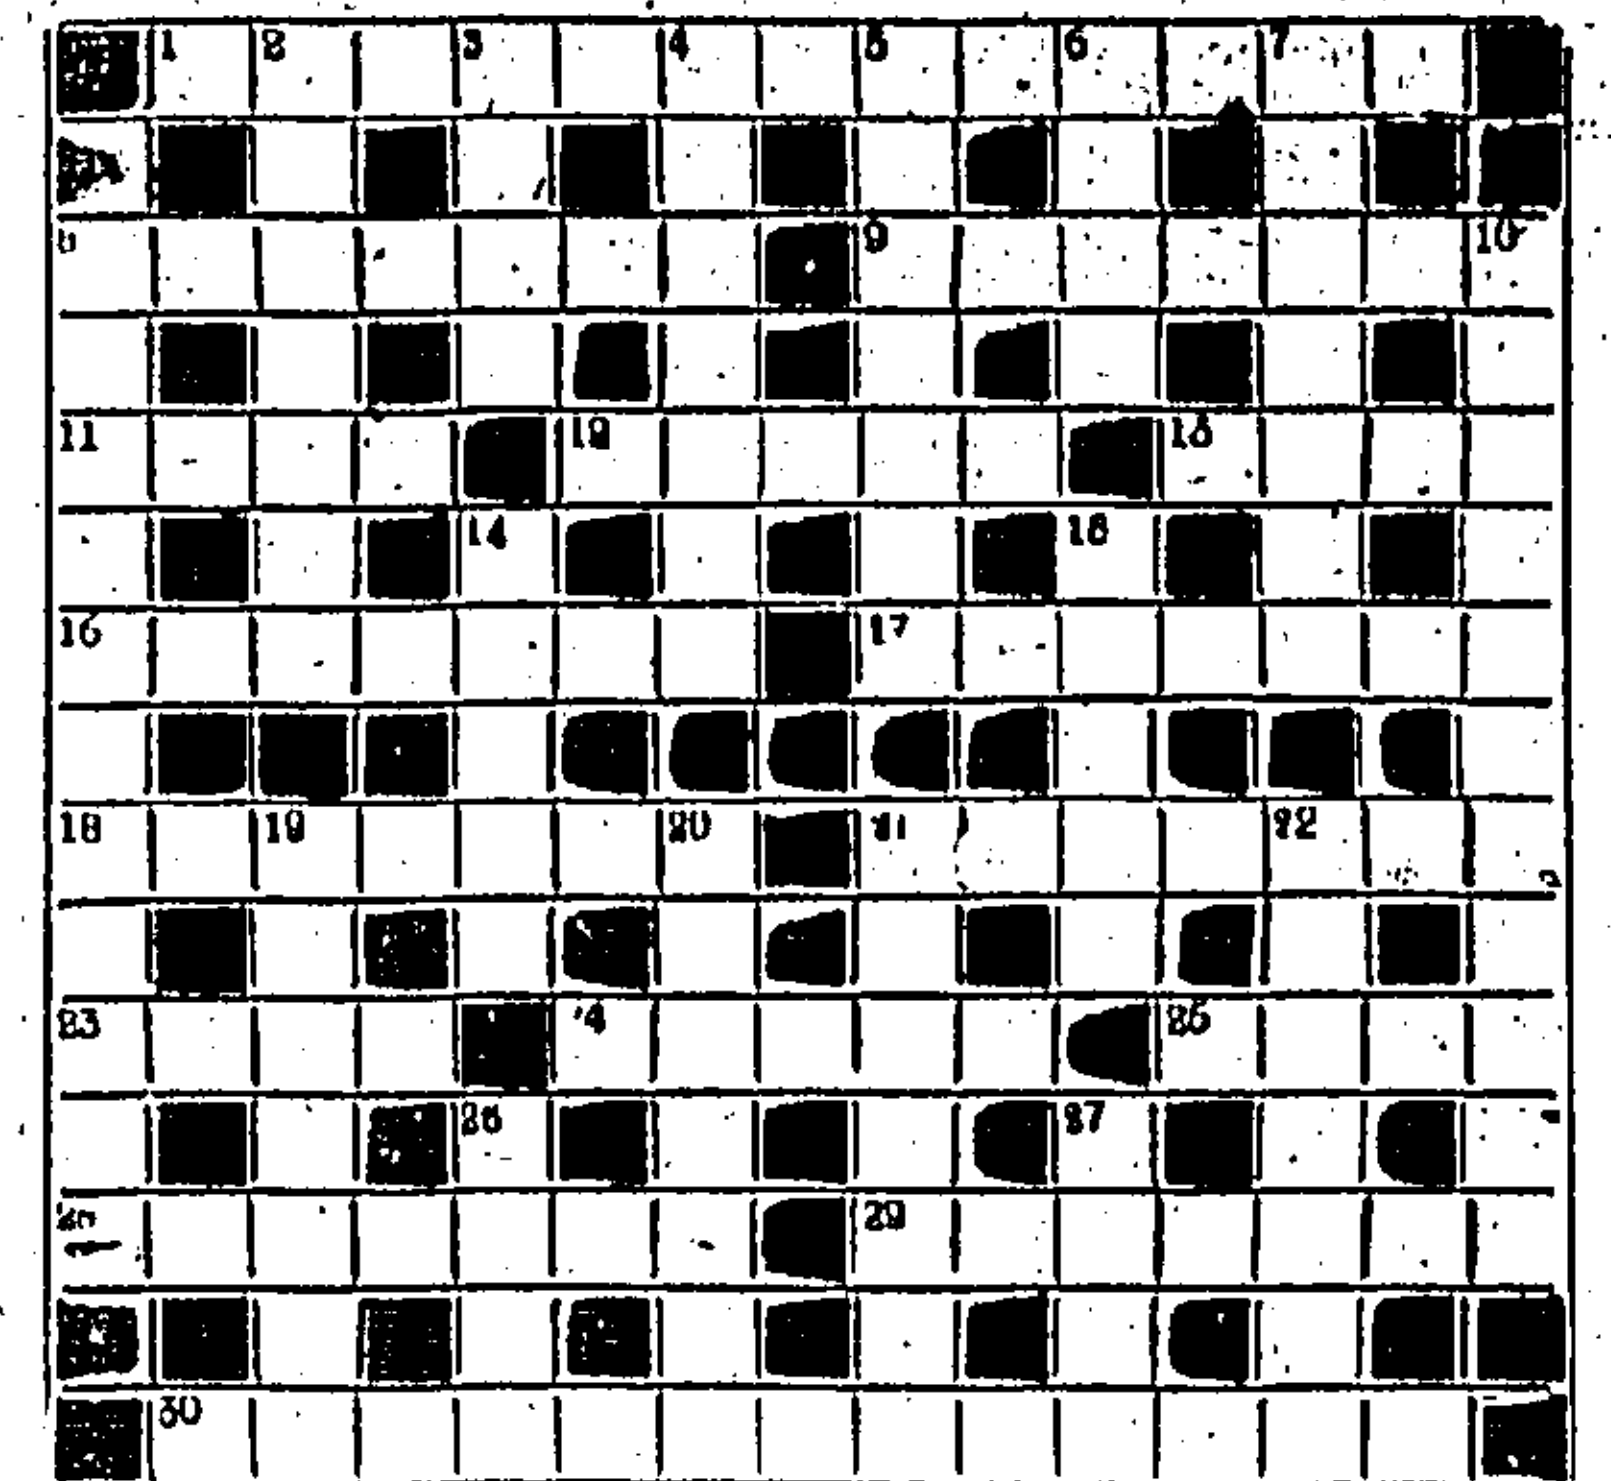

Many of the long coats are two or three inches shorter than the dresses worn beneath them. Dark coats are still worn over light dresses, and light coats over dark dresses.

Both jackets and long coats are ten sleeveless, with small boulder capes, or the jackets may have short sleeves over short or long sleeved frocks.

The long coats are usually straight in effect, with the fullness achieved by means of "vases" or pleats near the hem. Fullness on some of the more dressy effects is achieved by a wide variety of means. The "vase" design is used very effectively, usually with a narrow sash to tie behind; godets, set very low, are seen, and all manner of pleats.

Hats are novel. A large beehive shape has appeared several times with beach frocks; another new hat is boat-shaped, and a third rather resembles the headgear worn by William Tell.

The Hongkong Telegraph

MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 26, 1932.

THE WHITE SCOURGE

Ceylon, like Hongkong, finds tuberculosis one of its biggest health problems, but, although the death-rate from the disease is still very high, some mitigation of the evil has been taking place in recent years. The causes for the better state of affairs are several, but amongst others the establishment of an Anti-Tuberculosis Institute, with consequent better diagnosis and earlier recognition, is to be noted. The general and progressive improvement of the sanitary condition of Colombo is also a factor. A further aid has been the appointment of a whole-time inspector to deal with insanitary buildings in the city, and the action taken by him to render fit for habitation a large number of dwellings (over four thousand from 1925 to 1930) is reported to have contributed very materially to the reduction in the incidence of the disease.

In an official report on the disease, the Medical Officer of Ceylon says tuberculosis is a problem not only to the sanitarian and the social worker but, owing to its intimate and inseparable association with economic and social factors, such as industrialism, wages, unemployment, poverty, housing, etc., it has become a national problem of the greatest importance and complexity to the State. In spite of the great strides taken in the West in matters of sanitation and public health, the disease has not been completely wiped out yet, but still continues to levy a terrible toll of lives, being more deadly and expensive in its effect than war. Sanitary progress alone has not been sufficient to attack it. The social and economic factors also to be taken into account in dealing with this problem if we are to make more rapid progress in fighting it. The disease is of world-wide prevalence; between the years 1918 to 1927 it has been estimated that 40 millions have died of tuberculosis in the various countries of the world. In India over six millions are said to be affected by the disease, and that over a million die annually. An astounding price to pay for the infringement of Nature's simple laws. For wherever man has departed from the natural and simple ways of life and has created for himself an artificial environment, tuberculosis has arisen as the avenger to exact full payment. In every city and town of the civilized world where there is industrialism, crowding together of human beings, sweated labour, low wages, unemployment, alcoholism, poverty, bad housing, etc., tuberculosis thrives and spreads and from the cities the surrounding villages become gradually infected.

If in countries where great progress and reforms have been made in the sanitary, social, economic and educational spheres the disease is still regarded as a scourge, what devastation must it cause in countries where such reforms are still in the primitive stages or not so advanced! The disease being ordinarily one of fairly long duration, its victims drop off one by one unnoticed, and its ravages do not strike the imagination as do the more rapidly operating epidemic diseases such as cholera, small-pox or plague, which though more dreaded actually cause less destruction, less suffering and less expense. Owing to this fact neither the State nor the people treat the problem of tuberculosis as a matter of urgent and prime importance, and one that should be fought with all the resources and means at their command. Ceylon is doing something in the way of definite war on the disease, and it surely behoves the authorities in Hongkong to keep a vigilant watch on the dread scourge.

Exchanging Art Treasures.

The efforts to raise the ban upon the lending overseas of paintings in the British Museum and National Gallery display the desire of British people to make it possible for foreign countries to organize for their people exhibitions of old masters drawn from various countries. Such exhibitions have been held in London to the great delight of many people. As London art galleries contain a large number of old Italian, Dutch, Flemish, and Spanish masters, any other country will be handicapped in the holding similar exhibitions unless the present law forbidding the loan of pictures from London galleries is amended. International reciprocity in this field is indeed extremely desirable. Having enjoyed its benefits and having lately collected in London from every corner of the world the treasures of the East for the exhibition of Persian art, it is difficult to see how Britain can very well refuse a favour which it has already accepted from other countries. Yet the House of Lords expressed itself unwilling to concede these powers to the trustees of the British Museum and the National Gallery. Indeed, the trustees apparently turned down the Government's offer. The reasons advanced, however, seem singularly unconvincing. If the risk entailed in the transport of a painting by an old master is really so great, then international exhibitions cannot be held at all, for no nation can be asked to risk losing the irreplaceable. The London exhibitions, however, furnish an answer: both Holland and Italy were anxious to be pioneers in such international exhibitions. If a painting could go safely by sea from Rome to London and back again, a similar painting from a London gallery should make the same journey with similar safety. The

TO KNOW HOW A BAD MAN WILL ACT WHEN IN POWER, REVERSE ALL THE DOCTRINES HE PREACHES WHEN OBSCURE.—S. Montague.

The quarantine restrictions imposed by Hongkong against arrivals from Kluangchow (Hohow) on account of cholera have been removed.

The Sincere Co., Ltd., announce that to-morrow, being Confucius' Commemoration Day, their stores will be closed for business, re-opening on Wednesday as usual.

By taking a dose of opium, Wong Ching, a married woman of 120, Tung Chai Street, Mongkok, committed suicide yesterday. Her body was later removed to the Public Mortuary.

In the attempting to alight from a tramcar whilst it was in motion yesterday a young Chinese, of 104 Cross Path, received injuries to his head and was taken to the Government Civil Hospital for treatment.

An eleven-year-old girl, Chung Ying, of 9, Great George Street, was removed to the Government Civil Hospital last night suffering from a fractured leg received when she ran into a bicycle in Hennessy Road, near Great George Street.

Dr. Miatowski, F.T.C.L., visited the Helenus Music Institute last Thursday evening, to hear the recital given by Miss Norah Flint's ladies' choir. He congratulated them on their progress and presented them with one of his own compositions. He expressed the hope that he might hear them again next year, and that in the meantime, their membership would steadily increase.

The health bulletin for Eastern ports for the week ended September 17, shows the following cases of infectious diseases and deaths therefrom: Plague; Bombay 3 cases 3 deaths, Colombo 2 cases 1 death, Calcutta 17 cases 5 deaths, Poon-Poon 1 case 1 death, Saigon 1 case 2 deaths, Amoy 31 cases 10 deaths, Canton 1 case 2 deaths, Nan-king 13 cases 1 death, Shanghai 47 cases 6 deaths, Small-pox; Alexandria 5 cases 1 death, Basrah 1 case 1 death, Bombay 5 cases 4 deaths, Madras 6 cases, Pondicherry 3 cases 3 deaths, Saigon 1 case 2 deaths, Typhus; Port Said 1 case.

For originality of theme, excellence of production and good acting, "Devil's Lottery," now showing at the King's Theatre, is to be commended. Elissa Landi has the main role, and it is sufficient to say that she gives of her best and that she contributes largely to the success of the film. The casting generally is admirable, with the comedy parts well handled by Victor MacLagen and Beryl Mercer. The story revolves round a week-end party which a newspaper Peer, winner of the Derby, gives at his castle to the lucky holders of Calcutta Sweep winning tickets. All manner of people figure among the guests, and a murder and other complications, to say nothing of romance, are amongst the developments. Well worth seeing. The supporting films are also of much interest, making up a really excellent programme.

promise proposed by the trustees of the British galleries, that only loans of works by British artists should be allowed, hardly commends itself. There is at least equally great interest in the works of non-British artists in British galleries. Hence the interdict loans should be lifted from all types of pictures if the desired advance is to be made toward international co-operation in so praiseworthy an activity.

DO YOU SPEAK AMERICAN?

By JOHN BLUNT

It is a rather curious fact that while much American slang gains currency in England, it is not generally realised that the use of English itself is undergoing great changes in America.

And yet this is true to such an extent that the language of even cultivated Americans has a slightly exotic flavour, while certain words are positively incomprehensible without the context.

Who, for instance, could tell that a "commuter" was a season-ticket holder—that is to say, one who commutes his daily fare for another system of payment; that "rare," as applied to meat, means underdone (doubtless from raw); that "wild," also applied to meat, means rank—"before you cook a possum you must cut out the wild meat;" that an "interne" is the resident physician of a hospital; that a "tuxedo" is a dinner-jacket; that a "transient" is a person who makes a brief stay in an hotel; that "truck farming" is market gardening.

"Good-looking" Suit.

Certain adjectives have developed new shades of meaning. Thus a "homely" woman may mean simply a woman whose conduct commends itself. On the other hand, "good-looking" may be used of things as well as of persons—"what a good-looking suit you're wearing," while "ordinary," in its application to people, implies common. The derivation of this last word is simple: ordinary equals common and common equals vulgar. Furthermore, "dumb" may be stupid and "mean" may be nasty—"he gave me a mean glance."

Some American terms are at first very misleading to an Englishman. To quote the chairman of a company is its "president," while its managing director is its "chairman." Again, a "cracker" is a biscuit, but a "biscuit" is a "scone."

Yes, the English language in America is undoubtedly taking on a national tinge, and it is interesting to see the new significance which some words have acquired. For example, to "despise" is frequently only to dislike. Again, as a provincialism, "lunch" may be supper, and all over the country a "workhouse" is a prison for minor offences.

But the most elastic word in America is "fix," it may mean endless different things according to the context. You "fix" the dinner, meaning that you prepare it, and you "fix" the stove on which it is cooked, meaning that you mend it. And perhaps if the guest for whom you have done all this annoys you, you may finish by "fixing" him—which means that he has to be mended also. A most useful word.

"Most Everybody Says."

Sometimes the Americans use longer words than we do, and sometimes shorter. There is no rule. Thus, while a tap is a "faucet," gum "mucilage," and a lift an "elevator"; yet railway sleepers are "ties," strawberries "berries," tout court; (raspberries, however, are usually referred to as "red raspberries," as there is a somewhat tasteless variety of black raspberry); a full stop is a "period," and almost is frequently shortened to "most"—"most everybody was present."

But if there is no custom governing the choice between long and short words, it does look as if the Americans had rather a fondness for using two or more words where we would use one. A woman does not say that she teaches but that she "teaches school"; you do not watch football, but a "football game"; a private in the army is an "enlisted man"; and in a restaurant one's fair companion is likely to discuss "crab meat" and "sea food."

It is obvious that certain American usages have been determined by special circumstances. The country having been, for the most part, opened up by railways, it is natural that a railway should be called a "railroad," for in the early days it fulfilled both functions. And as the word servant has a derogatory significance in democratic America, it is natural that a servant girl should be a "hired girl."

For many words employed by us the Americans have substitutes, which, while perfectly comprehensible, nevertheless sound strange to English ears. Here follow some specimens. A sitting-room is a "living-room"; a lodger is a "roomer"; a charwoman is a "scrub-woman"; petrol is "gasoline," shortened to "gas"; a flat is an "apartment"; a holiday is a "vacation"; golfers are "rubbers"; insects are "bugs"; a limited company is an "incorporated" company; situated is "located"; an undertaker—a most important personage in America, where practically every corpse is cremated—is a "mortician"; and a veterinary surgeon is a "veterinarian."

Of course, many Americans still use the English forms of such words, but, nevertheless, the trend towards divergence is strongly marked. Here are some old examples: the last letter of the alphabet is pronounced "zee"; aluminium is spelt "aluminum"; a small cup of black coffee is a "demi-tasse" (a term unknown in France); and a "drug store" is not only a chemist's shop, but a "lunch counter," a "soda fountain" and a bookshop.

Your Sophisticated Hats.

Just as we probably use certain words with frequency that would sound rather singular to an American, so do Americans use certain words with frequency which are of relatively rare occurrence in England. Politicians are always "scoring" their opponents, and the head of any organisation, from the army and navy down, is the "ranking" member of it. Such terms as "moron," "debutante," and "relax" are fifty times more common in America than in England; while "sophisticated" in its special meaning of smart and modern, is beloved by advertisers. It is even applied to such inanimate objects as ladies' hats, though how a hat can be sophisticated is quite a puzzle.

Slang is a fluid and self-conscious thing in every country, but language despite alien origins, is an autochthonous growth, representing the imponderable genius of the soil. And thus it may be supposed that in centuries to come the English of the United States will diverge more and more from the English of England and become a juster mirror of that something unique in the psychology of her people. It is quite to be desired, for so do nations give expression to their personality.

THIS WAR FEVER

By General Edward Kelly, B.O.

We foresee complications resulting from the eagerness on the part of adventurous Australians, who want to go and fight in the Paraguay-Bolivian "war."

These Anzacs don't mind which side they're on, so long as they can be in a dust up.

In the thick of the fight the Paraguayan Australian colonel would sight the Bolivian Australian colonel, and yell, "Well, stone the crows! If it ain't old Blucy!"

And the war would be held up on that particular sector, and in a few days the front line would be turned into a vast two-up school.

There will be Australian reunions all over the place.

"What you fighting on the Bolivian side for, Blucy?"

"Stewth! Am I? I thought I was with the other mob. How's the grub on your side?"

And a message is sent by the Bolivian Australian general to the Paraguayan Australian general:

"Dear Spilinter,—Would you mind retiring about four hundred yards this arvo as I want to advance. I notice you canning blighter that you're

You promised I'd have this baby he would be in the movies before he was six months old—and he turns out to

LATEST TYPE OF REFRIGERATOR

BRITISH MACHINE OF LOW PRICE

Refrigeration by flame may sound paradoxical, but it is this principle which is applied to the latest type of Electrolux refrigerator which is now being put on the local market by Messrs. Shewan, Tomes & Co.

Ammonia, heated either by kerosene, gas or electricity, expands and is passed through to the cabinet and in turn absorbs all the heat therein. This remarkable domestic machine has other interesting features. It is the lowest priced cabinet refrigerator in the world, being sold in Hongkong for $300, it is British made, has no movable parts, is motorless, silent and is made in two models, either air cooling or water cooling.

The portable model is especially suitable for yachts, launches, flats, and hospitals.

There is no doubt that this new type of refrigerator will meet a much-felt want in Hongkong. A fresh consignment has just arrived in the Colony.

SIAMESE WHO IS "WANTED"

WILLING TO RETURN

A Siamese, who gave his name as Nii Buox, was arrested in the Colony last week on a warrant, charging him with the embezzlement of Tels 752 in Bangkok on two different dates last year. He appeared before Mr. Schofield at the Central Magistracy to-day.

Chief Detective Inspector Reynolds said he understood the fugitive was willing to waive extradition proceedings and proceed to Siam of his own accord. A remand of 48 hours was required in order to enable arrangements to be made with the Consul for Siam of the man's repatriation.

The Magistrate, (to Buox).—The question this Court has to consider is whether you should be sent back to Siam for trial or not. If you are willing to be sent back, then there is no issue tried in this Court.

The prisoner signified his readiness to dispense with the formality of extradition proceedings, and was accordingly remanded for the period desired by the police authorities.

OBITUARY

MR. OMAR ISMAIL PASSES AWAY IN HOSPITAL

The Indian sporting community of Hongkong have suffered a heavy loss by the death which occurred on Saturday night at the French Hospital of Mr. Omar Ismail, a popular member of the Indian Recreation Club.

Taken ill about a week ago, his case was at first thought to be malaria, but on Friday last his condition took a turn for the worse and he was removed to the French Hospital, where he was found by suffering from black water fever, a particularly virulent type of malaria.

In spite of the best medical attention he passed away on Saturday night. A feature of his death is that Mr. Ismail leaves behind a wife and three small children. His father, Mr. S. Ismail is senior writer of the naval Store Department at the Dockyard.

The late Mr. Ismail was twenty-eight years of age at the time of his death, and has long been connected with the National City Bank of New York, where he was very popular with all his colleagues. His death will be greatly felt by them as he was one of the most ardent organisers of all social functions at the Bank.

In sporting circles Mr. Ismail's loss will be keenly felt, especially by the Indian Recreation Club where he was a playing member of the cricket first eleven.

The greatest sympathy will be extended his wife and parents in the sad loss they have sustained.

The Funeral.

The funeral took place yesterday in the Mohamedan section of the Happy Valley cemetery, being attended by a large gathering of relatives and friends.

Among those present were his father, Mr. A. Cassumbhoy (father-in-law), Messrs. J. and S. Cassumbhoy (brother-in-law), Messrs. J. S. Acker, I. M. A. Razack, D. M. A. Razack, A. A. Razack, O. B. Y.M.C.A. BEATEN BY ODD GOAL

Borderer's Nine Goals Against Indians

At King's Park on Saturday afternoon, the Y.M.C.A. hockey first eleven suffered a defeat at the hands of the Royal Army Medical Corps by three goals to one.

A feature of the game between the “A” Company of the South Wales Borderers and the Hongkong Indian Mule Corps on the Marina ground on Saturday was the total of fifteen goals registered.

The Borderers altogether netted nine times, and the Indians six. The first was productive of seven goals, the Borderers claiming four. In the second half the Borderers added another five to their tally, while the Indians netted three more.

R.A.S.C. Beat R.A.O.C.

In a hockey match yesterday at Kowloon, the Royal Army Service Corps defeated the Royal Army Ordnance Corps 4 to nil in a keenly contested game. The score at half time was 3-0.

To-day's Match.

A match has been arranged for this afternoon between the Hongkong Hockey Club seconds and the Central British Association to be played on the Club ground at King's Park at 5.15 p.m.

The teams will be as follows:

Hongkong Hockey Club seconds:

E. Moses, L. A. R. Duncan, L. P. Nicholson (capt), G. F. Rees, E. Lowe, A. M. J. McIntyre, D. Kilbee, W. A. N. Nowers, D. B. Evans, S. Fox, and A. N. Other. Referee: A. A. Dan.

Central British Association:

Hongkong Players Lose to Eastern Shanghai.

Shanghai, Sept. 24.

In the Interport Lawn Bowls Tournament the Eastern Zone four beat Hong Kong by 19 to 16, after playing an extra end.

This was Hong Kong's only defeat in the official matches of the series. The teams gave a fine exhibition of bowls today, and it was anybody's game till the very last end.—Router.

Indian Seconds Win First Match of the Season.

In a low scoring match at Soekun-poo on Saturday, the Indian R.C. second eleven defeated the Royal Army Service Corps by 55 runs.

Batting first, the Indians could only total 70 runs, towards which A. E. Safford contributed 32. Whitley and Gray were the most successful bowlers for the Army team, each capturing five wickets for 10 and 20 runs respectively.

The military side, however, were soon in difficulties when facing the Indian attack, and were all dismissed for the small total of 21 runs. M. R. Abbas, the Indian captain, struck a good patch and returned the fine analysis of six wickets for only five runs.

SOUTH CHINA IMPRESS

(By "Veritas").

South China 4
(Lee Wai-tong (2), Fung King-cheung and Cheung Siu-hong).

Argyll & Sutherland Highlanders 1
(McTavish).

If any of the big crowd which gathered at Caroline Hill on Saturday to witness the South China first eleven contest the Argyll and Sutherlands in a friendly match, expected the Chinese to display signs of staleness after a year of almost continuous football, they were doomed to disappointment.

In their first local appearance after return from the southern tour, South China exhibited high class football and were clearly superior to the Argylls, who, finding themselves well beaten in the finer points of the game, turned to kick and rush tactics which proved equally fruitless against the polished team work of the Chinese.

That South China are going to provide very formidable opposition to all of the teams participating in the Hongkong league this year was on Saturday made perfectly obvious. Their well defined and cleverly executed methods of attack kept continual danger. There was not a discernible weakness, either fore or aft.

LEE WAI-TONG.

Lee Wai-tong, outstanding as the brainiest inside forward in local football, gave a very impressive demonstration of opening-up work. He clearly flummoxed the Argyll defence with his deft footwork and passes of well concealed direction. With Ip Pak-wa on the wing, the left section of the Chinese attack worked like a machine and it was this section which formed the mainpring of the Chinese attack. Fung King-cheung led the forwards with virility, though he could have opened up the game to some advantage.

The intermediate line, methodical and relentless, neither allowed the Argylls any rope, nor forgot their own forwards. Wong Mei-shun played brilliantly in the pivotal position and had the full measure of Wylie, who last year scored so profitably for the Highlanders.

Li Tin-sang was by far the outstanding back on the field, his clearances with both feet as well as his head, leaving Tang Sik-hung, the successor of Pau Ka-ping with very little to do. Li received adequate support from Tam Kong-pak, who sincerely put a wrong foot and held Hughes and McTavish in the hollow of his hands.

For two-thirds of the game the Argylls played good football, intelligent skill and brains against the pitiless play of the opposition, but one or two adverse decisions on the part of the referee influenced them in losing their heads and in the closing stages they not only indulged in definitely inferior football, but practised tactics which hardly reflected credit on them.

BLUNDER IN TACTICS.

Why Lamont and Campbell, who were obviously the source of greatest danger to the Chinese defence were so neglected after the first 15 minutes was a source of wonder to me. These two worked with an understanding which did not compare at all badly with that exhibited by their vis-a-vis, but they were robbed of the opportunity of turning that understanding to useful account.

Wylie worked hard but did not receive adequate support from the half-backs whose constructive work did not compare too favourably with that displayed by the South China intermediates.

Hay and Docherty in the rear line were vigorous in defence and performed extraordinarily well in keeping the opposition out during the first half. Their kicking, however, left a lot to be desired, direction and placements invariably being aimless.

Hastie kept a clever goal, and made two spectacular clearances from point blank shots.

GIFT GOAL.

There was plenty of speed in the exchanges; a few curious decisions by the referee which the crowd apparently failed to notice; one or two equally good decisions to which a section of the spectators unaccountably took exception and an thinking Lee Wai-tong was off-side, calmly kicked the ball back to him for that opportunist to place deftly in the net for a legitimate goal. Lee also netted with a perfectly taken penalty shot, whilst Fung King-cheung and Cheung Siu-hong were responsible for the other two. Wylie replied on behalf of the Argylls in the second half.

RESERVES DRAW.

Prior to this match, the second strings of the Argylls and South China enjoyed a friendly the result being a draw, both sides scoring twice.

Pau Ka-ping, erstwhile first eleven custodian, now playing centre forward for the South China reserves, netted one and Yeung Sin-yick the other, whilst Maxwell and King responded for the visitors.

KOWLOON'S TRIAL
WITH NAVYTWELVE GOALS: NINE
TO NAVY

Kowloon's trial match against the Royal Navy on Saturday demonstrated that the mainlanders will have to develop teamwork pretty quickly if they are to be a side to be reckoned with. Individually, the players, particularly the newcomers showed much promise.

The Navy ran out winners by nine goals to three, after leading 6-2 at half-time. The ball was in the Kowloon net ten seconds from the kick-off, the goalkeeper not having had time to reach his goal from a cross-over, but when Kowloon came back with a clever run and Watkins obtained a smart equaliser, a good game seemed likely.

Kowloon grew more and more ragged, however, and suffering the loss of London, the left back, who injured a knee, the smart Navy forwards swept through again and again. Melons scored a brilliant goal for Kowloon to bring the position to 3-2 in favour of the Navy, but afterwards it became evident that the superior combination of the Navy, who played capital football from start to finish, would tell its tale.

The second half was more keenly contested when a substitute for London was permitted but the Navy were still much the better side, though the Navy goal had narrow escapes. The Navy fielded a capital workmanlike side, well capable of holding its own with the best of the Colony's sides. The left wing was left fairly open and Rawson and his colleague made full use of the opportunities thus offered.

Kowloon were weak at back and the half-backs, a hard-working trio, were inclined to hold on to the ball too long. Watkins, who filled the centre-half berth, and will probably be right-half, in the league side, made a good impression.

The most encouraging part of the side was forward where Melons, the centre-forward, is likely to prove one of the captures of the season. Good ball control, a scoring shot in either foot, and ability to keep his line moving, marked him out from the beginning. Hill, at inside right, fitted in nicely, though he would do well occasionally, in his passing, to do other than the obvious thing. His goal was a capital header. An attentive partner would make a world of difference to Blake, the left-winger, who showed considerable ability in the second half.

Second Teams.

The Navy Second Eleven had earlier played Kowloon 2nd in a friendly trial game and had won 4-0. Very smart goal-keeping prevented a heavier score. The Kowloon backs were sound enough, but the half-backs and forwards were too much at sixes and sevens.

Search of
A CoachFOR THEIR YOUNG
CRICKETERSBETTER FIELDING NEEDED

AWARE of the necessity of training their young cricketers if their game is to be of real value later on, the Civil Service Cricket Club is asking for a volunteer as coach.

The appeal is made in the committee's report which has just been circulated, and among this, and other comments on the club's cricket, is reference to the poor fielding displayed last year, resultant upon the players not being on their toes.

The following extracts are taken from the report:
During the season 42 members resigned (which includes 18 members having left the Colony), and 17 members failed to comply with Rule 37 and consequently lost their membership. Of these eight left the Colony without giving the required notice, whilst 24 gentlemen joined the club including five rejoining members. The membership of the Club on the 31st July, 1932, was 187; this includes six life members and subscribing members.

CRICKET.
The past season was very disappointing, the Club dropping from 3rd to last place in the league. This was chiefly due to failure in the batting, as, with the exception of Mr. J. E. Richardson, no one had an aggregate exceeding 200.

Of the seven league matches played, 1 was won, 1 tied, and 5 lost; while of the 9 friendlies, 2 were won, 1 drawn, and 6 lost. We offer our congratulations to Messrs. J. E. Richardson and R. A. Simpson on heading the batting and bowling averages respectively. The 2nd Eleven had a very poor season if our position in the League table is to be the standard by which we are to be judged; for the first time in the history of the Club we occupied the bottom position in the league, however, all our games were very enjoyable and the majority of them were very close finishes, and as we play mostly for the exercise to be obtained from the game our league position is of secondary consideration.

League Matches: Played 10, Won 0, Lost 6, Drawn 4, Friendlies: Played 9, Won 3, Lost 2, Drawn 3. Mr. E. A. Wood and Mr. S. Randle head the batting and bowling averages respectively and we accord them our congratulations.

POOR FIELDING.
The batting during the season was only fair, although several players' aggregate exceeded the 200 runs. The fielding was poor as the majority of the players failed to be on their toes from the moment the bowler commenced to deliver the ball. Mr. J. F. McGowan joined the select few that have scored a century for the club by a well played innings of 103 against the Police Recreation Club. Mr. A. E. Wood was a tower of strength to the team both in batting and fielding. Some of his innings during the season reminded one of the days when he was at the top of his form. His league average, for the season under review was 37.12 runs for 10 innings, highest score being 64 not out, which placed him second in the league table of averages. We congratulate him on his successful season, and hope that the younger members of the club from now onwards will maintain Mr. Wood's standard of play.

VOLUNTEER WANTED.

There are several young members of the Club that require to be taken in hand if their cricket is to be of real value later on. Who will volunteer to act as coach to the younger school of cricketers? Club team also reached the

THERE were approximately 160,000 spectators at the five matches which were played in London. T. Law of Chelsea missed a dramatic penalty against Newcastle United at Stamford Bridge. The Cup holders were lucky to secure the verdict by the only goal scored.

The Arsenal beat Everton, the present holders of the championship, by a doubtful goal at Highbury, while Aston Villa scored a brilliant victory over Portsmouth at Fratton Park, winning one of the most thrilling games of the season.

On the Recreation Ground at Hanley, Port Vale scored a run-away victory over Chesterfield. S. C. Littlewood obtained six of the nine goals scored by the winners, five of them being in succession. Holiday performed the "hat trick" for Brentford, who were invincible against Newport at Somerton Park.

CINEMA SCREENINGS.

NOTES SUPPLIED BY THE THEATRES

Rolling nautical extravaganza, "Splinters in the Navy" will bring waves of laughter to the Queen's Theatre shortly. Written round the famous Splinters Concert Party, the comedy story provides Sydney Howard, Britain's screen monarch of mirth, with a part worthy of his richly humorous talent.

Set aboard a battleship, the fun commences immediately friend Sydney is shown paddling in a hammock with the P.O. endeavouring to wake him, and continues to the final fade-out, showing a blissful, though somewhat battered Sydney accepting the Admiral's Challenge Cup after winning a fight against the champion heavyweight of the Navy! It will blow your cares away.

"Devil's Lottery"

Her ardent literary ambition proved the stepping stone to fame for Ellissa Landi, sensational screen artist whose latest Fox picture, "Devil's Lottery," is now playing at the King's Theatre. Deciding early in her career to become a playwright, she joined a small repertoire company in England to obtain first-hand knowledge of the stage. As an actress she was an instant success and producers made her all kinds of tempting offers. Finally she was induced to play the leading role in "Storm." After the initial performance critics declared her a star and again offers began to pour in. But Miss Landi only turned a deaf ear and returned to stock for three years, during which period she wrote "The Helmer" and "Neilson." Deciding that she had absorbed all she could from the small stock company, Miss Landi accepted the leading role in "Lavender Ladies" and "The Constant Nymph." Next she played the feminine lead in two silent Elinor Glyn pictures and opposite Adolphe Menjou in a French movie.

Her first American appearance was in the Broadway stage success "A Farewell To Arms," and her performance, entered the Hollywood moguls into some spirited bidding for her services. It was with Fox Films that she finally signed and her first talking picture was "Body and Soul." "Always Goodbye," "Wicked," and "The Yellow Ticket" followed in rapid succession, and after a short visit to England she made her present vehicle, "Devil's Lottery," Miss Landi's historic success has not dimmed her literary ambition. Her latest book, "House For Sale," was recently published by an American publisher. In "Devil's Lottery" Miss Landi plays a woman of the world whose glamour brings shame to one man, death to another and understanding to a third and love to a fourth. She is supported by a sterling cast that includes Victor McLaglen, Alexander Kirkland, Paul Cavanagh, Barbara Weeks and Beryl Mercer. The production, directed by Sam Taylor, was adopted from Nalbro Bartley's successful novel.

"Sinners in the Sun"

Assigned her most important role since she left a social career to enter pictures as a Paramount contract player, Adrienne Ames recently abruptly terminated a New York vacation to hurry back to Hollywood to support Chester Morris and Carol Lombard in "Sinners in the Sun." Miss Ames, who has appeared in "21 Hours," "The Road to Reno," "Girls About Town" and "Honey," was selected for one of the featured parts in the filmization of Mildred Cram's magazine story.

"Sinners in the Sun," a story of modern life among those in moderate circumstances revolves around the efforts of two young sweethearts to marry and enjoy life above their stations before accepting each other. It comes to the King's Theatre Thursday next. Adapted to the screen by Vincent Lawrence and Waldemar Young, "Sinners in the Sun" will mark Morris' second role under his new Paramount contract. He currently is appearing in the all-star cast of "The Miracle Man." Miss Lombard was featured most recently in "No One Man."

"All Quiet on the Western Front"

Explosives enough to demolish a city were used in the greatest battle scenes ever filmed in "All Quiet on the Western Front." Universal's picturization of Erich Maria Remarque's masterful book of the war, which is showing at the Oriental Theatre to-day. More than 20,000 pounds of black powder and six tons of dynamite were used to give the effect of shell fire and mine explosions. Six thousand bombs were planted and exploded on the battlefield covering twenty acres of land on the Irvine ranch, near Los Angeles. Five hundred shells of various sizes were sent screaming and whistling through the air, actually fired from guns, to give the proper sound effect of shells in flight. These shells, of course, were fired in favor of the heads of the soldiers participating in the scenes. The effect of landing and bursting shells was gained by planted bombs exploded by electricity at the proper moment.

tured the sector with four hotels in it, and all I've got is half a golf course and two canals. And tell your troops to leave the place tidy. Last time we advanced your trenches were in a helluva mess. Yours, Darkie Stevens."

And a messenger from the enemy will crawl across No Man's Land and lean over the parapet of the opposition, and say, "General Snowy Wilson wants to know if Jonesy would let him have a little more of that stuff."

Caroline Hill yesterday, the first eleven winning by the odd goal in five.

South China, without the services of Lee Wai-tong suffered in team work and the forward line was easily held by the virulent Borderers' rear line.

Pallister was by far the most dangerous of the visiting forwards and continually worried the Chinese defence. His two goals were the reward of pertinacity.

On the whole both teams gave a sound display, the Borderers giving sufficient indication of their strength to warrant close attention in the league this year. Mullence and Morrison proved a fine pair of backs and Johnson, apart from his errors in carrying the ball, proved safe between the sticks.

RESERVES ALSO WIN.

The Borderers' reserves proved stronger in every department to the South China team and should have won by a more pronounced margin than 1-11.

The first half was blank, though both goals had narrow escapes, and in the closing stages only the grim work of the Chinese defenders kept the score down to a single goal, registered by Bebbington after 15 minutes play. Weak finishing by the Chinese forwards robbed them of equalising opportunities and before the close the soldiers had again assumed the ascendancy and were attacking strongly but without result when the final whistle blew.

The following players have been selected to represent the Radio Sports Club in a friendly match arranged against the Chinese Athletic 2nd eleven "B" at Happy Valley, 5.00 p.m. on Wednesday—
B. B. Kitchell, R. Aycock, J. Bowen; H. Bux, H. Hassan, L. B. Kitchell; J. H. Tavares, Chan Chun Ip, F. Elms, A. Elms J. Tavares, Res. J. Bowen and W. Kew.

NEW CLUBHOUSE OPENED

RED LETTER DAY AT THE K. C. C.

HAPPY FUNCTION

Saturday, the day on which the new Club House of the Kowloon Cricket Club was opened by Mrs. Southern, wife of H.E. the Officer Administering the Government. Hon. Mr. W. T. Southern, C.M.G., was a red-letter day in the annals of the Club.

Mr. Lindsell, in welcoming Mrs. Southern, said: "Ladies and Gentlemen—I will only detain you for a moment. It is my great privilege and pleasure to welcome you Mrs. Southern, and to assure you of our deep appreciation of the honour you have done us by consenting to open our new Clubhouse. I will ask you now to accept the presentation key at the hands of our architect, Mr. A. R. F. Raven, and armed therewith to declare the building open and to lead us into our new home."

Declaring the Club-house open, Mrs. Southern said: "There is probably no one less qualified than myself to open this Clubhouse, for I am, alas! no use at games. But while acutely conscious of my deficiencies I am cheered by two facts—one that your genial Chairman, who has presided over your destinies so successfully for eight years, is a very good friend of mine—and secondly, I yield to none in my admiration of those who play games, and those who encourage the team spirit in any form."

"The history of the K.C.C. has been set forth in an admirable booklet which he who runs—or even she who sits still—may read. The record is a fine one, and it is my pride and delight to be invited to-day to open this splendid new building, on which I hope good fortune will smile and in which, I hope, good fellowship will prevail." (Applause.)

Mrs. Southern then opened the door with the presentation key and those congregated outside entered and sat down to tea on the hall, on the extensive verandah or on the lawn.

Chairman's Address.

Addressing the gathering after tea Mr. Lindsell said: "In the Club calendar this is a red letter day, the reddest letter day in all the Club's history. It must be a birthday anniversary of St. Boniface, who, being patron saint of inns and innkeepers, must I take it, stand in some relation to Clubs. Anyway, I claim his patronage for this Club. Now I am not going to weary you with a history of this Club since its foundation in 1904. You will find all that set out in brochure, but I should like to say something of the vicissitudes and difficulties from which we have just emerged with the completion of this splendid Club-house."

Since the old pavilion came into existence in 1908, Kowloon has grown beyond belief and with growth our membership naturally increased. Twelve years ago it was already borne in on us that our accommodation was getting exceedingly cramped, and in 1921 a scheme was set on foot to build a new pavilion to cost about $25,000. This scheme was abandoned, and with the conversion of King's Park into recreation grounds we were allocated an area now occupied by the N. O. Sports Club and two other small areas below, and were notified that we could not hope to remain much longer on this site, which would be needed for other purposes. This was something of a fiasco and for awhile there was a sharp division of opinion among members as to whether we should move forthwith or hang on to these grounds as long as possible. Finally the stayers won and we stayed. Then in 1930 when our prospects of permanent occupation improved the new Club-house project revived, and though it had to be suspended for awhile it was not this time abandoned. Despite long delay and trouble with the contractor, this fine building, designed by Messrs. Raven and Basto has now at last become new.

home. No-one can, I think, gainsay we have the finest sports Club-house east of Suez. We have taken a risk and carried through a most ambitious project and I confidently believe not too ambitious. Kowloon is growing so rapidly that we believe that a big building like this together with the large grounds we occupy will attract more and more members through the social and sporting facilities we have to offer. We want more and more Kowloonites and even Hongkongites to feel there is something lacking in their lives if they have not joined the K.C.C. (Hear hear.)

Acknowledgment.

Now for a few words of thanks—first to H. E. the O. A. G. for kindly interest in our welfare. But for the postponement cruelly forced upon us by the typhoon he would have been present as our guest and skip of the very strong four from Government House. As it is, he has sent the Club a special message regretting that another engagement makes it impossible for him to be present here—regret which we most heartily reciprocate.

To our old friends of the cricket field Dick Hancock and Eric Mitchell we are deeply indebted for the fine clock which will before long grace the turret above our score box.

To contributors towards the cost of second billiard table again our grateful thanks: Our billiard room should be one of the great attractions.

To our architects also we are very grateful for this happy result of their labours, particularly Mr. Raven, who, in addition, is kindly presenting a clock for the billiard room.

Finally I cannot leave out the Building Sub-committee (though as Chairman thereof I feel here on rather delicate ground) and must pay tribute to the indefatigable efforts of my fellow workers. In particular Mr. Hirst, who as our so-called "land lord" might be the reincarnation of St. Boniface himself; Mr. Jimmy Hyde, who, though called "Grandpa" by the irreverent, I believe regards this building almost as one of his own children, and finally Mr. A. MacKenzie, who as special secretary in the past 18 months had done his job most cheerfully and efficiently.

One last word. I have the honour and privilege, on behalf of Club, to welcome all visitors here to-day particularly Mrs. Southern for having spared us the time and so charmingly performed for our opening ceremony, and for kind things you then said about the Club. What better send off could we have had on our new career?

Visitors Respond.

Responding to the toast, Mr. H. R. B. Hancock said that on looking around the large gathering he was rather at a loss to know why the honour of replying had fallen on him when there were so many more people who, he felt sure, could have done more justice to it than himself. He felt, at the same time, that it was because he had a longer cricket acquaintance with the members of the Club than any other visitor, and he valued very highly the friendship with the members of the Club which was formed so many years ago on the cricket field. They could take it from him that there was no better place to form and keep friendships than on the cricket field (Hear, hear).

Mr. Hancock said it was a great pleasure to him to see amongst the gathering a very old friend, Mr. J. P. Robinson (applause), Hon. Secretary of the Club. He had done a great deal for the Club and he hoped sincerely Mr. Robinson would be spared for a good many years.

"Apart from the many activities of the Club," continued Mr. Hancock, "such as tennis, cricket, bowls, etc., the one that lies in its greatest claim to fame lies in its unbounded hospitality. I am sure you will agree with me that in this respect Kowloon Cricket Club was not surpassed by any other club in the Colony. (Hear, hear.) It is regarded as one of the first Clubs in the Colony to offer a

LEAGUE POSTPONES ITS CONSIDERATION

Geneva, Sept. 24.
 After overruling the Chinese objection that the Council was not competent to discuss the matter, the Council of the League, under the Chairmanship of Mr. De Valera agreed to the Japanese request to postpone until November 14 the consideration of the Lytton report, the publication of which was fixed for October 1.

Mr. De Valera expressed the Council's regret that the Japanese Government had prejudiced the settlement of the dispute by recognising and signing a treaty with Manchukuo, without awaiting the publication of the Lytton report.

The Japanese delegate said he would not comment at the present time on Mr. De Valera's remarks. —Reuter.

hand of friendship to visitors, and members of visiting teams always go away expressing their admiration of the courtesy and friendliness displayed by the K.C.C. Then again there is the annual children's sports, organised by the Club every January, which have been held since 1906, and they are a source of great joy to the many children who appear on the invitation list of the Club.

About Cricket.

And now I want to say a few words about cricket. This Club is called the Kowloon Cricket Club and I don't want you to forget that middle word. And you young members, do not be led away by other older members to other forms of sport. Stick to your cricket as long as you can, and when you have had a long experience of the game you will not regret it."

A Drawn Game.

During the afternoon a cricket match which resulted in a draw was played between the Kowloon Cricket Club and Mr. H. R. B. Hancock's XI. The visitors batted first and compiled a total of 132 for the loss of seven wickets. The principal scorers were Lieut. A. C. Hamilton, 39, Lt. Comdr. Southern, 29, J. E. Richardson, 26, and E. Zimmerman, 21, while Burnett had the best bowling average for the Club, capturing four wickets for 21 runs.

The Club went in to bat soon after tea and replied with 69 for seven when stumps were drawn. Of this total, A. T. Lay contributed 28 and E. F. Fincher 21. Bowling for the visitors Richardson took four wickets for 15 runs and Pereira three for eight.

Lawn Bowls Match.

The results of the lawn bowls played in connexion with the opening were as follows:

1st Rink:—Hyde, Overy, Lindsell and Jack (K.C.C.) lost to Shield, Gow, Tacchi, and Maughan, 12-31.

2nd Rink:—Farrell, Russell, Smith and Cullen (K.C.C.), beat Moss, Hamilton, Webster and Russell, 20-14.

3rd Rink:—Gibson, Chadwick, Ferguson and Burford (K.C.C.) lost to Grimmett, Arculli, Alderman and de Rome, 18-22.

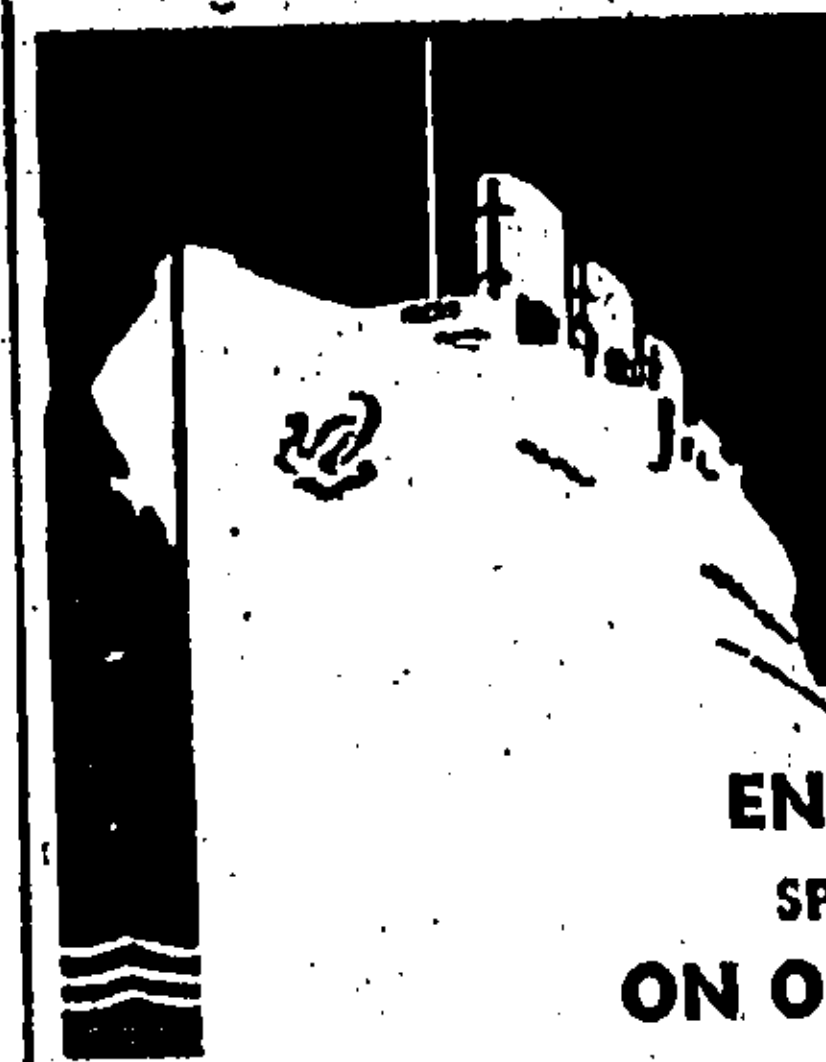

4th Rink:—Hirst, Kern, Harrison and Kristoferson (K.C.C.) beat Rapley, Hunter, Henderson and Gutierrez 21-22.

5th Rink:—McTavish, Jack and Gittins (K.C.C.) beat Macfarlane, Hopkin and Bentley, 29-14.

6th Rink:—Fraser, Labrum, Simpson and Brown (K.C.C.) lost to Macfarlane, Gill, Duncan and Ramsey, 10-20.

7th Rink:—Nish, Lawrence, Chapman and Dinnen (K.C.C.) beat Cavanagh, Longbottom, Stewart and de Souza, 22-14.

In the evening a dance was held in the spacious hall, music being supplied by Mickey's Melody Makers. The exterior of the Club-house, which illuminated with coloured fairy lights, presented an impressive sight.

JOINING THE POLICE.

TWO FORMER HONGKONG BOYS RETURNING

Two former Hongkong boys who were here when their fathers served in the Police Force, are returning to the Colony at the end of next week in company with two other young men who have also been engaged by the Hongkong Police. Of the latter, one has relatives in the Colony but as yet the fourth has not been identified beyond his name.

Messrs. Tom Cashman and Davitt are among the quartette and they will be remembered by the present generation of young men. Mr. Cashman is the son of Mr. Thomas Cashman, who joined the Police Force on October 31, 1898 and retired on pension as an Inspector in August 1926, while Mr. Davitt's father is Mr. William Davitt, who joined on the same day as Mr. Thomas Cashman but retired as early as February, 1922.

A third member of the party is Mr. Headridge, who is the brother of Mrs. W. R. McWalter. Inspector McWalter is in charge of the Western District and is stationed at No. 7 Police Station. Mr. Headridge is also the brother of Sergeant W. N. Headridge of the Water Police.

A Mr. Johnstone is the fourth member of the group but as yet his identity has not been established. It is not known whether he has had any connexions with the Colony.

The party is due to arrive on the P. & O. Rajputana on October 6.

LESSON-SERMON.

FIRST CHURCH OF CHRIST. SCIENTIST, HONGKONG

"Reality" was the subject of the Lesson-sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, yesterday.

The Golden Text was—"From everlasting to everlasting, thou art God." (Psalm 90:2.)

Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible—"Wherefore henceforth know we no man after the flesh: ye, though we have known Christ after the flesh, yet now henceforth know we him no more. Therefore if any man be in Christ, he is a new creature: old things are passed away; behold, all things are become new." (2 Corinthians 5:16, 17.)

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health, with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy—"Detach sense from the body, or matter, which is only a form of human belief, and you may learn the meaning of God, or good, and the nature of the immutable and immortal. Breaking away from the mutations of time and sense, you will neither lose the solid objects and ends of life nor your own identity. Fixing your gaze on the reality supernal, you will rise to the spiritual consciousness of being, even as the bird which has burst from the egg and preens its wings for a skyward flight." (p.261.)

TRAGIC EXPERIMENT.

ENGINEERS KILLED WHILE TESTING A CAR

Budapest, Sept. 25.

Two engineers experimenting with a motor car fitted with propellers at the rear, intended to enable the machine to clear obstacles by raising and remaining in the air, were killed in the final test.

An explosion took place and wrecked the car.—Reuter's Special.

CHINESE FUNERAL.

VETERAN SUB-OFFICER OF FIRE BRIGADE

His many friends have learned with regret of the death of the late Mr. Ip Loi, a Sub-officer of the Fire Brigade, who retired only three weeks ago on pension after long service with the Brigade extending over twenty-six years. The deceased was 62 years of age and left a widow and a son.

A popular and highly respected officer, the deceased was the only Chinese to be promoted from the ranks through every grade, fireman, stoker, foreman, steam-engine driver, motor driver, interpreter and then finally Sub-officer. He taught himself English while working as a fireman. Sub-officers are now recruited from the colleges.

The funeral procession left the deceased's residence at No. 97 Thomson Road, Wanchai, at 11 o'clock yesterday followed by a Brigade car holding many wreaths. Passing the new Wanchai Station the procession stopped, while the 64 members of the Brigade were lined up outside the station to pay their last respects to the deceased. The 64 officers accompanied the cortege to Pokfulam where the remains were buried at the Chinese Cemetery.

Among those attending were noted many officers from the Fire Brigade who attended voluntarily, including sub-officers Heywood Chan, John Chan, Lam Hung-kee, Chak Shing-tak, ex-sub-officer Harold Chan, members of the clerical staff of the Fire Brigade.

Wreaths were sent by the Hon. Mr. T. H. King, the Deputy Inspector-General of Police and Chief Officer of Fire Brigade, European officers of the Central Fire Station, Kowloon Fire Station sub-officers, Staffs of the Central Fire Station, the Kennedy Town Fire Station, Wanchai Fire Station, Kowloon Fire Station, Mongkok Fire Station, Fire Float officers and crew members, artisans, clerical staff of the Fire Brigade, A.S.O., Mr. A. J. Cash, A.S.O., Mr. J. W. Woollard, Mr. and Mrs. G. C. Moss, Sub-officer Shum Loi On, Mr. Cheung Ma Kong and many others.

Lifted hands. Curious that he had not recalled earlier the supreme desolation of that moment. Funny things, dreams. Truly disconcerting, the recollection of mechanism of dreams! Silly. Complete tommyrot. Withal he had seen her on the bed plain enough, a corpse. He had seen the nurse run out, and heard the click of the door. But the click of the door, he remembered, was the click of his own bedroom door as a manservant came in apologetically with the changeless cup of tea at seven-thirty.

PEACE IN SIGHT

REPORTED SETTLEMENT IN SHANTUNG

Shanghai, Sept. 25.

Telegrams from Tsinan state that the dispute between Generals Han Fu-chu and Liu Chen-nien, the cause of the recent fighting in Shantung, has been amicably settled.

The opposing sides however are maintaining their positions pending a final settlement by the Central Government.—Reuter.

BANIT DEMAND

MANCHURIA FOR THE BRITISH CAPTIVES

Dairen, Sept. 25.

The captors of Mrs. Pawley and Mr. Corkran have despatched a second letter to Mr. Phillips, Mrs. Pawley's father, which is somewhat illogical and reflecting on their intelligence.

"We feel sure you received our first letter, but you failed to reply within a few days. Why such delay? We now lay the following additional demand of a hundred rifles, 80,000 bullets, 120 revolvers, 400 tons of bullets, 100 rings, 30 gold watches, 50 yards of black satin, two heavy machine guns and 50,000 bullets, the latter two items to be sent by the Asiatic Petroleum Company.

"If there is no reply within a week, we will chop off the ears of Mrs. Pawley and Mr. Corkran and present them to you.

"If there is no reply within two weeks, we will shoot them. We are never kind and are not merely threatening you, but will carry out our threat if our demands are not complied with."

"If England negotiates with Japan for the return of the three Eastern Provinces to Chang Hauch-liang's north-eastern volunteer corps within a week, both captives will be released unconditionally."

The letter is signed by three bandits, Hsi-shun, Pei Pa-tien and Chu-cheng.—Reuter.

EXHIBITION OPENED.

GREAT RESULTS EXPECTED FROM BRITISH DISPLAY

Copenhagen, Sept. 24.

Britain and Denmark expect great results from the British Exhibition organised by the Danish Government and opened this morning with speeches by Premier Stauning, the British Minister, Major Colville, and the Prince of Wales.

Mr. Stauning extolled British engineering, which supplied Denmark with her first steamship, most of her railways, aeroplanes, gasworks and electricity plants. Major Colville congratulated the Danish Government on its notable contribution to the development of Anglo-Danish trade.

The Prince of Wales, in formally opening the Exhibition, expressed his gratitude at the friendly spirit and purely Danish initiative which produced one of the most representative exhibitions of British production ever held on the Continent of Europe.—Reuter.

CHANGES FORCAST

TO FOLLOW MR. SUN FO'S VISIT TO NORTH

Shanghai, Sept. 25.

The arrival here to-day from Hongkong of Mr. Sun Fo is expected to presage important political developments, for he will probably go to Kuling to confer with Chiang Kai-shek.

It is reported that Mr. Wang Ching-wei will follow later and that decisions which will give the Government greater stability are probable.

Mr. Sun Fo denied he had been offered his old post as President of the Executive Yuan, from which he resigned in May 1931, but it is expected by well-informed circles that he will remerge in that position before long.—Reuter's Special.

VON GRONAU ARRIVES

FLIGHT AS GESTURE OF GERMAN GOODWILL

LEAVES TO-MORROW

Captain Wolfgang von Gronau, the noted German aviator, who is making a world flight, arrived at the Kai Tak Aerodrome yesterday afternoon and was accorded a magnificent welcome. The German community turned out en masse to give their compatriot a rousing reception. The aviator leaves to-morrow for Manila.

At ten minutes past three, the amphibian Cutty Sark piloted by Mr. A. V. Harvey of the Far East Aviation Company rose from the harbour and flew away over Lye-moon Pass to meet the visitor. With him were Capt. Farrar Mr. F. P. Franklin and Mr. D. S. Scott. A few minutes later, an Avro Cadet with Mr. Jones Evans at the controls flew off on the same mission.

The planes had not left the drome very long before the roar of the motors indicated their return.

Above and in front of them flew a stranger—a huge grey monoplane.

It was the machine which sprung into fame late in July when it crossed the Atlantic—the D-2053 Dornier Wahl, piloted by Germany's flying boat ace.

Perfect Landing.

The three machines circled the aerodrome before the Dornier glided slowly down across the field to make a perfect landing in the harbour.

A few minutes later it was at the landing stage, and the crowd had its first view of the fliers. A hundred cameras clicked, recording the sun-tanned faces of the men in the cockpits.

A motor boat towed the machine out to the buoy and then transferred the visiting aviator to a launch aboard which was Dr. Hahn, German Consul General, and other prominent German residents. Shortly afterward, a motor boat put off and brought the party ashore. The Superintendent of the Civil Aerodrome, Mr. Moss and leading Germans of the Colony congratulated the aviator. Three cheers for Captain von Gronau were heartily given.

Beautiful Weather.

In Mr. Moss's office a few minutes after the landing, Captain von Gronau was interviewed by Press representatives.

"We had beautiful weather all the way from Shanghai," he said. "We left at 7.50 this morning and when two hours out ran into a light shower of rain. A following wind assisted us and the visibility was perfect.

"On our way down we were in wireless communication with the German steamer Nordmark. She was well away from the coast to avoid the reefs but was anxious to see us. We headed out and circled low over her before coming on to Hongkong."

Captain von Gronau said he would leave for Manila on Tuesday and would proceed home via Batavia, Borneo and Sourabaya.

GANDHI'S FAST WINS?

FINAL COMPROMISE MAY SAVE LIFE

Poona, Sept. 25.

If Mr. Ramsay MacDonald agrees to the cabled proposals then Gandhi's fast will have done its work by abolishing separate electorates throughout India for the depressed classes, at expense, however, of a considerable number of seats which would otherwise be occupied by caste Hindus.

The agreement to compromise is cutting both ways but it is not doubted that an impetus will be given to the movement to uplift the depressed classes by reform work on the part of caste Hindus.

Already many temples have been opened and other facilities offered, but it is a question whether the enthusiasm will remain permanent.

The depressed classes leader, Ambedkar, is highly delighted at the satisfactory compromise. Caste Hindu leaders are not so enthusiastic, but are genuinely and intensely relieved that the great effort to save Gandhi's life has been successful.

Race Against Time.

This announcement follows a grim battle against time, as fresh difficulties had occurred early this morning, and Gandhi's doctor had stated that there was little hope of recovery unless the fast was soon terminated. His voice was becoming weaker and he was suffering from nausea and giddiness, finding it difficult to keep his eyes open. Meanwhile the negotiations were threatened with failure.

The formal agreement regarding the depressed classes is now being typed, and will be signed in the presence of Gandhi at Yerovda Jail by representatives of the caste Hindus and the depressed classes.

Meanwhile the leaders of the two sections are drafting a cable to the Premier, Mr. Ramsay MacDonald, announcing the agreement and requesting him to withdraw the part of the communal decision relating to the depressed classes and thus enable Gandhi to break his fast immediately.

Gandhi is lying prostrate on his cot and, when the points of the agreement were communicated to him, he raised himself on his elbows and signified assent with a smile.—Reuter.

COAL THIEVES SENTENCED

CREW OF LAUNCH INCLUDED

Judgment was given by Mr. Fraser, at the Kowloon Magistracy this morning, in the case in which seven seamen were charged in connexion with the alleged larceny of coal from the China Navigation Company's steam launch Tai Koo Law on the evening of August 3.

The first five defendants, comprising the crew of the launch, were charged with larceny of four baskets of coal, while the other two defendants, coxswain and assistant coxswain of the launch Hongkong Hotel, were charged with receiving stolen property.

Mr. D. B. Evans prosecuted for the China Navigation Co., while Mr. M. A. Silva appeared on behalf of the first five defendants and Mr. Horace Lo for the other two.

In giving judgment, his Worship, in the course of a lengthy resume of the case, said he had considered the case very carefully and had gone fully into the evidence. If the defence had put up a reasonable story, his Worship was bound to believe them, but under the circumstances, he found he could not. He must therefore convict them all.

Both Mr. Silva and Mr. Lo pleaded for leniency on behalf of their clients.

Mr. Evans, in answer to his Worship, said he had no objection to the third, fourth, fifth and seventh defendants being treated with leniency, but the case against the first, second and sixth defendants was more serious, as they held the responsible positions in the two launches involved. The others were only subordinates.

His Worship passed sentence of three months' hard labour on the first, second and sixth defendants, while the rest were fined $25, or one month, each.

For having committed a breach of his licence by having carried salt, Kwok Yung, a junk foki, was fined $50 by the Hon. Comdr. Hoie, at the Marine Court this morning. The mistress of three cargo boats were each fined $10 or one week's imprisonment, for having anchored their craft inshore at the Wing Lok Street Wharf. Leo Sam-lung, the steersman of a junk, was fined $25 or in default three weeks' imprisonment, for having left port during prohibited hours.

RECENT TENSION IN FOOCHEW

PLANE DROPS "RED" LEAFLETS

Foochow, Sept. 20.

On Sunday, an aeroplane was noticed circling over Foochow and I am told that it dropped Communist or at least anti-Government leaflets. Other leaflets of the same type were distributed in various parts of the city. Their general tenor was that the Kuomintang had done nothing for the country, and the sooner it was overthrown, the better for everybody.

No doubt partly as a result of these efforts at propaganda, and a precaution against any unforeseen occurrences, a large number of soldiers were stationed in different parts of the city and suburbs that afternoon, and remained on duty all night. They were more particularly anxious to guard against disturbance in the foreign residential quarter where a number of Japanese live. As far as I know, no trouble of any kind took place, and the night passed off in perfect quiet.

To-day traffic has been suspended across the Long Bridge, owing to the arrival of General Chiang, Commander of the 19th Army. It seems that Chen Kuo-Hui and others of the "old gang" who have been enjoying a sort of authorised banditry in Fukien during the last few years, are beginning to fear that their days are numbered, and trouble is liable to break out any time between them and the newly arrived 19th Army.—Our Own Correspondent.

UNREGISTERED MUI-TSAI

TECHNICAL OFFENCE COMMITTED

A nominal fine of $10 was imposed by Mr. Wynne-Jones, at the Central Police Court this morning, on a married woman who appeared on a charge of bringing an unregistered mui-tsai into the Colony on September 8.

Inspector H. W. Fraser informed his Worship that the lady inspector of Mui-tsai was visiting the third floor of 398, Des Voeux Road, where she saw the girl on the second floor. On enquiry she

GOVT. SERVANT CHARGED

ALLEGED RECEIVING OF CAMERA

A messenger in the employ of the Treasury Office appeared before Mr. Wynne-Jones at the Central Police Court this morning, charged with receiving a camera, the property of Mr. B. L. Falconer, a round-the-world traveller who has since left the Colony.

Detective Sergeant Homaley applied for a remand until tomorrow in order to secure witnesses. He said the complainant had already left the Colony for good, but it was hoped to prove that the camera belonged to him. The camera was stolen from the Post Office counter whilst Mr. Falconer was purchasing stamps on September 19, and three days later the defendant took it to a photographer in Queen's Road for repairs, remarking that it belonged to a friend. The camera being of a new type, the photographer intimated that he knew little about it, but it was left at the shop.

Later, Mr. Way, of the Manufacturers Life Co., went to the shop and was shown the camera. He offered to make enquiries for the photographer and took it to Schmidt & Co., who informed the police. The defendant was subsequently traced and arrested. Evidence would be given that he was in the Post Office on the day in question.

The case was adjourned until to-morrow.

Letters of administration with the will of U. Chan Young, alias Chan Young, late of Shui Yeung village, and one time clerk in San Francisco, annexed, have been granted to his widow. The estate is valued at $5,200.

found that the girl was not registered. The girl was presented to the defendant about six years ago in the country for a sum of $40. Since her marriage the defendant has resided in the country but it had been her custom each year to visit her relatives in Hongkong. The girl was well treated, well fed and clothed, and had apparently formed an attachment for the woman, who had been very frank about the whole matter. The prosecution were not pressing the case and only asked his Worship to treat it as a technical offence.
